<sup>28</sup> " But as for you, in the midst of the uncircumcised you will be broken, and you will lie with those killed by the sword.

The LXX reads, probably correctly, "from of old" rather than "of the uncircumcised." The phrases are very similar in spelling. The warriors of Meshech-Tubal are described as uncircumcised, so it would be odd for them to not be buried with the uncircumcised. Verse 28 specifically says that they would lie with the uncircumcised. †† tn: Heb "and their iniquities were over their bones." The meaning of this statement is unclear; in light of the parallelism (see "swords") it is preferable to emend "their iniquities" to "their swords." See L. C. ### The Fall of Jerusalem

<sup>27</sup> " This is what you must say to them, 'This is what the sovereign LORD says: As surely as I live, those living in the ruins will die<sup>20</sup> by the sword, those in the open field I will give to the wild beasts for food, and those who are in the strongholds and caves will die of disease. <sup>28</sup> I will turn the land into a desolate ruin; her confident pride will come to an end. The mountains of Israel will be so desolate no one will pass through them. <sup>29</sup> Then they will know that I am the LORD when I turn the land into a desolate ruin because of all the abominable deeds they have committed.' <sup>21</sup>

34 The word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> " Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds<sup>35</sup> of Israel; prophesy, and say to them – to the shepherds: 'This is what the sovereign LORD says: Woe to the shepherds of Israel who have been feeding themselves! Should not shepherds feed the flock? <sup>3</sup> You eat the fat, you clothe yourselves with the wool, you slaughter the choice animals, but you do not feed the sheep! <sup>4</sup> You have not strengthened the weak, healed the sick, bandaged the injured, brought back the strays, or sought the lost, but with force and harshness<sup>36</sup> you have ruled over them. <sup>5</sup> They were scattered because they had no shepherd, and they became food for every wild beast. <sup>376</sup> My sheep wandered over all the mountains and on every high hill. My sheep were scattered over the entire face of the earth with no one looking or searching for them.

shepherds did not search for my flock, but fed themselves and did not feed my sheep,<sup>9</sup> Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD:<sup>10</sup> This is what the sovereign LORD says: Look, I am against the shepherds, and I will demand my sheep from their hand. I will no longer let them be shepherds; † the shepherds will not feed themselves anymore. I will rescue my sheep from their mouth, so that they will no longer be food for them.

<sup>11</sup> "For this is what the sovereign LORD says: Look, I myself will search for my sheep and seek them out.<sup>12</sup> As a shepherd seeks out his flock when he is among his scattered sheep, so I will seek out my flock. I will rescue them from all the places where they have been scattered on a cloudy, dark day.<sup>††13</sup> I will bring them out from among the peoples and gather them from foreign countries; I will bring them to their own land. I will feed them on the mountains of Israel, by the streams and all the inhabited places of the land.<sup>14</sup> In a good pasture I will feed them; the mountain heights of Israel will be their pasture. There they will lie down in a lush‡ pasture, and they will feed on rich grass on the mountains of Israel.<sup>15</sup> I myself will feed my sheep and I myself will make them lie down, declares the sovereign LORD.<sup>16</sup> I will seek the lost and bring back the strays; I will bandage the injured and strengthen the sick, but the fat and the strong I will destroy. I will feed them – with judgment!

<sup>17</sup> "As for you, my sheep, this is what the sovereign LORD says: Look, I am about to judge between one sheep and another, between rams and goats.<sup>18</sup> Is it not enough for you to feed on the good pasture, that you must trample the rest of your pastures with your feet? When you drink clean water, must you muddy the rest of the water by trampling it with your feet?<sup>19</sup> As for my sheep, they must eat what you trampled with your feet, and drink what you have muddied with your feet!

<sup>20</sup> "Therefore, this is what the sovereign LORD says to them: Look, I myself will judge between the fat sheep and the lean sheep.<sup>21</sup> Because you push with your side and your shoulder, and thrust your horns at all the weak sheep until you scatter them abroad,<sup>‡‡22</sup> I will save my sheep; they will no longer be prey. <sup>16</sup> The word of the LORD came to me: <sup>17</sup> "Son of man, when the house of Israel was living on their own land, they defiled it by their behavior§§§ and their deeds. In my sight their behavior was like the uncleanness of a woman having her monthly period.† <sup>18</sup> So I poured my anger on them<sup>18</sup> because of the blood they shed on the land and because of the idols with which they defiled it. <sup>19</sup> I scattered them among the nations; they were dispersed throughout foreign countries. 40 In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city<sup>18</sup> was struck down, on this very day, <sup>19</sup> the hand<sup>20</sup> of the LORD was on me, and he brought me there. <sup>212</sup> By means of divine visions<sup>22</sup> he brought me to the land of Israel and placed me on a very high mountain, <sup>23</sup> and on it was a structure like a city, to the south. <sup>3</sup> When he brought me there, I saw<sup>24</sup> a man whose appearance was like bronze, with a linen cord and a measuring stick in his hand. He was standing in the gateway. <sup>4</sup> The man said to me, "Son of man, watch closely, listen carefully, and pay attention<sup>25</sup> to everything I show you, for you have been brought here so that I can show it to you.<sup>26</sup> Tell the house of Israel everything you see."

The measuring units here and in the remainder of this section are the Hebrew "long" cubit, consisting of a cubit (about 18 inches or 45 cm) and a handbreadth (about 3 inches or 7.5 cm), for a total of 21 inches (52.5 cm). Therefore the measuring stick in the man's hand was 10.5 feet (3.15 meters) long. Because modern readers are not familiar with the cubit as a unit of measurement, and due to the additional complication of the "long" cubit as opposed to the regular cubit, all measurements have been converted to American standard feet and inches, with the Hebrew measurements and the metric equivalents given in the notes. 30 tn: Heb "building." 31 tn: Heb "one rod [or "reed"]" (also a second time in this verse, twice in v. 6, three times in v. 7, and once in v. 8). 32 tn: The Hebrew text adds "the one threshold 10½ feet deep." <sup>10</sup> At the beginning§§§ of the wall of the court toward the south,<sup>18</sup> facing the courtyard and the building, were chambers<sup>11</sup> with a passage in front of them. They looked like the chambers on the north. Of the same length and width, and all their exits according to their arrangements and entrances<sup>12</sup> were the chambers<sup>19</sup> which were toward the south. There was an opening at the head of the passage, the passage in front of the corresponding wall toward the east when one enters.

<sup>6</sup> I heard someone speaking to me from the temple, while the man was standing beside me. <sup>7</sup> He said to me: "Son of man, this is the place of my throne‡† and the place for the soles of my feet, ‡‡ where I will live among the people of Israel forever. The house of Israel will no longer profane my holy name, neither they nor their kings, by their spiritual prostitution or by the pillars of their kings set up when they die. ‡‡‡ When they placed their threshold by my threshold and their doorpost by my doorpost, with only the wall between me and them, they profaned my holy name by the abominable deeds they committed. So I consumed them in my anger. <sup>9</sup> Now they must put away their spiritual prostitution and the pillars of their kings far from me, and then I will live among them forever.

<sup>10</sup> "As for you, son of man, describe the temple to the house of Israel, so that they will be ashamed of their sins and measure the pattern. <sup>11</sup> When they are ashamed of all that they have done, make known to them the design of the temple, its pattern, its exits and entrances, and its whole design – all its statutes, its entire design, and all its laws; write it all down in their sight, so that they may observe its entire design and all its statutes and do them.

fering, so that they do not bring them out to the outer court to transmit holiness to the people."

<sup>21</sup> Then he brought me out to the outer court and led me past the four corners of the court, and I noticed† that in every corner of the court there was a court. <sup>22</sup> In the four corners of the court were small†† courts, 70 feet‡ in length and 52½ feet‡‡ in width; the four were all the same size. <sup>23</sup> There was a row of masonry around each of the four courts, and places for boiling offerings were made under the rows all around. <sup>24</sup> Then he said to me, "These are the houses for boiling, where the ministers of the temple boil the sacrifices of the people."

<sup>3</sup> When the man went out toward the east with a measuring line in his hand, he measured 1,750 feet, ‡‡‡ and then he led me through water, which was ankle deep. <sup>4</sup> Again he measured 1,750 feet and led me through the water, which was now knee deep. Once more he measured 1,750 feet and led me through the water, which was waist deep. <sup>5</sup> Again he measured 1,750 feet and it was a river I could not cross, for the water had risen; it was deep enough to swim in, a river that could not be crossed. <sup>6</sup> He said to me, "Son of man, have you seen this?"

Then he led me back to the bank of the river. <sup>7</sup> When I had returned, I noticed§ a vast number of trees on the banks of the river, on both sides. <sup>8</sup> He said to me, "These waters go out toward the eastern region and flow down into the Arabah; when they enter the Dead Sea, §† where the sea is stagnant, §†† the waters become fresh. §†‡ Every living creature which swarms where the river§†† flows will live; there will be many fish, for these waters flow there. ### Boundaries for the Land

<sup>15</sup> " This will be the border of the land :<sup>21</sup> On the north side, from the Great Sea by way of Hethlon to the entrance of Zedad; <sup>16</sup> Hamath, Berothah, Sibram, which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath, as far as Hazer-hattikon, which is on the border of Hauran. <sup>17</sup> The border will run from the sea to Hazar-enan, at the border of Damascus, and on the north is the border of Hamath. This is the north side. <sup>18</sup> On the east side, between Hauran and Damascus, and between Gilead and the land of Israel, will be the Jordan. You will measure from the border to the eastern sea. This is the east side. <sup>19</sup> On the south side it will run from Tamar to the waters of Meribath Kadesh, the river, <sup>22</sup> to the Great Sea. This is the south side. <sup>20</sup> On the west side the Great Sea will be the boundary to a point opposite Lebo-hamath. This is the west side.

<sup>21</sup> " This is how you will divide this land for yourselves among the tribes of Israel. <sup>22</sup> You must allot it as an inheritance among yourselves and for the foreigners who reside among you, who have fathered sons among you. You must treat them as native-born among the people of Israel; they will be allotted an inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel. <sup>2323</sup> In whatever tribe the foreigner resides, there you will give him his inheritance," declares the sovereign LORD.

Daniel

Daniel Finds Favor in Babylon

<sup>3</sup> The king commanded§† Ashpenaz, §‡ who was in charge of his court officials, §§† to choose§§‡ some of the Israelites who were of royal and noble descent §§§ – 4

† sn: The third year of the reign of Jehoiakim would be ca. 605 B.C.

†† sn: King Nebuchadnezzar ruled Babylon from ca. 605-562 B.C. ‡ map: For location see . ‡† sn: This attack culminated in the first of three major deportations of Jews to Babylon. The second one occurred in 597 B.C.

‡‡ tn: The Hebrew term translated "Lord" here is אֲדֹנָי ‡†† tn: Heb "gave." ‡‡‡ tn: Heb "hand," which is often used idiomatically for one's power and authority. See BDB 390 s.v. יָד ‡ tn: Or "utensils"; or "articles." §† tn: Heb "house of God." §†† sn: The land of Babylonia (Heb "the land of Shinar") is another name for Sumer and Akkad, where Babylon was located (cf. Gen 10:10; 11:2; 14:1, 9; Josh 7:21; Isa 11:11; Zech 5:11). §‡ tn: Or "gods" (NCV, NRSV, TEV; also later in this verse). The Hebrew term can be used as a numerical plural for many gods or as a plural of majesty for one particular god. Since Nebuchadnezzar was a polytheist, it is not clear if the reference here is to many gods or one particular deity. The plural of majesty, while normally used for Israel's God, is occasionally used of foreign gods (cf. BDB 43 s.v. אֱלֹהִים).

נְבוּכַדְנֶצַּר

§†† tn: Heb "brought."

Though the Hebrew verb "brought" is repeated in this verse, the young men in whom there was no physical defect and who were handsome, <sup>18</sup> well versed in all kinds of wisdom, well educated<sup>19</sup> and having keen insight, <sup>20</sup> and who were capable<sup>21</sup> of entering the king's royal service<sup>22</sup> – and to teach them the literature and language<sup>23</sup> of the Babylonians. <sup>245</sup> So the king assigned them a daily ration<sup>25</sup> from his royal delicacies<sup>26</sup> and from the wine he himself drank. They were to be trained<sup>27</sup> for the next three years. At the end of that time they were to enter the king's service. <sup>286</sup> As it turned out,<sup>29</sup> among these young men <sup>30</sup> were some from Judah :<sup>31</sup> Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. <sup>327</sup> But the overseer of the court officials renamed them. He gave<sup>33</sup> Daniel the name Belteshazzar, Hananiah he named Shadrach, Mishael he named Meshach, and Azariah he named Abednego. <sup>34</sup>

translation uses "brought...put" for stylistic variation. §† tn: Or "gave orders to." Heb "said to." §‡ sn: It is possible that the word Ashpenaz is not a proper name at all, but a general term for "innkeeper." See J. J. Collins, Daniel (Hermeneia), 127, n. 9. However, the ancient versions understand the term to be a name, and the present translation (along with most English versions) understands the word in this way. §§† sn: The word court official (Hebrew saris) need not mean "eunuch" in a technical sense (see Gen 37:36, where the term refers to Potiphar, who had a wife), although in the case of the book of Daniel there was in Jewish literature a common tradition to that effect. On the OT usage of this word see HALOT 769-70 s.v. קָרִים §§‡ tn: Heb "bring." §§§ tn: Heb "and from the seed of royalty and from the nobles." <sup>18</sup> tn: Heb "good of appearance." <sup>19</sup> tn: Heb "knowers of knowledge." <sup>20</sup> tn: Heb "understanders of knowledge." <sup>21</sup> tn: Heb "who had strength." <sup>22</sup> tn: Heb "to stand in the palace of the king." Cf. vv. 5, 19. <sup>23</sup> sn: The language of the Chaldeans referred to here is Akkadian, an East Semitic cuneiform language. <sup>24</sup> tn: Heb "Chaldeans" (so KJV, NAB, NASB, NRSV). This is an ancient name for the Babylonians. <sup>25</sup> tn: Heb "a thing of a day in its day." <sup>26</sup> tn: Heb "from the delicacies of the king." <sup>27</sup> tn: Or "educated." See HALOT 179 s.v. I 28 גָּדַל tn: Heb "stand before the king." <sup>29</sup> tn: Heb "and it happened that." <sup>30</sup> tn: Heb "among them"; the referent (the young men taken captive from Judah) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>31</sup> tn: Heb "the sons of Judah." <sup>32</sup> sn: The names reflect a Jewish heritage. In Hebrew Daniel means "God is my judge"; Hananiah means "the Lord is gracious"; Mishael means "who is what God is?"; Azariah means "the Lord has helped." <sup>33</sup> tc: The LXX and Vulgate lack the verb here. <sup>34</sup> sn: The meanings of the Babylonian names are more conjectural than is the case with the Hebrew names. The probable etymologies are as follows: Belteshazzar means "protect his life," although the MT vocalization may suggest "Belti, protect the king" (cf. Dan 4:8); Shadrach perhaps means "command of Aku"; Meshach is of uncertain meaning; Abednego means "servant of Nego." Assigning Babylonian names to the Hebrew youths may have been an attempt to erase from their memory their Israelite heritage. <sup>35</sup> tn: Heb "placed on his heart."

wine. † He therefore asked the overseer of the court officials for permission not to defile himself. 9 Then God made the overseer of the court officials sympathetic to Daniel. ††<sup>10</sup> But he‡ responded to Daniel, “I fear my master the king. He is the one who has decided‡‡ your food and drink. What would happen if he saw that you looked malnourished in comparison to the other young men your age? †† If that happened, ††† you would endanger my life‡‡‡ with the king!”<sup>11</sup> Daniel then spoke to the warden§ whom the overseer of the court officials had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: <sup>12</sup> “Please test your servants for ten days by providing us with some vegetables to eat and water to drink. <sup>13</sup> Then compare our appearance§† with that of§†† the young men who are eating the royal delicacies; §‡ deal with us§†† in light of what you see.”<sup>14</sup> So the warden§† agreed to their proposal§‡ and tested them for ten§§† days.

36 tn: Or “would not make himself ceremonially unclean”; TEV “become ritually unclean.” sn: Various reasons have been suggested as to why such food would defile Daniel. Perhaps it had to do with violations of Mosaic law with regard to unclean foods, or perhaps it had to do with such food having been offered to idols. Daniel’s practice in this regard is strikingly different from that of Esther, who was able successfully to conceal her Jewish identity. † tn: Heb “with the delicacies of the king and with the wine of his drinking.” †† tn: Heb “Then God granted Daniel loyal love and compassion before the overseer of the court officials.” The expression “loyal love and compassion” is a hendiadys; the two words combine to express one idea. ‡ tn: Heb “The overseer of the court officials.” The subject has been specified in the translation for the sake of clarity. ‡† tn: Heb “assigned.” See v. 5. ‡‡ tn: Heb “Why should he see your faces thin from the young men who are according to your age?” The term translated “thin” occurs only here and in Gen 40:6, where it appears to refer to a dejected facial expression. The word is related to an Arabic root meaning “be weak.” See HALOT 277 s.v. II רַחַץ ‡‡† tn: The words “if that happened” are not in the Hebrew text but have been added in the translation for clarity. ‡‡‡ tn: Heb “my head.” Presumably this is an implicit reference to capital punishment (cf. NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT), although this is not entirely clear. § sn: Having failed to convince the overseer, Daniel sought the favor of the warden whom the overseer had appointed to care for the young men. §† tn: Heb “let our appearance be seen before you.” §†† tn: Heb “the appearance of.” §‡ tn: Heb “delicacies of the king.” So also in v. 15. §‡† tn: Heb “your servants.” §† tn: Heb “he”; the referent (the warden mentioned in v. 11) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §‡ tn: Heb “listened to them with regard to this matter.” §§† sn: The number ten is sometimes used in the OT as an ideal number of completeness. Cf. v. 20; Zech 8:23; Rev 2:10. §§‡ tn: Heb “fat of flesh”; KJV, ASV “fatter in flesh”; NASB, NRSV “fatter” (although this is no longer a sign of health in Western culture). §§§ tn: Heb “the wine of their drinking.”<sup>18</sup> tn: The words “from their diet” are not in the Hebrew text but have been added in the translation for clarity.

19 tn: Heb “at the end of the days which the king said to bring them.”<sup>20</sup> tn: Heb “from all of them.”<sup>21</sup> tn: Heb “stood before the king.”<sup>22</sup> tc: The MT lacks the conjunction, reading the first word in the phrase as a construct (“wisdom of insight”). While this reading is not impossible, it seems better to follow Theodotion, the Syriac, the Vulgate, and the Sahidic Coptic, all of which have the conjunction. <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb “hands.”<sup>24</sup> sn: The Persian king Cyrus’ first year in control of Babylon was 539 B.C.

B.C. <sup>25</sup> tn: Heb “Nebuchadnezzar’s.” The possessive pronoun is substituted in the translation for stylistic reasons. <sup>26</sup> tn: Heb “dreamed dreams.” The plural is used here and in v. 2, but the singular in v. 3. The plural “dreams” has been variously explained. Some interpreters take the plural as denoting an indefinite singular (so GKC 400 §124. o). But it may be that it is describing a stream of related dreams, or a dream state. In the latter case, one might translate: “Nebuchadnezzar was in a trance.” See further, J. A. It was this view that led in the past to Aramaic being referred to as “Chaldee.” Aramaic was used as a lingua franca during this period; its origins and usage were not restricted to the Babylonians. Rather, this phrase is better understood as an editorial note (cf. NAB) marking the fact that from 2:4b through 7:28 the language of the book shifts from Hebrew to Aramaic. In 8:1, and for the remainder of the book, the language returns to Hebrew. Various views have been advanced to account for this change of language, most of which are

"O king, live forever ! Tell your servants the dream, and we will disclose its† interpretation." <sup>5</sup> The king replied†† to the wise men, "My decision is firm. ‡ If you do not inform me of both the dream and its interpretation, you will be dismembered†† and your homes reduced to rubble! <sup>6</sup> But if you can disclose the dream and its interpretation, you will receive from me gifts, a reward, and considerable honor. So disclose to me the dream and its interpretation!" <sup>7</sup> They again replied, "Let the king inform us‡‡ of the dream; then we will disclose its‡‡‡ interpretation." <sup>8</sup> The king replied, "I know for sure that you are attempting to gain time, because you see that my decision is firm. <sup>9</sup> If you don't inform me of the dream, there is only one thing that is going to happen to you.‡‡‡ For you have agreed among yourselves to report to me something false and deceitful§ until such time as things might change. So tell me the dream, and I will have confidence§† that you can disclose its interpretation."

unconvincing. Most likely the change in language is a reflection of stages in the transmission history of the book of Daniel. † tn: Or "the." †† tn: Aram "answered and said," a common idiom to indicate a reply, but redundant in contemporary English. ‡ tn: It seems clear from what follows that Nebuchadnezzar clearly recalls the content of the dream, although obviously he does not know what to make of it. By not divulging the dream itself to the would-be interpreters, he intends to find out whether they are simply leading him on. If they can tell him the dream's content, which he is able to verify, he then can have confidence in their interpretation, which is what eludes him. The translation "the matter is gone from me" (cf. KJV, ASV), suggesting that the king had simply forgotten the dream, is incorrect. The Aramaic word used here ( ܢܗܘܘܢܐ

ܬܪܝܢܐ ††† tn: Aram "made limbs." Cf. 3:29. ‡‡ tn: Aram "his servants." ‡‡‡ tn: Or "the." ‡‡‡ tn: Aram "one is your law," i.e., only one thing is applicable to you. § tn: Aram "a lying and corrupt word." §† tn: Aram "I will know." §†† tn: Aram "matter, thing." §‡ tn: Aram "whose dwelling is not with flesh." §‡† tn: Aram "was angry and very furious." The expression is a hendiadys (two words or phrases expressing a single idea). §† tn: The Aramaic participle is used here to express the imminent future. §‡ tn: The impersonal active plural ("they sought") of the Aramaic verb could also be translated as an English passive: "Daniel and his friends were sought" (cf. NAB).

<sup>14</sup> Then Daniel spoke with prudent counsel§§† to Arioch, who was in charge of the king's executioners and who had gone out to execute the wise men of Babylon. <sup>15</sup> He inquired of Arioch the king's deputy, "Why is the decree from the king so urgent ?"§§‡ Then Arioch informed Daniel about the matter. <sup>16</sup> So Daniel went in and§§§ requested the king to grant him time, that he might disclose the interpretation to the king. <sup>17</sup> Then Daniel went to his home and informed his friends Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah of the matter. <sup>18</sup> He asked them to pray for mercy from the God of heaven concerning this mystery so that he<sup>18</sup> and his friends would not be destroyed along with the rest of the wise men of Babylon. <sup>19</sup> Then in a night vision the mystery was revealed to Daniel. So Daniel praised<sup>19</sup> the God of heaven, <sup>20</sup> saying, <sup>20</sup>

"Let the name of God<sup>21</sup> be praised<sup>22</sup> forever and ever, for wisdom and power belong to him.

<sup>21</sup> He changes times and seasons, deposing some kings and establishing others.<sup>23</sup> He gives wisdom to the wise; he imparts knowledge to those with understanding;

<sup>24</sup> he reveals deep and hidden things. He knows what is in the darkness, and light resides with him.

<sup>23</sup> O God of my fathers, I acknowledge and glorify you, for you have bestowed wisdom and power on me. Now you have enabled me to understand what I<sup>25</sup> requested from you.

For you have enabled me to understand the king's dilemma."<sup>26</sup>

<sup>24</sup> Then Daniel went in to see<sup>27</sup> Arioch (whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon ). He came<sup>28</sup> and said to him, "Don't destroy the wise men of Babylon ! Escort me<sup>29</sup> to the king, and I will disclose the interpretation to him!" <sup>30</sup>

<sup>25</sup> So Arioch quickly ushered Daniel into the king's presence, saying to him, "†I have found a man from the captives of Judah who can make known the interpretation to the king." <sup>26</sup> The king then asked Daniel (whose name was also Belteshazzar), "Are you able to make known to me the dream that I saw, as well as its interpretation?" <sup>27</sup> Daniel replied to the king, "The mystery that the king is asking about is such that no wise men, astrologers, magicians, or diviners can possibly disclose it to the king. <sup>28</sup> However, there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, †† and he has made known to King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen in the times to come. ‡ The dream and the visions you had while lying on your bed†† are as follows.

<sup>29</sup> "As for you, O king, while you were in your bed your thoughts turned to future things.‡‡ The revealer of mysteries has made known to you what will take place. <sup>30</sup> As for me, this mystery was revealed to me not because I possess more wisdom‡‡‡ than any other living person, but so that the king may understand‡‡‡ the interpretation and comprehend the thoughts of your mind. §

<sup>31</sup> "You, O king, were watching as a great statue – one§† of impressive size and extraordinary brightness – was standing before you. Its appearance caused alarm. <sup>32</sup> As for that statue, its head was of fine gold, its chest and arms were of silver, its belly and thighs were of bronze. <sup>33</sup> Its legs were of iron; its feet were partly of iron and partly of clay. §††<sup>34</sup> You were watching as§† a stone was cut out, §†† but not by human hands. It struck the statue on its iron and clay feet, breaking them in pieces. <sup>35</sup> Then the iron, clay, bronze, silver, and gold were broken in pieces without distinction§† and became like chaff from the summer threshing floors that the wind carries away. Not a trace of them could be found. But the stone that struck the statue became a large mountain that filled the entire earth. <sup>36</sup> This was the dream. Now we§† will set forth before the king its interpretation.

† sn: Arioch's claim is self-serving and exaggerated. It is Daniel who came to him, and not the other way around. By claiming to have found one capable of solving the king's dilemma, Arioch probably hoped to ingratiate himself to the king. †† tn: Aram "a revealer of mysteries." The phrase serves as a quasi-title for God in Daniel. ‡ tn: Aram "in the latter days." ‡† tn: Aram "your dream and the visions of your head upon your bed." ‡‡ tn: Aram "your thoughts upon your bed went up to what will be after this." ‡‡† tn: Aram "not for any wisdom which is in me more than [in] any living man." ‡‡‡ tn: Aram "they might cause the king to know." The impersonal plural is used here to refer to the role of God's spirit in revealing the dream and its interpretation to the king. As J. A. Montgomery says, "it appropriately here veils the mysterious agency" (Daniel [ICC], 164-65). § tn: Aram "heart." §† tn: Aram "an image." §†† sn: Clay refers to baked clay, which – though hard – was also fragile. Cf. the reference in v. 41 to "wet clay." §‡ tn: Aram "until." §†† tc: The LXX, Theodotion, and the Vulgate have "from a mountain," though this is probably a harmonization with v. 45. §† tn: Aram "as one." For the meaning "without distinction" see the following: F. Rosenthal, Grammar, 36, §64, and p. 93; E. Vogt, Lexicon linguae aramaicae, 60. §‡ tn: Various suggestions have been made concerning the plural "we." It is probably the editorial plural and could be translated here as "I."

Daniel Interprets Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

<sup>37</sup> "You, O king, are the king of kings. The God of heaven has granted you sovereignty, power, strength, and honor. <sup>38</sup> Wherever human beings, §§† wild animals, §§‡ and birds of the sky live – he has given them into your power. §§§ He has given you authority over them all. You are the head of gold. <sup>39</sup> Now after you another kingdom<sup>18</sup> will arise, one inferior to yours. Then a third kingdom, one of bronze, will rule in all the earth. <sup>40</sup> Then there will be a fourth kingdom, one strong like iron. Just like iron breaks in pieces and shatters everything, and as iron breaks in pieces<sup>19</sup> all of these metals,<sup>20</sup> so it will break in pieces and crush the others. <sup>21</sup><sup>41</sup> In that you were seeing feet and toes<sup>22</sup> partly of wet clay<sup>23</sup> and partly of iron, so this will be a divided kingdom. Some of the strength of iron will be in it, for you saw iron mixed with wet clay. <sup>24</sup><sup>42</sup> In that the toes of the feet were partly of iron and partly of clay, the latter stages of this kingdom will be partly strong and partly fragile. <sup>43</sup> And<sup>25</sup> in that you saw iron mixed with wet clay, so people will be mixed<sup>26</sup> with one another<sup>27</sup> without adhering to one another, just as<sup>28</sup> iron does not mix with clay. <sup>44</sup> In the days of those kings the God of heaven will raise up an everlasting kingdom that will not be destroyed and a kingdom that will not be left to another people. It will break in pieces and bring about the demise of all these kingdoms. But it will stand forever. <sup>45</sup> You saw that a stone was cut from a mountain, but not by human hands; it smashed the iron, bronze, clay, silver, and gold into pieces. The great God has made known to the king what will occur in the future. <sup>29</sup> The dream is certain, and its interpretation is reliable."

<sup>46</sup> Then King Nebuchadnezzar bowed down with his face to the ground<sup>30</sup> and paid homage to Daniel. He gave orders to offer sacrifice and incense to him. <sup>47</sup> The king replied to Daniel, "Certainly your God is a God of gods and Lord of kings and revealer of mysteries, for you were able to reveal this mystery!" <sup>48</sup> Then the king elevated Daniel to high position and bestowed on him many marvelous gifts. <sup>8</sup> Now<sup>18</sup> at that time certain<sup>19</sup> Chaldeans came forward and brought malicious accusations against<sup>20</sup> the Jews. <sup>9</sup> They said<sup>21</sup> to King Nebuchadnezzar, "O king, live forever! <sup>22</sup><sup>10</sup> You have issued an edict, O king, that everyone must bow down and pay homage to the golden statue when they hear the sound of the horn, flute, zither, trigon, harp, pipes, and all kinds of music. <sup>11</sup> And whoever does not bow down and pay homage must be thrown into the midst of a furnace of blazing fire. <sup>12</sup> But there are Jewish men whom you appointed over the administration of the province of Babylon – Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego – and these men<sup>23</sup> have not shown proper respect to you, O king. ## God Delivers His Servants

<sup>24</sup> Then King Nebuchadnezzar was startled and quickly got up. He said to his ministers, "Wasn't it three men that we tied up and threw§§‡ into§§§ the fire?" They replied to the king, "For sure, O king."<sup>25</sup> He answered, "But I see four men, untied and walking around in the midst of the fire! No harm has come to them! He called out,<sup>19</sup> "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the most high God, come out! Come here!"

Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego emerged from the fire.<sup>2027</sup> Once the satraps, prefects, governors, and ministers of the king had gathered around, they saw that those men were physically<sup>21</sup> unharmed by the fire.<sup>22</sup> The hair of their heads was not singed, nor were their trousers damaged. Not even the smell of fire was to be found on them!

Daniel Interprets Nebuchadnezzar’s Dream

<sup>19</sup> Then Daniel (whose name is also Belteshazzar) was upset for a brief time;†† his thoughts were alarming him. The king said, “Belteshazzar, don’t let the dream and its interpretation alarm you.” But Belteshazzar replied, “Sir,‡ if only the dream were for your enemies and its interpretation applied to your adversaries!‡‡ <sup>20</sup> The tree that you saw that grew large and strong, whose top reached to the sky, and which could be seen‡‡‡ in all the land,‡‡ whose foliage was attractive and its fruit plentiful, and from which there was food available for all, under whose branches wild animals‡‡‡ used to live, and in whose branches birds of the sky used to nest – <sup>22</sup> it is you,§ O king! For you have become great and strong. Your greatness is such that it reaches to heaven, and your authority to the ends of the earth. <sup>23</sup> As for the king seeing a holy sentinel coming down from heaven and saying, ‘Chop down the tree and destroy it, but leave its taproot in the ground, with a band of iron and bronze around it, surrounded by the grass of the field. Let it become damp with the dew of the sky, and let it live with the wild animals, until seven periods of time go by for him’ – <sup>24</sup> this is the interpretation, O king! It is the decision of the Most High that this has happened to my lord the king. <sup>25</sup> You will be driven§† from human society,§†† and you will live§† with the wild animals. You will be fed§†† grass like oxen,§† and you will become damp with the dew of the sky. Seven periods of time will

A Qumran text, the Prayer of Nabonidus, is often cited for parallels to these events. §† tn: The Aramaic indefinite active plural is used here like the English passive. So also in v. 28, 29, 32. §†† tn: Aram “from mankind.” So also in v. 32. §‡ tn: Aram “your dwelling will be.” So also in v. 32. §†† tn: Or perhaps “be made to eat.” §† sn: Nebuchadnezzar’s insanity has features that are associated with the mental disorder known as boanthropy, in which the person so afflicted imagines himself to be an ox or a similar animal and behaves accordingly.

Break away from your sins by doing what is right, and from your iniquities by showing mercy to the poor. Perhaps your prosperity will be prolonged.”§§†

<sup>34</sup> But at the end of the appointed time<sup>28</sup> I, Nebuchadnezzar, looked up<sup>29</sup> toward heaven, and my sanity returned to me.

I extolled the Most High, and I praised and glorified the one who lives forever.
For his authority is an everlasting authority, and his kingdom extends from one generation to the next.

My ministers and my nobles were seeking me out, and I was reinstated‡ over my kingdom. I became even greater than before. <sup>37</sup> Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and exalt and glorify the King of heaven, for all his deeds are right and his ways are just. He is able to bring down those who live†† in pride.

<sup>8</sup> So all the king's wise men came in, but they were unable to read the writing or to make known its<sup>27</sup> interpretation to the king. <sup>9</sup> Then King Belshazzar was very terrified, and he was visibly shaken. <sup>28</sup> His nobles were completely dumbfounded.

These satraps were accountable<sup>28</sup> to them, so that the king's interests might not incur damage. <sup>3</sup> Now this Daniel was distinguishing himself above the other supervisors and the satraps, for he had an extraordinary spirit. He has rescued Daniel from the power‡‡‡ of the lions!"‡‡‡

† tn: Aram "said." †† tn: Aram "had eaten the pieces of." The Aramaic expression is ironic, in that the accusers who had figuratively "eaten the pieces of Daniel" are themselves literally devoured by the lions. ‡ tn: The Aramaic active impersonal verb is often used as a substitute for the passive. ‡† tc: The LXX specifies only the two overseers, together with their families, as those who were cast into the lions' den. ‡‡ tn: Aram "May your peace be increased!" ‡‡† tn: Aram "until the end." ‡‡‡ tn: Aram "hand." § tn: Or perhaps "in the reign of Darius, even in the reign of Cyrus." The identity of this Darius is disputed. Some take the name to be referring to Cyrus, understanding the following vav ( |

§†† tn: Aram "saw." §‡ tn: Aram "and visions of his head." The Aramaic is difficult here. Some scholars add a verb thought to be missing (e.g., "the visions of his head [were alarming him]"), but there is no external evidence to support such a decision and the awkwardness of the text at this point may be original. §†† tn: Aram "head of words." The phrase is absent in Theodotion. Cf. NIV "the substance of his dream." §† tn: Aram "answered and said." §‡ tn: Aram "and behold." §§† tn: Or "the heavens." The Hebrew term עַמּוּשׁ

<sup>8</sup>" As I was contemplating the horns, another horn – a small one – came up between them, and three of the former horns were torn out by the roots to make room for it.<sup>30</sup> This horn had eyes resembling human eyes and a mouth speaking arrogant<sup>31</sup> things.

§§§ tn: Aram "heart of a man." 18 sn: The identity of the first animal, derived from v. 17 and the parallels in chap. 2, is Babylon. The reference to the plucking of its wings is probably a reference to the time of Nebuchadnezzar's insanity (cf. chap. 4). The latter part of v. 4 then describes the restoration of Nebuchadnezzar. The other animals have traditionally been understood to represent respectively Media-Persia, Greece, and Rome, although most of modern scholarship identifies them as Media, Persia, and Greece. For a biblical parallel to the mention of lion, bear, and leopard together, see Hos 13:7-8. 19 tn: Aram "and behold." 20 sn: The three ribs held securely in the mouth of the bear, perhaps representing Media-Persia, apparently symbolize military conquest, but the exact identity of the "ribs" is not clear. Possibly it is a reference to the Persian conquest of Lydia, Egypt, and Babylonia. 21 tc: The LXX lacks the phrase "between its teeth." 22 tn: Aram "and thus they were saying to it." 23 tn: Aram "this." So also in v. 7. 24 tn: Aram "and behold, another one." 25 tn: Or "sides." 26 sn: If the third animal is Greece, the most likely identification of these four heads is the four-fold division of the empire of Alexander the Great following his death. See note on Dan 8:8. 27 tn: The Aramaic text has also "and behold." So also in vv. 8, 13. 28 sn: The fourth animal differs from the others in that it is nondescript. Apparently it was so fearsome that Daniel could find nothing with which to compare it. Attempts to identify this animal as an elephant or other known creature are conjectural. 29 tn: The Aramaic word for "teeth" is dual rather than plural, suggesting two rows of teeth. 30 tn: Aram "were uprooted from before it." 31 tn: Aram "great." So also in vv. 11, 20. 32 tn: Or "the Ancient One" (NAB, NRSV, NLT), although the traditional expression has been retained in the present translation because it is familiar to many readers. Cf. <sup>11</sup> " Then I kept on watching because of the arrogant words of the horn that was speaking. I was watching‡ until the beast was killed and its body destroyed and thrown into†† the flaming fire. <sup>12</sup> As for the rest of the beasts, their ruling authority had already been removed, though they were permitted to go on living‡‡ for a time and a season. <sup>13</sup> I was watching in the night visions,

All peoples, nations, and language groups were serving§†† him.

His authority is eternal and will not pass away. §† His kingdom will not be destroyed. §††

An Angel Interprets Daniel's Vision

<sup>15</sup> " As for me, Daniel, my spirit was distressed, §† and the visions of my mind§† were alarming me. <sup>16</sup> I approached one of those standing nearby and asked him about the meaning§§† of all this. So he spoke with me and revealed§§† to me the interpretation of the vision: <sup>§§§17</sup> ' These large beasts, which are four in number, represent four kings who will arise from the earth. <sup>18</sup>

§ sn: This text is probably the main OT background for Jesus' use of the term "son of man." In both Jewish and Christian circles the reference in the book of Daniel has traditionally been understood to refer to an individual, usually in a messianic sense. Many modern scholars, however, understand the reference to have a corporate identity. In this view, the "son of man" is to be equated with the "holy ones" (vv. 18, 21, 22, 25) or the "people of the holy ones" (v. 27) and understood as a reference to the Jewish people. Others understand Daniel's reference to be to the angel Michael. §† tn: Aram "they brought him near." §†† tn: Some take "serving" here in the sense of "worshiping." §‡ tn: Aram "is an eternal authority which will not pass away." §†† tn: Aram "is one which will not be destroyed." §† tn: The Aramaic text includes the phrase "in its sheath," apparently viewing the body as a container or receptacle for the spirit somewhat like a sheath or scabbard is for a knife or a sword (cf. NAB "within its sheath of flesh"). For this phrase the LXX and Vulgate have "in these things." §‡ tn: Aram "head." §§† tn: Aram "what is certain." §§‡ tn: Aram "and made known." §§§ tn: Aram "matter," but the matter at hand is of course the vision.

The holy ones<sup>18</sup> of the Most High will receive the kingdom and will take possession of the kingdom forever and ever.'

<sup>19</sup> " Then I wanted to know the meaning<sup>19</sup> of the fourth beast, which was different from all the others. It was very dreadful, with two rows of iron teeth and bronze claws, and it devoured, crushed, and trampled anything that was left with its feet. <sup>20</sup> I also wanted to know<sup>20</sup> the meaning of the ten horns on its head, and of that other horn which came up and before which three others fell. This was the horn that had eyes<sup>21</sup> and a mouth speaking arrogant things, whose appearance was more formidable than the others. <sup>22</sup> While I was watching, that horn began to wage war against the holy ones and was defeating<sup>23</sup> them, <sup>22</sup> until the Ancient of Days arrived and judgment was rendered<sup>24</sup> in favor of the holy ones of the Most High. Then the time came for the holy ones to take possession of the kingdom.

<sup>23</sup> " This is what he told me:<sup>25</sup>

'The fourth beast means that there will be a fourth kingdom on earth that will differ from all the other kingdoms.

It will devour all the earth and will trample and crush it.

<sup>24</sup> The ten horns

mean that ten kings will arise from that kingdom.

Another king will arise after them,

but he will be different from the earlier ones.

He will humiliate<sup>26</sup> three kings.

<sup>25</sup> He will speak words against the Most High.

He will harass<sup>27</sup> the holy ones of the Most High continually.

His intention<sup>28</sup> will be to change times established by law. <sup>29</sup>

They will be delivered into his hand

For a time, times, <sup>30</sup> and half a time.

<sup>18</sup> sn: The expression holy ones is either a reference to angels or to human beings devoted to God. <sup>19</sup> tn: Aram "to make certain." <sup>20</sup> tn: The words "I also wanted to know" are added in the translation for stylistic reasons. <sup>21</sup> tc: The conjunction in the MT before "eyes" is odd. The ancient versions do not seem to presuppose it. <sup>22</sup> tn: Aram "greater than its companions." <sup>23</sup> tn: Aram "prevailing against" (KJV and ASV both similar); NASB "overpowering them"; TEV "conquered them." <sup>24</sup> tc: In the LXX, Syriac, and Vulgate the verb is active, understanding "judgment" to be the object rather than the subject of the verb (i.e., "the Ancient of Days rendered judgment"). This presupposes a different vocalization of the verb (הִבֵּי הִבֵּי). <sup>25</sup> tn: Aram "thus he said." <sup>26</sup> tn: Or "subjugate"; KJV, NASB, NIV "subdue"; ASV, NRSV "put down." <sup>27</sup> tn: Aram "wear out" (so KJV, ASV, NRSV); NASB, NLT "wear down." The word is a hapax legomenon in biblical Aramaic, but in biblical Hebrew it especially refers to wearing out such things as garments. Here it is translated "harass...continually." <sup>28</sup> tn: Aram "he will think." <sup>29</sup> tn: Aram "times and law." The present translation is based on the understanding that the expression is a hendiadys. <sup>30</sup> sn: Although the word times is vocalized in the MT as a plural, it probably should be regarded as a dual. The Masoretes may have been influenced here by the fact that in late Aramaic (and Syriac) the dual forms fall out of use. The meaning would thus be three and a half "times."

<sup>26</sup> But the court will convene, † and his ruling authority will be removed – destroyed and abolished forever!

<sup>27</sup> Then the kingdom, authority, and greatness of the kingdoms under all of heaven will be delivered to the people of the holy ones†† of the Most High.

His kingdom is an eternal kingdom;

all authorities will serve him and obey him.'

The remainder of the book from this point on ( 8:1-12:13) is in Hebrew. The bilingual nature of the book has been variously explained, but it most likely has to do with the book's transmission history. ‡†† sn: The third year of King Belshazzar's reign would have been ca. 551 B.C

An Angel Interprets Daniel's Vision

<sup>15</sup> While I, Daniel, was watching the vision, I sought to understand it. Now one who appeared to be a man was standing before me. <sup>16</sup> Then I heard a human voice coming from between the banks of the Ulai. It called out, "Gabriel, § enable this person to understand the vision." <sup>17</sup> So he approached the place where I was standing. As he came, I felt terrified and fell flat on the ground.§† Then he said to me, "Understand, son of man, §†† that the vision pertains to the time of the end." <sup>18</sup> As he spoke with me, I fell into a trance with my face to the ground. But he touched me and stood me upright. § rebellion." The meaning of the phrase is difficult to determine. It could mean "due to rebellion," referring to the failures of the Jews, but this is not likely since it is not a point made elsewhere in the book. The phrase more probably refers to the rebellion against God and the atrocities against the Jews epitomized by Antiochus. ‡ tc: Two medieval Hebrew MSS

Cf. 4:13[10], 23 [20]. ††† sn: The language of evenings and mornings is reminiscent of the creation account in Genesis 1. Since "evening and morning" is the equivalent of a day, the reference here would be to 2,300 days. However, some interpreters understand the reference to be to the evening sacrifice and the morning sacrifice, in which case the reference would be to only 1,150 days. Either way, the event that marked the commencement of this period is unclear. The event that marked the conclusion of the period is the rededication of the temple in Jerusalem following the atrocious and sacrilegious acts that Antiochus implemented. This took place on December 25, 165 B.C.

“O Lord, §†† great and awesome God who is faithful to his covenant§† with those who love him and keep his commandments, <sup>5</sup> we have sinned! We have done what is wrong and wicked; we have rebelled by turning away from your commandments and standards. <sup>6</sup> We have not paid attention to your servants the prophets, who spoke by your authority§† to our kings, our leaders, and our ancestors, §†† and to all the inhabitants§§† of the land as well.

<sup>7</sup> “You are righteous, §§§ O Lord, but we are humiliated this day<sup>18</sup> – the people<sup>19</sup> of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem and all Israel, both near and far away in all the countries in which you have scattered them, because they have behaved unfaithfully toward you. <sup>8</sup> O LORD, we have been humiliated<sup>20</sup> – our kings, our leaders, and our ancestors – because we have sinned against you. <sup>9</sup> Yet the Lord our God is compassionate and forgiving, <sup>21</sup> even though we have rebelled against him. <sup>10</sup> We have not obeyed<sup>22</sup> the LORD our God by living according to<sup>23</sup> his laws <sup>24</sup> that he set before us through his servants the prophets.

<sup>11</sup> “All Israel has broken<sup>25</sup> your law and turned away by not obeying you.<sup>26</sup> Therefore you have poured out on us the judgment solemnly threatened<sup>27</sup> in the law of Moses the servant of God, for we have sinned against you. <sup>28</sup><sup>12</sup> He has carried out his threats<sup>29</sup> against us and our rulers<sup>30</sup> who were over<sup>31</sup> us by bringing great calamity on us – what has happened to Jerusalem has never been equaled under all heaven!

<sup>13</sup> Just as it is written in the law of Moses, so all this calamity has come on us. Still we have not tried to pacify<sup>32</sup> the LORD our God by turning back from our sin and by seeking wisdom<sup>33</sup> from your reliable moral standards. <sup>34</sup><sup>14</sup> The LORD was mindful of the calamity, and he brought it on us. For the LORD our God is just<sup>35</sup> in all he has done, <sup>36</sup> and we have not obeyed him. <sup>37</sup>

<sup>15</sup> “Now, O Lord our God, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with great power<sup>38</sup> and made a name for yourself that is remembered to this day – we have sinned and behaved wickedly. <sup>16</sup> O Lord, according to all your justice, <sup>39</sup> please turn your raging anger<sup>40</sup> away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain. ‡ tc: The present translation follows the MT in reading a Hophal (i.e., passive). Theodotion, the Syriac, and the Vulgate all presuppose the Hiphil (i.e., active). Even though this is the only occurrence of the Hophal of this verb in the Bible, there is no need to emend the vocalization to the Hiphil. †† tn: Heb “was made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans.” ‡†† tc: This phrase, repeated from v. 1, is absent in Theodotion. ‡†† tn: The Hebrew text has “books”; the word “sacred” has been added in the translation to clarify that it is Scriptures that are referred to. ‡††† sn: The tetragrammaton (the four Hebrew letters which constitute the divine Name, YHWH) appears eight times in this chapter, and nowhere else in the book of Daniel. § map: For location see . §† tn: Heb “face.” §†† tn: The Hebrew phrase translated “Lord God” here is יהוה יהוה ‡††† sn: When lamenting, ancient Israelites would fast, wear sackcloth, and put ashes on their heads to show their sorrow and contrition. §†† tn: The Hebrew term translated “Lord” here and in vv. 7, 9, 15, 16, and 19 is יהוה ‡†† tn: Heb “who keeps the covenant and the loyal love.” The expression is a hendiadys. §†† tn: Heb “in your name.” Another option is to translate, “as your representatives.” §††† tn: Heb “our fathers” (also in vv. 8, 16). The Hebrew term translated “father” can refer to more distant relationships such as grandfathers or ancestors. §††† tn: Heb “people.” §††† tn: Heb “to you (belongs) righteousness.” <sup>18</sup> tn: Heb “and to us (belongs) shame of face like this day.” <sup>19</sup> tn: Heb “men.”

NASB “nor have we obeyed the voice of”). <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb “to walk in.” <sup>24</sup> tc: The LXX and Vulgate have the singular. <sup>25</sup> tn: Or “transgressed.” The Hebrew verb has the primary sense of crossing a boundary, in this case, God’s law. <sup>26</sup> tn: Heb “by not paying attention to your voice.” <sup>27</sup> tn: Heb “the curse and the oath which is written.” The term “curse” refers here to the judgments threatened in the Mosaic law (see Deut 28) for rebellion. The expression “the curse and the oath” is probably a hendiadys (cf. Num 5:21; Neh 10:29) referring to the fact that the covenant with its threatened judgments was ratified by solemn oath and made legally binding upon the covenant community. <sup>28</sup> tn: Heb “him.” <sup>29</sup> tn: Heb “he has fulfilled his word(s) which he spoke.” <sup>30</sup> tn: Heb “our judges.” <sup>31</sup> tn: Heb “who judged.” <sup>32</sup> tn: Heb “we have not pacified the face of.” <sup>33</sup> tn: Or “by gaining insight.” <sup>34</sup> tn: Heb “by your truth.” The Hebrew term does not refer here to abstract truth, however, but to the reliable moral guidance found in the covenant law. See vv 10-11. <sup>35</sup> tn: Or “righteous.” <sup>36</sup> tn: Heb “in all his deeds which he has done.” <sup>37</sup> tn: Heb “we have not listened to his voice.” <sup>38</sup> tn: Heb “with a powerful hand.” <sup>39</sup> tn: Or “righteousness.” <sup>40</sup> tn: Heb “your anger and your rage.” The synonyms are joined here to emphasize the degree of God’s anger. This is best expressed in English by making one of the terms adjectival (cf. The reference in v. 26 to the sixty-two weeks as a unit favors the MT accentuation, not the traditional translation. If one follows the MT accentuation, one may translate "From the going forth of the message to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until an anointed one, a prince arrives, there will be a period of seven weeks. During a period of sixty-two weeks it will again be built, with plaza and moat, and in distressful times." The present translation follows a traditional reading of the passage that deviates from the MT accentuation. <sup>26</sup> tn: Heb "it will return and be built." The expression is a verbal hendiadys. <sup>27</sup> sn: The expression have nothing is difficult. Presumably it refers to an absence of support or assistance for the anointed one at the time of his "cutting off." The KJV rendering "but not for himself," apparently suggesting a vicarious death, cannot be defended. <sup>28</sup> tc: Some witnesses (e.g., the Syriac) understand a passive verb and the preposition <sup>עַם</sup>

‡† tn: The phrase "I delight" does not appear in the Hebrew text a second time in this verse, but is implied from the parallelism in the preceding line. ‡†† sn: Contrary to popular misunderstanding, Hosea does not reject animal sacrifice nor cultic ritual, and advocate instead obedience only. Rather, God does not delight in ritual sacrifice without the accompanying prerequisite moral obedience ( 1 Sam 15:22; Pss 40:6-8; 51:16-17; Prov 21:3; Isa 1:11-17; Jer 7:21-23; Hos 6:6; Mic 6:6-8). However, if prerequisite moral obedience is present, he delights in sacrificial worship as an outward expression ( Ps 51:19). Presented by a repentant obedient worshiper, whole burnt offerings were "an aroma pleasing" to the LORD

The Divine Dilemma: Judgment or Mercy?

8 How can I give you up, O Ephraim ?
How can I surrender you, O Israel ?
How can I treat you like Admah ?
How can I make you like Zeboiim ?
I have had a change of heart !
All my tender compassions are aroused !
9 I cannot carry out my fierce anger !
I cannot totally destroy Ephraim !
Because I am God, and not man – the Holy One among you –
I will not come in wrath!

like doves from Assyria, and I will settle them in their homes," declares the LORD.

Introduction

A Locust Plague Foreshadows the Day of the Lord

<sup>2</sup> Listen to this, you elders; ‡‡ pay attention, ‡‡‡ all inhabitants of the land. Has anything like this ever happened in your whole life‡‡‡

† sn: The dating of the book of Joel is a matter of dispute. Some scholars date the book as early as the ninth century B.C.

<sup>4</sup> What the gazam-locust left the 'arbeh-locust consumed, §‡† what the 'arbeh-locust left the yeleq-locust consumed,

*supplies, causing life-threatening shortages for animal and human life (cf. v. 20). Locust invasions occasionally present significant problems in Palestine in modern times. The year 1865 was commonly known among Arabic-speaking peoples of the Near East as sent el jarad, "year of the locust." The years 1892, 1899, and 1904 witnessed significant locust invasions in Palestine. But in modern times there has been nothing equal in magnitude to the great locust invasion that began in Palestine in February of 1915. This modern parallel provides valuable insight into the locust plague the prophet Joel points to as a foreshadowing of the day of the Lord. For an eyewitness account of the 1915 locust invasion of Palestine see J. D. Whiting, "Jerusalem's Locust Plague," National Geographic 28 (December 1915): 511-50. §‡† tn: Heb "eaten." This verb is repeated three times in v. 4 to emphasize the total devastation of the crops by this locust invasion. §† tn: The four Hebrew terms used in this verse are of uncertain meaning. English translations show a great deal of variation in dealing with these: (1) For אָרְבֵּה*

§‡ sn: The word drunkards has a double edge here. Those accustomed to drinking too much must now lament the unavailability of wine. It also may hint that the people in general have become religiously inebriated and are unresponsive to the Lord. They are, as it were, drunkards from a spiritual standpoint. §§† sn: Joel addresses the first of three groups particularly affected by the locust plague. In v. 5 he describes the effects on the drunkards, who no longer have a ready supply of intoxicating wine;

because the sweet wine † has been taken away †† from you. ‡

6 For a nation‡† has invaded‡† our‡† land.
There are so many of them they are too numerous to count. ‡‡‡

Their teeth are like those<sup>s</sup> of a lion;
they tear apart their prey like a lioness. ††
7 They†† have destroyed our†† vines; ††† they have turned our†† fig trees into mere splinters.
They have completely stripped off the bark†† and thrown them aside;
the††† twigs are stripped bare. ††† in vv. 11-12 he describes the effects on the farmers, who have watched their labors come to naught because of the insect infesta-no longer able to offer grain sacrifices and libations in the temple.

Heb "its incisors are those of a lioness." The sharp, cutting teeth are metonymical for the action of tearing apart and eating prey. The language is clearly hyperbolic. Neither locusts nor human invaders literally have teeth of this size. The prophet is using exaggerated and picturesque language to portray in vivid terms the enormity of the calamity. English versions vary greatly on the specifics: KJV
"cheek teeth"; ASV "jaw-teeth"; NAB "molars"; NASB, NIV, NRSV
"fangs." ††† tn: Heb "it." Throughout vv. 6-7 the Hebrew uses singular forms to describe the locust swarm, but the translation uses plural forms because several details of the text make more sense in English as if they are describing the appearance and effects of individual locusts. †† tn: Heb "my." †††† tn: Both "vines" and "fig

Once choice leafy vegetation is no longer available to them, locusts have been known to consume the bark of small tree limbs, leaving them in an exposed and vulnerable condition. It is apparently this whitened condition of limbs that Joel is referring to here. †††† sn:
The verb is feminine singular, raising a question concerning its intended antecedent. A plural verb would be expected here, the idea being that all the inhabitants of the land should grieve. Perhaps Joel is thinking specifically of the city of Jerusalem, albeit in a representative sense. The choice of the feminine singular verb form has probably been influenced to some extent by the allusion to the young window in the simile of v. 8. 18 tn: Or "a young woman" (TEV, CEV).
See the note on the phrase "husband-to-be" in the next line. 19

the Hebrew, but is supplied in the translation for smoothness.

20 sn: Heb "the husband of her youth." The woman described here may already be married, so the reference is to the death of a husband rather than a fiancé (a husband-to-be). Either way, the simile describes a painful and unexpected loss to which the national tragedy Joel is describing may be compared.

The ground is in mourning because the grain has perished.

The fresh wine has dried up;
the olive oil languishes.

wail, vinedressers, over the wheat and the barley.
For the harvest of the field has perished.

the fig tree languishes –
the pomegranate, date, and apple<sup>26</sup> as well.
In fact,<sup>27</sup> all the trees of the field have dried up.
Indeed, the joy of the people<sup>28</sup> has dried up!

There is no object present in the Hebrew text, but many translations assume "sackcloth" to be the understood object of the verb "put on."
Its absence in the Hebrew text of v. 13 is probably due to metrical considerations. The meter here is 3 + 3, and that has probably influenced the prophet's choice of words. 30 tn: Heb "for grain offer-

18 tn: Or “for.” 19 sn: The interpretation of 2:1-11 is very difficult. Four views may be mentioned here. (1) Some commentators understand this section to be describing a human invasion of Judah on the part of an ancient army. The exact identity of this army (e.g., Assyrian or Babylonian) varies among interpreters depending upon issues of dating for the book of Joel. (2) Some commentators take the section to describe an eschatological scene in which the army according to some is human, or according to others is nonhuman (i.e., angelic). (3) Some interpreters argue for taking the section to refer to the potential advent in the fall season of a severe east wind (i.e., Sirocco) that would further exacerbate the conditions of the land described in chapter one. (4) Finally, some interpreters understand the section to continue the discussion of locust invasion and drought described in chapter one, partly on the basis that there is no clear exegetical evidence in 2:1-11 to suggest a shift of referent from that of chapter one. 20 tn: The phrase “It will be” does not appear in the Hebrew, but is supplied in the translation for the sake of smoothness and style. 21 tn: Heb “darkness and gloom.” These two terms probably form a hendiadys here. This picture recalls the imagery of the supernatural darkness in Egypt during the judgments of the exodus (Exod 10:22). These terms are also frequently used as figures (metonymy of association) for calamity and divine judgment (Isa 8:22; 59:9; Jer 23:12; Zeph 1:15). Darkness is often a figure (metonymy of association) for death, dread, distress and judgment (BDB 365 s.v. חָשַׁךְ tn: Heb “a day of cloud and darkness.” 23 tc: The present translation here follows the proposed reading שָׁחַר שָׁחַר

†† tn: Heb "Like the appearance of horses [is] its appearance." sn: The fact that a locust's head resembles a miniature replica of a horse's head has often been noticed. For example, the German word for locust (Heupferd, "hay horse") and the Italian word as well (cavaletta, "little horse") are based on this similarity in appearance. ‡ tn: Heb "like the sound of." sn: The repetition of the word of comparison ("like") in vv. 4-7 should not go unnoticed. The author is comparing the locust invasion to familiar aspects of human invasion. If the preposition has its normal force here, it is similarity and not identity that is intended. In other words, locusts are being likened to human armies, but human armies are not actually present. On the other hand, this Hebrew preposition is also on occasion used to indicate exactitude, a function described by grammarians as kaph veritatis. ‡† tn: Heb "jostling" or "leaping." There is question whether this pictures chariots rumbling over the mountains (e.g., 2 Sam 6:14,16; 1 Chr 15:29; Nah 3:2) or the locusts flying - or "leaping" - over the mountains (e.g., Job 21:11); see BDB 955 s.v. כָּקַד ‡‡ tn: Heb "sound." ‡†† tn: The phrase "the noise of" does not appear in the Hebrew, but is implied by the parallelism, so it has been supplied in the translation for the sake of clarity. ‡‡† tn: Heb "people." § tn: Heb "being arrayed of battle." §† tn: Or "nations." §†† tn: Heb "before it." §‡ tn: Heb "all faces gather beauty"; or "all faces gather a glow."  §§§ tn: Heb "each warrior walks in his own course." 18 tn: Heb "they fall upon." This line has been interpreted in two different ways: (1) although they fall upon the sword, they shall not be wounded (KJV), or (2) when they "burst through" the city's defenses, they will not break ranks (RSV, NASB, NIV, NIRV). 19 tn: Heb "missile" or "javelin." This term appears to function as a synecdoche for the city's defenses as a whole (cf. NASB, NIV, TEV). Some scholars instead understand the reference to be an aqueduct by which the locusts (or armies) entered the city. 20 tn: Heb "dart about in." 21 tn: Or "they run upon its wall." 22 sn: Witnesses of locust invasions have described the visual effect of large numbers of these creatures crawling over one another on the ground. At such times the ground is said to appear to be in motion, creating a dizzying effect on some observers. The reference in v. 10 to the darkening of the sun and moon probably has to do with the obscuring of visibility due to large numbers of locusts swarming in the sky. 23 tn: Heb "before it." 24 tn: Heb "trembles." 25 tn: Heb "gather their brightness." 26 tn: Heb "the LORD" 27 tn: Heb "before his army." 28 tn: Heb "military encampment." 29 tn: Heb "very large." 30 tn: Heb "he makes his word powerful." 31 tn: Or "powerful." The vestibule was located at the entrance of the temple and the altar was located at the other end of the building. So "between the vestibule and the altar" is a merism referring to the entire structure. The priestly lament permeates the entire house of worship. †† tn: For the MT reading לְמִשְׁלַל לְמִשְׁלַל

לַע ††† tn: Heb "Why will they say?" ††† tn: The time-frame entertained by the verbs of v.18 constitutes a crux interpretum in this chapter. The Hebrew verb forms used here are preterites with vav consecutive and are most naturally understood as describing a past situation. However, some modern English versions render these verbs as futures (e.g., NIV, NASV), apparently concluding that the context requires a future reference. According to Joüon 2:363 §112.h, n.1 Ibn Ezra explained the verbs of Joel 2:18 as an extension of the so-called prophetic perfect; as such, a future fulfillment was described with a past tense as a rhetorical device lending certainty to the fulfillment. But this lacks adequate precedent and is very unlikely from a syntactical standpoint. It seems better to take the verbs in the normal past sense of the preterite. This would require a vantage point for the prophet at some time after the people had responded favorably to the Lord's call for repentance and after the Lord had shown compassion and forgiveness toward his people, but before the full realization of God's promises to restore productivity to the land. In other words, it appears from the verbs of vv. 18-19 that at the time of Joel's writing this book the events of successive waves of locust invasion and conditions of drought had almost run their course and the people had now begun to turn to the Lord.

the one from the north is best understood as having locusts in view. It is not correct to say that this reference to the enemy who came from the north excludes the possibility of a reference to locusts and must be understood as human armies. Although locust plagues usually approached Palestine from the east or southeast, the severe plague of 1915, for example, came from the northeast. <sup>s††</sup> tn: Heb "his face to the eastern sea."  these rains productive farming would not be possible, as Joel's original readers knew only too well. ‡ tn: Heb "I will restore to you the years." sn: The plural years suggests that the plague to which Joel refers was not limited to a single season. Apparently the locusts were a major problem over several successive years. One season of drought and locust invasion would have been bad enough. Several such years would have been devastating. ‡† sn: The same four terms for locust are used here as in 1:4, but in a different order. This fact creates some difficulty for the notion that the four words refer to four distinct stages of locust development. ‡‡ tn: The term this Old Testament passage, even though that experience did not exhaustively fulfill Joel's words. Some portions of Joel's prophecy have no precise counterpart in that experience. For example, there is nothing in the experience recorded in Acts 2 that exactly corre-

 Heb 1:1-2), Peter was able to point to Joel 3:1-5 as a text that was relevant to the advent of Jesus and the bestowal of the Spirit. The equative language that Peter employs ("this is that") stresses an incipient fulfillment of the Joel passage without precluding or minimizing a yet future and more exhaustive fulfillment in events associated with the return of Christ. §‡ tn: Heb "all flesh." As a term for hupheric phenomena. §§† tn: While a number of English versions render this as "saved" (e.g., NIV, NRSV, NLT), this can suggest a "spirmeans “the Lord has judged,” and the next line in v. 2 further explains this thought. The location of this valley is uncertain (cf. v. 12). Many interpreters have understood the Valley of Jehoshaphat to be the Kidron Valley, located on the east side of old Jerusalem. Since this is described as a scene of future messianic activity and judgment, many Jews and Muslims have desired to be buried in the vicinity, a fact attested to in modern times by the presence of many graves in the area. A variation of this view is mentioned by Eusebius, Onomasticon 1:10. According to this view, the Valley of Jehoshaphat is located in the Hinnom Valley, on the south side of the old city. Yet another view is held by many modern scholars, who understand the reference to this valley to be one of an idealized and nonliteral scene of judgment. † tn: Heb “I will execute judgment.” †† tn: Heb “concerning my people and my inheritance Israel.” ‡ tn: Heb “gave.” ‡† sn: Heb “and they drank.” Joel vividly refers to a situation where innocent human life has little value; its only worth is its use in somehow satisfying selfish appetites of wicked people who have control over others (cf. Amos 2:6 and 8:6). ‡‡ tn: Heb “What [are] you [doing] to me, O Tyre and Sidon?” ‡‡† tn: Or “districts.” ‡‡‡ tn: Heb “quickly, speedily, I will return your recompense on your head.” This is an idiom for retributive justice and an equitable reversal of situation. § tn: Or perhaps, “temples.” §† tn: Heb “border.” §†† tn: Heb “I will return your recompense on your head.” §‡ tn: Heb “into the hand of.” §‡† tn: Heb “the sons of Judah.” §† sn: The Sabeans were Arabian merchants who were influential along the ancient caravan routes that traveled through Arabia. It was a short knife with a curved hook at the end sharpened on the inside like a sickle. §§§ sn: This conversion of farming instruments to instruments of war is the reverse of Isa 2:4 (cf. Mic 4:3), where military weapons are transformed into tools for farming. Isaiah describes a time of kingdom blessing and prosperity, whereas Joel describes a time of eschatological conflict and judgment. 18 sn: The “weak” individual mentioned here is apparently the farmer who has little or no military prowess or prior fighting experience. Under ordinary circumstances such a person would be ill-prepared for assuming the role of a soldier. However, in the scene that Joel is describing here even the most unlikely candidate will become a participant to be reckoned with in this final conflict. 19 tn: This Hebrew verb is found only here in the OT; its meaning is uncertain. 24 sn: The immediacy of judgment upon wickedness is likened to the urgency required for a harvest that has reached its pinnacle of development. When the harvest is completely ripe, there can be no delay by the reapers in gathering the harvest. In a similar way, Joel envisions a time when human wickedness will reach such a heightened degree that there can be no further stay of divine judgment (cf. the “fullness of time” language in Gal 4:4). 25 sn: The decision referred to here is not a response on the part of the crowd, but the verdict handed out by the divine judge. 26 tn: Heb “gather in.” 27 map: For location see . 28 tn: Heb “he sounds forth his voice.” 29 tn: Or “the sky.” See the note on “sky” in 2:30.

Introduction

God Will Judge the Surrounding Nations

 from Jerusalem§† he comes bellowing.<sup>†§††</sup>

for its abundant plants and trees. See Isa 33:9; 35:2; Jer 50:19. §† sn: Loss of a land's fertility is frequently associated with judgment in the OT and ancient Near Eastern literature. §‡ tn: Traditionally, "transgressions" or "sins." The word refers to rebellion against authority and is used in the international political realm (see 1 Kgs 12:19; 2 Kgs 1:1; 3:5, 7; 8:22). There is debate over its significance in this context. Some relate the "rebellion" of the foreign nations to God's mandate to Noah ( Gen 9:5-7). This mandate is viewed as a treaty between God and humankind, whereby God holds humans accountable to populate the earth and respect his image as it is revealed in all people. While this option is a possible theological explanation of the message in light of the Old Testament as a whole, nothing in these oracles alludes to that Genesis passage. J. Barton suggests that the prophet is appealing to a common morality shared across the ancient Near East regarding the conduct of war since all of the oracles can be related to activities and atrocities committed in warfare ( Amos's Oracles against the Nations [SOTSMS], 39-61). The "transgression" then would be a violation of what all cultures would take as fundamental human decency. Some argue that the nations cited in Amos 1-2 had been members of the Davidic empire. Their crime would consist of violating the mutual agreements that all should have exhibited toward one another (cf. M. E. Polley, Amos and the Davidic Empire). This interpretation is connected to the notion that Amos envisions a reconstituted Davidic empire for Israel and the world ( 9:11-15). Ultimately, we can only speculate what lay behind Amos' thinking. He does not specify the theological foundation of his universal moral vision, but it is clear that Amos believes that all nations are responsible before the Lord for their cruelty toward other human beings. He also assumes that even those who did not know his God would recognize their inhumane treatment of others as inherently wrong. The translation "crimes" is general enough to communicate that a standard (whether human or divine) has been breached. For a survey of the possible historical events behind each oracle, see S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia).

§§† tn: Heb "Because of three violations of Damascus, even because of four." sn: The three...four style introduces each of the judgment oracles of chaps. 1-2. Based on the use of a similar formula in wisdom literature (see Prov 30:18-19, 29-31), one expects to find in each case a list of four specific violations. However, only in the eighth oracle (against Israel) does one find the expected fourfold list. Through this adaptation and alteration of the normal pattern the LORD

The pronominal object (1) refers to the decree of judgment that follows; the referent (the decree) has been specified in the translation for clarity. See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 46-47. Another option (2) is to understand the suffix as referring to the particular nation mentioned in the oracle and to translate, "I will not take him [i.e., that particular nation] back." In this case the LORD

† tn: Heb "they threshed [or "trampled down"] Gilead with sharp iron implements" (NASB similar). sn: Like threshing sledges with iron teeth. A threshing sledge was made of wooden boards embedded with sharp stones or iron teeth. As the sledge was pulled over the threshing floor the stones or iron teeth would separate the grain from the stalks. See O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 64-65. Here the threshing metaphor is used to emphasize how violently and inhumanely the Arameans (the people of Damascus) had treated the people of Gilead (located east of the Jordan River). †† tn: "Hazael's house" ("the house of Hazael") refers to the dynasty of Hazael. sn: Hazael took the throne of Aram in 843 B.C.

‡ tn: Heb "it"; the referent (the fire mentioned in the previous line) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡† sn: Ben-hadad may refer to Hazael's son and successor (2 Kgs 13:3, 24) or to an earlier king (see 1 Kgs 20), perhaps the ruler whom Hazael assassinated when he assumed power. ‡‡ sn: The bar on the city gate symbolizes the city's defenses and security. ‡‡† tn: Heb "cut off." ‡‡‡ tn: Heb "the one who sits." Some English versions take the Hebrew term in a collective sense as "inhabitants" (e.g., KJV, NKJV, NASB, NRSV). The context and the parallel in the next clause ("the one who holds the royal scepter"), however, suggest that the royal house is in view. invasion designed to expand their territory. Such atrocities, although repugnant, were not uncommon in ancient Near Eastern warfare. §† sn: Rabbah was the Ammonite capital. §†† sn: The city wall symbolizes the city's defenses and security. §†† tn: Heb "it"; the referent (the fire mentioned in the previous line) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §†† tn: Heb "with a war cry in the day of battle." 18 tn: Heb "with wind in the day of the windstorm." sn: A windstorm is a metaphor for judgment and destruction in the OT (see Isa 29:6; Jer 23:19) and ancient Near Eastern literature. 19 tn: Heb "their"; the referent (Ammon) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 20 tn: Heb "will go into exile." 21 tn: Or "princes" (KJV, NAB, NASB, NLT); TEV "officers"; CEV "leaders." 22 tn: The words "will be carried off" are supplied in the translation for clarification. 23 tn: Traditionally, "transgressions" (KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV) or "sins" (NIV). For an explanation of the atrocities outlined in this oracle as treaty violations of God's mandate to Noah in Gen 9:5-7, see the note on the word "violations" in 1:3. 24 tn: Heb "Because of three violations of Moab, even because of four." sn: On the three...four style that introduces each of the judgment oracles of chaps. 1-2 see the note on the word "four" in 1:3. 25 tn: Heb "I will not bring it [or "him"] back." The translation understands the pronominal object to refer to the decree of judgment that follows; the referent (the decree) has been specified in the translation for clarity. For another option see the note on the word "judgment" in 1:3. 26 sn: The Moabites apparently desecrated the tomb of an Edomite king and burned his bones into a calcined substance which they then used as plaster (cf. Deut 27:2, 4). See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 72. Receiving a proper burial was very important in this culture. Desecrating a tomb or a deceased individual's bones was considered an especially heinous act. 27 sn: The destruction of Moab by fire is an example of a judgment in kind – as the Moabites committed the crime of "burning," so the LORD 28 sn: Kerioth was an important Moabite city. See Jer 48:24, 41. 29 tn: Or "die" (KJV, NASB, NRSV, TEV); NAB "shall meet death." 30 tn: Or "in the tumult." This word refers to the harsh confusion of sounds that characterized an ancient battle – a mixture of war cries, shouts, shrieks of pain, clashes of weapons, etc. 31 tn: Heb "sound" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV). 32 sn: The ram's horn (used as a trumpet) was blown to signal the approaching battle. 33 tn: Heb "cut off" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV); NAB "root out"; NCV "bring to an end." 34 tn: Heb "the leader [traditionally, "judge"] from her midst." 35 tn: Heb "her"; the referent (Moab) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 36 tn: Or "princes" (KJV, NAB, NASB, NLT); TEV, CEV "leaders."

4 This is what the LORD says :
 "Because Judah has committed three covenant transgressions† – make that four!†† – I will not revoke my decree of judgment.‡
 They rejected the LORD's law;‡‡
 they did not obey his commands.
 Their false gods,‡‡ to which their fathers were loyal,‡‡‡ led them astray.

 and it will consume Jerusalem's fortresses."‡‡‡

God Will Judge Israel

 They sold the innocent§† for silver,

† tn: This is the same Hebrew term that is translated "crimes" in the previous oracles (see at 1:3). The change to "covenant transgressions" reflects the probability that the prophet is condemning the nation of Israel for violating stipulations of the Mosaic Law. †† tn: Heb "Because of three violations of Judah, even because of four." sn: On the three...four style that introduces each of the judgment oracles of chaps. 1-2 see the note on the word "four" in 1:3. ‡ tn: Heb "I will not bring it [for "him"] back." The translation understands the pronominal object to refer to the decree of judgment that follows; the referent (the decree) has been specified in the translation for clarity. For another option see the note on the word "judgment" in 1:3. ‡† tn: Or "instruction"; NCV "teachings." ‡‡ tn: Heb "lies." This may very well be a derogatory term for idols (perhaps also at Ps. 40:4 [Heb 40:5]). Elsewhere false gods are called "vanities" (Deut 32:21; 1 Kgs 16:13, 26) and a delusion (Isa 66:3). In no other prophetic passages, however, are they called "lies." The term could refer to the deceptions of false prophets (note Ezek 13:6-9; cf. Hab 2:3). See F. I. Andersen and D. N. Freedman, Amos (AB), 301-6. ‡‡† tn: Heb "after which their fathers walked." The expression "to walk after" is an idiom meaning "to be loyal to." See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 75-76. sn: Here the idolatry of the parents carried over to the children, who persisted in worshiping the idols to which their fathers were loyal. ‡‡‡ map: For the location of Jerusalem see . § tn: For this translation see the note at 2:4. §† tn: Heb "Because of three violations of Israel, even because of four." sn: On the three...four style that introduces each of the judgment oracles of chaps. 1-2 see the note on the word "four" in 1:3. Only in this last oracle against Israel does one find the list of four specific violations expected based on the use of a similar formula elsewhere in wisdom literature (see Prov 30:18-19, 29-31). This adaptation of the normal pattern indicates the LORD

§†† tn: Heb "I will not bring it [or "him"] back." The translation understands the pronominal object to refer to the decree of judgment that follows; the referent (the decree) has been specified in the translation for clarity. For another option see the note on the word "judgment" in 1:3. §† tn: Or "honest" (CEV, NLT). The Hebrew word sometimes has a moral-ethical connotation, "righteous, godly," but the parallelism (note "poor") suggests a socio-economic or legal sense here. The practice of selling debtors as slaves is in view (Exod 21:2-11; Lev 25:35-55; Deut 15:12-18) See the note at Exod 21:8 and G. C. Chirichigno, Debt-Slavery in Israel and the Ancient Near East (JSOTSUP). Probably the only "crime" the victim had committed was being unable to pay back a loan or an exorbitant interest rate on a loan. Some have suggested that this verse refers to bribery in legal proceedings: The innocent are "sold" in the sense that those in power pay off the elders or judges for favorable decisions (5:12; cf. Exod 23:6-7). §†† tn: Perhaps the expression "for a pair of sandals" indicates a relatively small price or debt. Some suggest that the sandals may have been an outward token of a more substantial purchase price. Others relate the sandals to a ritual attached to the transfer of property, signifying here that the poor would be losing their inherited family lands because of debt (Ruth 4:7; cf. Deut 25:8-10). Still others emend the Hebrew form slightly to םלגן עלם §† tn: Most scholars now understand this verb as derived from the root II גאץ שו "those who stomp on the dirt of the ground on the head of the poor." It is possible to render the line as "they trample the heads of the poor into the dust of the ground," thereby communicating that the poor are being stepped on in utter contempt (see S. M. Paul, Amos [Hermeneia], 79-80). The participial form גאץפים

מגכמ §†† tn: Heb "they turn aside the way of the destitute." Many interpreters take "way" to mean "just cause" and understand this as a direct reference to the rights of the destitute being ignored. The injustice done to the poor is certainly in view, but the statement is better taken as a word picture depicting the powerful rich pushing the "way of the poor" (i.e., their attempt to be treated justly) to the side. An even more vivid picture is given in Amos 5:12, where the rich are pictured as turning the poor away from the city gate (where legal decisions were made, and therefore where justice should be done). §§† sn: Most interpreters see some type of sexual immorality here (cf. KJV, NASB, NIV, NCV, NRSV, TEV, CEV, NLT), even though the Hebrew phrase גל הן

 pression "to hold one's own against" (or "to withstand") in Judg 2:14; 2 Kgs 10:4; Dan 8:7 (see S. M. Paul, Amos [Hermeneia], 97). Other options include "will not endure" or "will not survive." §†† tn: The tions in vv. 3-5 expect the answer, "No, of course not!" Those in v. 6 anticipate the answer, "Yes, of course they do/he is." They all draw attention to the principle of cause and effect and lay the logical foundation for the argument in vv. 7-8. Also note the progression from a general question in v. 3 to the "meetings" of two animals (v.

 4), to that of an animal and a human trap (v. 5), to a climax with the confrontation with the Lord (v. 6). Each of these meetings is disastrous. <sup>20</sup> tn: Heb "without having prey [or "food"]." <sup>21</sup> tn: Heb or "shake." <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb "is in"; NIV, NCV, NLT "comes to." <sup>24</sup> tn: Heb "has the LORD" <sup>25</sup> sn: The roar of the lion is here a metaphor for impending judgment (see 1:2; cf. 3:4, 12). Verses 7-8 justify Amos' prophetic ministry and message of warning and judgment. The people should expect a prophetic message prior to divine action. <sup>26</sup> sn: Who can refuse to prophesy? When a message is revealed, the prophet must speak, and the news of impending judgment should cause people to fear. <sup>27</sup> tn: Heb "on" or "over" (also later in this verse).

“Gather on the hills around Samaria!† Observe the many acts of violence†† taking place within the city,‡
 the oppressive deeds‡‡ occurring in it.”‡‡ 10 “They do not know how to do what is right.” (The LORD is speaking.)
 “They store up‡‡‡ the spoils of destructive violence‡‡‡ in their fortresses.
 11 Therefore,” says the sovereign LORD, “an enemy will encircle the land.”§
 He will take away your power,§† your fortresses will be looted.”
 12 This is what the LORD says:
 “Just as a shepherd salvages from the lion’s mouth a couple of leg bones or a piece of an ear, so the Israelites who live in Samaria will be salvaged.
§††
 They will be left with just a corner of a bed,§†

† sn: Samaria might refer here both to the region and to the capital city (later known as Sebaste). On the other hand, there actually are hills that surround the mound upon which the city was built. The implication is that the nations can come and sit and see from those hills the sin of the capital city and its judgment. map: For location of the city see . †† tn: The Hebrew noun carries the nuance of “panic” or “confusion.” Here it refers metonymically to the violent deeds that terrorize the oppressed. ‡ tn: Heb “in her midst” (so NAB, NASB); NIV “among her people.” ‡† tn: The translation assumes the form is an abstract plural (see Job 35:9; Eccl 4:1). Another option is to understand the form as a substantival passive participle and translate, “the oppressed” (so KJV). ‡‡ tn: Heb “within her.” ‡‡† tn: Heb “those who.” ‡‡‡ tn: Heb “violence and destruction.” The expression “violence and destruction” stand metonymically for the goods the oppressors have accumulated by their unjust actions. § tc: The MT reads “an enemy and around the land.” It is also possible to take the MT as an exclamation (“an enemy, and all about the land!”; see S. M. Paul, Amos [Hermeneia], 118; NJPS; cf. NLT). Most scholars and versions emend the text to כֹּסֶד:

§† tn: Heb “He will bring down your power from you.” Some emend the text to read “Your power will be brought down from you.” The shift, however, from an active to a passive sense also appears at 3:14 (“I will destroy Bethel’s altars. The horns of the altar will be cut off.”) The pronouns (“your...you”) are feminine singular, indicating that the personified city of Samaria is addressed here. Samaria’s “power” here is her defenses and/or wealth. §†† sn: The verb translated salvaged, though often used in a positive sense of deliverance from harm, is here employed in a sarcastic manner. A shepherd would attempt to salvage part of an animal to prove that a predator had indeed killed it. In this way he could prove that he had not stolen the missing animal and absolve himself from any responsibility to repay the owner (see Exod 22:12-13). §† tn: Heb “with a corner of a bed.” §†† tn: The meaning of the Hebrew word קַרְנֵי הַמֶּטֶד

§† tn: Or “testify against.” §† tn: Heb “house.” §§† tn: These words are spoken to either the unidentified heralds addressed at the beginning of v. 9, or to the Egyptians and Philistines (see v. 9b). Another possibility is that one is not to look for a specific addressee but rather appreciate the command simply as a rhetorical device to grab the attention of the listeners and readers of the prophetic message. §§† tn: Traditionally, “the God of hosts.” §§§ tn: Heb “in the day.” 18 tn: Heb “his.” With the referent “Israel” here, this amounts to a collective singular. 19 tn: Traditionally, “transgressions, sins,” but see the note on the word “crimes” in 1:3. 20 tn: Heb “punish” (so NASB, NRSV). 21 map: For location see . 22 sn: The horns of an ancient altar projected upwards from the four corners and resembled an animal’s horns in appearance. Fugitives could seek asylum by grabbing hold of these corners (see Exod 21:14; 1 Kgs 1:50; 2:28). When the altar’s horns were cut off, there would be no place of asylum left for the LORD. 23 tn: Heb “the winter house along with the summer house.” sn: Like kings, many in Israel’s wealthy class owned both winter and summer houses (cf. 1 Kgs 21:1, 18; Jer 36:22). For a discussion of archaeological evidence relating to these structures, see P. King, Amos, Hosea, Micah, 64-65. 24 tn: Heb “houses of ivory.” These houses were not made of ivory, but they had ivory panels and furniture decorated with ivory inlays. See P. King, Amos, Hosea, Micah, 139-48. 25 tn: Or “many,” cf. NAB “their many rooms.” 26 tn: The translation assumes the form is from the Hebrew verb נָקַד

27 sn: The expression cows of Bashan is used by the prophet to address the wealthy women of Samaria, who demand that their husbands satisfy their cravings. The derogatory language perhaps suggests that they, like the livestock of Bashan, were well fed, ironically in preparation for the coming slaughter. This phrase is sometimes cited to critique the book’s view of women. 28 tn: Heb “the ones who” (three times in this verse). 29 tn: Heb “their.” 30 sn: Some commentators relate this scene to the description of the marzeah feast of 6:3-6, in which drinking played a prominent part (see the note at 6:6). 31 tn: Heb “swears by his holiness.” sn: The message that follows is an unconditional oath, the fulfillment of which is just as certain as the LORD. 32 tn: Heb “Look, certainly days are coming upon you”; NRSV “the time is surely coming upon you.” 33 tn: Heb “one will carry you away”; NASB “they will take you away.”

<sup>34</sup> tn: The meaning of the Hebrew word translated "baskets" is uncertain. The translation follows the suggestion of S. M. Paul ( Amos [Hermeneia], 128), who discusses the various options (130-32): "shields" (cf. NEB); "ropes"; "thorns," which leads to the most favored interpretation, "hooks" (cf. NASB "meat hooks"; NIV, NRSV "hooks"); "baskets," and (derived from "baskets") "boats." Against the latter, it is unlikely that Amos envisioned a deportation by boat for the inhabitants of Samaria! See also the note on the expression "fishermen's pots" later in this verse. † tn: Or "your children"; KJV "your posterity." †† tn: The meaning of the Hebrew expression translated "in fishermen's pots" is uncertain. The translation follows that of S. M. Paul ( Amos [Hermeneia], 128), who discusses the various options (132-33): "thorns," understood by most modern interpreters to mean (by extension) "fishhooks" (cf. NASB, NIV, NRSV); "boats," but as mentioned in the previous note on the word "baskets," a deportation of the Samaritans by boat is geographically unlikely; and "pots," referring to a container used for packing fish (cf. NEB "fish-baskets"). Paul (p. 134) argues that the imagery comes from the ancient fishing industry. When hauled away into exile, the women of Samaria will be like fish packed and transported to market. sn: The imagery of catching fish in connection with the captivity of Israel is also found in Jer 16:16 and Hab 1:14.

‡ tn: Heb "and [through the] breaches you will go out, each straight ahead." †† tn: The Hiphil verb form has no object. It may be intransitive (F. I. Andersen and D. N. Freedman, Amos [AB], 425), though many emend it to a Hophal. ‡† tn: The meaning of this word is unclear. Many understand it as a place name, though such a location is not known. Some (e.g., H. W. Wolff, Joel and Amos [Hermeneia], 204) emend to "Hermon" or to similarly written words, such as "the dung heap" (NEB, NJPS), "the garbage dump" (NCV), or "the fortress" (cf. NLT "your fortresses"). ††† sn: Bethel and Gilgal were important formal worship centers because of their importance in Israel's history. Here the Lord ironically urges the people to visit these places so they can increase their sin against him. Their formal worship, because it was not accompanied by social justice, only made them more guilty in God's sight by adding hypocrisy to their list of sins. Obviously, theirs was a twisted view of the Lord. They worshiped a god of their own creation in order to satisfy their religious impulses (see 4:5: "For you love to do this"). Note that none of the rituals listed in 4:4-5 have to do with sin. map: For location see . ††† tn: The Hebrew word translated "rebel" (also in the following line) could very well refer here to Israel's violations of their covenant with God (see also the term "crimes" in 1:3 [with note] and the phrase "covenant transgressions" in 2:4 [with note]; 3:14). ‡ sn: See the note on Bethel earlier in this verse. ‡† tn: Or "for." ‡†† tn: Or "for." ‡† sn: For the background of the thank offering of bread made with yeast, see Lev 7:13. ‡†† tn: Heb "proclaim voluntary offerings, announce." ‡† tn: The Hebrew construction is emphatic (pronoun + verb). It underscores the stark contrast between the judgments that the Lord had been sending with the God of blessing Israel was celebrating in its worship ( 4:4-5). ‡† tn: Heb "But I gave to you cleanness of teeth in all your cities, and lack of food in all your places." The phrase "cleanness of teeth" is a vivid way of picturing the famine Israel experienced. ‡†† sn: Rain...three months before the harvest refers to the rains of late March-early April. ‡†† tn: Heb "portion"; KJV, ASV "piece"; NASB "part." The same word occurs a second time later in this verse. <sup>‡†††</sup> tn: The words "people from" are supplied in the translation for clarification. <sup>18</sup> tn: Heb "to drink." <sup>19</sup> tn: Or "were not satisfied." <sup>20</sup> tn: Heb "you." By metonymy the crops belonging to these people are meant. See the remainder of this verse, which describes the agricultural devastation caused by locusts. <sup>21</sup> tn: The Hiphil infinitive construct is taken adverbially ("kept") and connected to the activity of the locusts (NJPS). It also could be taken with the preceding sentence and related to the Lord's interventions ("I kept destroying," cf. NEB, NJB, NIV, NRSV), or it could be understood substantively in construct with the following nouns ("Locusts devoured your many orchards," cf. NASB; cf. also KJV, NKJV). <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "gardens." <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb "in the manner [or "way"] of Egypt." <sup>24</sup> tn: Heb "of your camps [or "armies"]." <sup>25</sup> tn: Several English versions substitute the first person pronoun ("I") here for stylistic reasons (e.g., NIV, NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT). <sup>26</sup> tn: Heb "like God's overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah."  hymn or three distinct pieces deliberately placed in each context for particular effect. ‡ tn: Or "declares" (NAB, NASB). ‡† tn: Or translation in keeping with the relative sizes of the armed contingents sent out by each. It is also possible that this line is speaking of the same city of the previous line. In other words, the contingent sent by that one city would have suffered a ninety-nine percent casualty loss. ‡† tn: The word "soldiers" is supplied in the translation the Lord, but not at Bethel (the name Bethel means "the house of God" in Hebrew). map: For location see . 18 tn: Heb "cross over."

 sn: To worship at Beer Sheba, northern worshipers had to journey down (i.e., cross the border) between Israel and Judah. Apparently, the popular religion of Israel for some included pilgrimage to holy sites in the South. 19 tn: Heb "For Gilgal." By metonymy the place name "Gilgal" is used instead of referring directly to the inhabitants. The words "the people of" are supplied in the translation for clarification. 20 tn: In the Hebrew text the statement is emphasized by sound play. The name "Gilgal" sounds like the verb גָּלַגַּל

גָּלַגַּל יִגְלַהּ ג

21 tn: Heb "disaster," or "nothing"; NIV "Bethel will be reduced to nothing." sn: Again there is irony. The name Bethel means "house of God" in Hebrew. How surprising and tragic that Bethel, the "house of God" where Jacob received the inheritance given to Abraham, would be overrun by disaster. 22 tn: Heb "rush." The verb depicts swift movement. 23 sn: Here Joseph (= Ephraim and Manasseh), as the most prominent of the Israelite tribes, represents the entire northern kingdom. 24 tn: Heb "house." 25 tn: Heb "it"; the referent (the fire mentioned in the previous line) has been supplied in the translation for clarity. 26 tn: Heb "to/for Bethel." The translation assumes that the preposition indicates advantage, "on behalf of." Another option is to take the preposition as vocative, "O Bethel." 27 tn: Heb "Those who"; the referent (the Israelites) has been specified in the translation for clarity. In light of vv. 11-13, it is also possible that the words are directed at a more limited group within the nation – those with social and economic power. 28 tn: There is an interesting wordplay here with the verb הִפְךָ

<sup>8</sup> (But there is one who made the constellations Pleiades and Orion; he can turn the darkness into morning and daylight† into night. He summons the water of the seas and pours it out on the earth's surface. The LORD is his name!‡)

See the note on the word "crimes" in 1:3 and on the phrase "covenant violations" in 2:4. §‡† tn: Heb "Those who who." §† tn: Heb "turn aside." They "turn aside" the needy by denying them the justice they deserve at the city gate (where legal decisions were made, and therefore where justice should be done). §‡ sn: Legal disputes were resolved in the city gate, where the town elders met. §§† tn: Or "the wise"; or "the prudent." Another option is to translate "the successful, prosperous" and understand this as a reference to the rich oppressors. See G. V. Smith, Amos, 169-70. In this case the following verb will also have a different nuance, that is, the wealthy remain silent before the abuses they perpetuate. See the note on the verb translated "keeps quiet" later in this verse. §§‡ tn: Or "moans, laments," from a homonymic verbal root. If the rich oppressors are in view, then the verb (whether translated "will be silenced" or "will lament") describes the result of God's judgment upon them. See G. V. Smith, Amos, 170.

<sup>14</sup> Seek good and not evil so you can live! Then the LORD, the God who commands armies, just might be with you, as you claim he is.
 "In all the squares there will be wailing, in all the streets they will mourn the dead. <sup>25</sup> They will tell the field workers<sup>26</sup> to lament and the professional mourners<sup>27</sup> to wail.
<sup>17</sup> In all the vineyards there will be wailing, for I will pass through<sup>28</sup> your midst," says the LORD.

The Lord Demands Justice

<sup>18</sup> Woe<sup>29</sup> to those who wish for the day of the LORD Why do you want the LORD's day of judgment to come? It will bring darkness, not light.
<sup>19</sup> Disaster will be inescapable, <sup>30</sup> as if a man ran from a lion only to meet a bear, then escaped<sup>31</sup> into a house,

§§§ tn: If this is a judgment announcement against the rich, then the Hebrew phrase נָקַע בֵּיתוֹ

<sup>18</sup> tn: Heb "set up, establish." In the ancient Near East it was the responsibility especially of the king to establish justice. Here the prophet extends that demand to local leaders and to the nation as a whole (cf. 5:24). <sup>19</sup> sn: Legal disputes were resolved in the city gate (see the note in v. 12). This repetition of this phrase serves to highlight a deliberate contrast to the injustices cited in vv. 11-13. <sup>20</sup> tn: Or "will show favor to." <sup>21</sup> tn: Or "the remnant of" (KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV); CEV "what's left of your people." <sup>22</sup> sn: Joseph (= Ephraim and Manasseh), as the most prominent of the Israelite tribes, represents the entire northern kingdom. <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb "Therefore." This logical connector relates back to the accusation of vv. 10-13, not to the parenthetical call to repentance in vv. 14-15. To indicate this clearly, the phrase "Because of Israel's sins" is used in the translation. <sup>24</sup> tn: Or "the Lord." The Hebrew term translated "sovereign One" here is אֱלֹהֵי הוֹשֵׁעַ <sup>25</sup> tn: Heb "they will say, 'Ah! Ah!'" The Hebrew term הוֹשֵׁעַ

See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 180. <sup>28</sup> sn: The expression pass through your midst alludes to Exod 12:12, where the LORD

These verses are full of vivid descriptions of the Lord's total rejection of Israelite worship. In the first half of this verse two verbs are used together for emphasis. Here the verb alludes to the sense of smell, a fitting observation since offerings would have been burned on the altar ideally to provide a sweet aroma to God (see, e.g., Lev 1:9, 13, 17; Num 29:36). Other senses that are mentioned include sight and hearing in vv. 22-23. ‡† tn: Heb "burnt offerings and your grain offerings." ‡†† tn: Heb "Peace offering[s], your fattened calves, I will not look at." ‡††† tn: In this verse the second person suffixes are singular and not plural like they are in vv. 21-22 and vv. 25-27. Some have suggested that perhaps a specific individual or group within the nation is in view. ‡††† tn: The Hebrew word probably refers to "harps" (NASB, NIV, NRSV) or "lutes" (NEB). § tn: Traditionally, "righteousness." §† tn: Heb "Did you bring me...?" 18 tn: Heb "house."
 19 tn: Heb "comes to them." 20 tn: The words "They say to the people" are interpretive and supplied in the translation for clarification. The translation understands v. 2 as the boastful words, which the leaders (described in v. 1) spoke to those who came to them (v. 1b). Some interpret v. 2 differently, understanding the words as directed to the leaders by the prophet. Verse 2b would then be translated: "Are you (i.e., Israel and Judah) better than these kingdoms (i.e., Calneh, etc.)? Is your border larger than their border?" (This reading requires an emendation of the Hebrew text toward the end of the verse.) In this case the verse is a reminder to Judah/Israel that they are not superior to other nations, which have already fallen victim to military conquest. Consequently Judah/Israel should not expect to escape the same fate. Following this line of interpretation, some take v. 2 as a later addition since the Assyrians under Tiglath-pileser III conquered Calneh, Hamath, and Gath after the time of Amos' ministry. However, this conclusion is not necessary since the kingdoms mentioned here had suffered military setbacks prior to Amos' time as well. See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 201-4. 21 tn: Or "Great Hamath" (cf. NIV); or "Hamath the great" (cf. KJV, NAB, NASB, NRSV); the word "rabbah" means "great" in Hebrew. 22 tn: Heb "to these," referring to Judah and Israel (see v. 1a). 23 tn: Both rhetorical questions in this verse expect the answer "no." If these words do come from the leaders, then this verse underscores their self-delusion of power (compare 6:13). The prophet had no such mistaken sense of national grandeur ( 7:2, 5). 24 tn: Heb "those who push away a day of disaster." 25 tn: Heb "you bring near a seat of violence."  individuals, in which case one could translate, "When their close relatives and the ones who will burn the corpses pick up..." The meaning of the form translated "the ones who burn the corpses" is uncertain. Another option is to translate, "the ones who prepare the corpses for burial" (NASB "undertaker"; cf. also CEV). See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 215-16. §‡ tn: This verse is notoriously difficult to interpret. The Hebrew text literally reads, "And he will lift him their morally irrational behavior. <sup>18</sup> tn: Heb "those who rejoice over Lo-Debar." sn: Lo-Debar was located across the Jordan River in Gilead, which the Israelite army had conquered. However, there is stinging irony here, for in Hebrew the name Lo-Debar means "nothing." In reality Israel was happy over nothing of lasting consequence. <sup>19</sup> sn: Karnaim was also located across the Jordan River.

 The name in Hebrew means "double horned." Since an animal's horn was a symbol of strength (see Deut 33:17), the Israelites boasted in this victory over a town whose very name symbolized military pow-reign of Jeroboam II. <sup>25</sup> tn: Heb "behold" or "look." <sup>26</sup> sn: The

§§‡ map: For location see . §§§ tn: The direct object of the verb translated “sent” is elided in the Hebrew text. The words “this message” are supplied in the translation for clarity and for stylistic reasons. 18 tn: Heb “in the middle of the house of Israel.” 19 tn: Heb “words.” 20 tn: Or “for.” 21 tn: See the note on the word “exile” in 5:5. 22 tn: Traditionally, “seer.” The word is a synonym for “prophet,” though it may carry a derogatory tone on the lips of Amaziah. 23 tn: Heb “Eat bread there.” 24 map: For location see . 25 tn: Heb “for it is a temple of a king and it is a royal house.” It is possible that the phrase “royal house” refers to a temple rather than a palace. See S. M. Paul, Amos (Hermeneia), 243. 26 tn: Heb “replied and said.” The phrase “and said” is pleonastic (redundant) and has not been included in the translation. 27 tn: Heb “I was not a prophet nor was I the son of a prophet.” The phrase “son of a prophet” refers to one who was trained in a prophetic guild. Since there is no equative verb present in the Hebrew text, another option is to translate with the present tense, “I am not a prophet by profession.” In this case Amos, though now carrying out a prophetic ministry (v. 15), denies any official or professional prophetic status. Modern English versions are divided about whether to understand the past (JB, NIV, NKJV) or present tense (NASB, NEB, NRSV, NJPS) here. 28 tn: Heb “for.” 29 tn: Heb “gashed”; or “pierced.” sn: For a discussion of the agricultural background, see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 128-29. 30 sn: It is possible that herdsman agreed to care for sycamore fig trees in exchange for grazing rights. See P. King, Amos, Hosea, Micah, 116-17. Since these trees do not grow around Tekoa but rather in the lowlands, another option is that Amos owned other property outside his hometown. In this case, this verse demonstrates his relative wealth and is his response to Amaziah; he did not depend on prophecy as a profession (v. 13). 31 tn: Heb “from [following] after.” 32 tn: Heb “and the LORD” 33 tn: The verb, which literally means “to drip,” appears to be a synonym of “to prophesy,” but it might carry a derogatory tone here, perhaps alluding to the impassioned, frenzied way in which prophets sometimes delivered their messages. If so, one could translate, “to drivel; to foam at the mouth” (see HALOT 694 s.v. דָּגַדַּג 34 tn: Heb “in the city,” that is, “in public.” 35 tn: Heb “will fall

By using a smaller than standard ephah and a heavier than standard shekel, these merchants were able to increase their profit (“sell less for a higher price”) by cheating the buyer. §§‡ tn: Heb “and to cheat with deceptive scales”; NASB, NIV “dishonest scales”; NRSV “false balances.” sn: Rigged scales may refer to bending the crossbar or shifting the center point of the scales to make the amount weighed appear heavier than it actually was, thus cheating the buyer. §§§ tn: Heb “to buy the poor for silver.” sn: The expression trade silver for the poor refers to the slave trade. 18 tn: See the note on the word “sandals” in 2:6. 19 tn: Heb “The chaff of the grain we will sell.”

The rhetorical questions have been converted to affirmative statements in the translation for clarity. 31 tn: Heb “in a day of light.” 32 tn: Heb “mourning.” 33 tn: Heb “I will place sackcloth on all waists.” sn: Mourners wore sackcloth (funeral clothes) as an outward expression of grief. 34 tn: Heb “and make every head bald.” This could be understood in a variety of ways, while the ritual act of mourning typically involved shaving the head (although occasionally the hair could be torn out as a sign of mourning). sn: Shaving the head or tearing out one’s hair was a ritual act of mourning. See the comment at 8:8. sn: Though Israel was God’s special covenant people (see 3:2a), the Lord emphasizes they are not inherently superior to the other nations subject to his sovereign rule. † sn: Caphtor may refer to the island of Crete. †† tn: The second half of v. 7 is also phrased as a rhetorical question in the Hebrew text, “Did I not bring Israel up from the land of Egypt, and the Philistines from Caphtor, and Aram from Kir?” The translation converts the rhetorical question into an affirmation for clarity. ‡ tn: Heb “the eyes of the sovereign LORD” ‡† tn: Or “kingdom.” ‡‡ tn: Heb “house” (also in the following verse). ‡‡† tn: Heb “like being shaken with a sieve, and a pebble does not fall to the ground.” The meaning of the Hebrew word צָרוּר

Others have suggested that the term refers to Jerusalem, while still others argue that it should be repointed to read “Sukkoth,” a garrison town in Transjordan. Its reconstruction would symbolize the rebirth of the Davidic empire and its return to power (e.g., M. E. Polley, Amos and the Davidic Empire, 71-74). § tc: The MT reads a third feminine plural suffix, which could refer to the two kingdoms (Judah and Israel) or, more literally, to the breaches in the walls of the cities that are mentioned in v. 4 (cf. 4:3). See 2 Sam 12:28. sn: This verse envisions a new era of Israelite rule, perhaps patterned after David’s imperialistic successes (see 2 Sam 8-10). At the same time, however, the verse does not specify how this rule is to be accomplished. Note that the book ends with a description of peace and abundance, and its final reference to God (v. 15) does not include the epithet “the Lord who commands armies,” which has militaristic overtones. This is quite a different scene than what the book began with: nations at war and standing under the judgment of God. §‡ tn: Heb “behold” or “look.” §§† tn: Heb “the days are.” §§‡ sn: The plowman will catch up to the reaper. † sn: The date of the book of Obadiah is very difficult to determine. Since there is no direct indication of chronological setting clearly suggested by the book itself, and since the historical identity of the author is uncertain as well, a possible date for the book can be arrived at only on the basis of internal evidence. When did the hostile actions of Edom against Judah that are described in this book take place? Many nineteenth-century scholars linked the events of the book to a historical note found in 2 Kgs 8:20 (cf. 2 Chr 21:16-17): "In [Jehoram's] days Edom rebelled from under the hand of Judah and established a king over themselves." If this is the backdrop against which Obadiah should be read, it would suggest a ninth-century B.C.

The name Edom derives from a Hebrew root that means "red." Edom was located to the south of the Dead Sea in an area with numerous rocky crags that provided ideal military advantages for protection. Much of the sandstone of this area has a reddish color. The Edomites were descendants of Esau, the brother of Jacob ( Gen 25:19-26).

God's Judgment on Edom | Edom's Approaching Destruction

We have heard a report from the LORD .
An envoy was sent among the nations, saying, ‡
"Arise! Let us make war against Edom!" ‡ 2 The LORD says, ‡† "Look ! I will‡†† make you a weak nation; ‡† you will be greatly despised!
3 Your presumptuous heart‡†† has deceived you – you who reside in the safety of the rocky cliffs, ‡† whose home is high in the mountains. ‡†
You think to yourself, ‡††
'No one can ‡†† bring me down to the ground!' <sup>‡†††</sup>
4 Even if you were to soar high like an eagle, <sup>18</sup>

‡†† tn: Although the word "saying" is not in the Hebrew text, it has been supplied in the translation because what follows seems to be the content of the envoy's message. Cf. ASV, NASB, NCV, all of which supply "saying"; NIV, NLT "to say." ‡ tn: Heb "Arise, and let us arise against her in battle!" The term "Edom" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation to specify the otherwise ambiguous referent of the term "her." ‡† tn: The introductory phrase "the LORD

‡†† tn: The Hebrew perfect verb form used here usually describes past events. However, here and several times in the following verses it is best understood as portraying certain fulfillment of events that at the time of writing were still future. It is the perfect of certitude. See GKC 312-13 §106. n; Joüon 2:363 §112.h. ‡† sn: Heb "I will make you small among the nations" (so NAB, NASB, NIV); NRSV "least among the nations"; NCV "the smallest of nations." ‡†† tn: Heb "the presumption of your heart"; NAB, NIV "the pride of your heart"; NASB "arrogance of your heart." ‡† tn: Heb "in the concealed places of the rock"; KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV "in the clefts of the rock"; NCV "the hollow places of the cliff"; CEV "a mountain fortress." sn: The word rock in Hebrew ( צלע

even if you† were to make your nest among the stars, I can bring you down even from there !” says the LORD.

† tc: The present translation follows the reading † תשימ

†† sn: Obadiah uses two illustrations to show the totality of Edom’s approaching destruction. Both robbers and harvesters would have left at least something behind. Such will not be the case, however, with the calamity that is about to befall Edom. A virtually identical saying appears in Jer 49:9-10. ‡ tn: Heb “If thieves came to you, or if plunderers of the night” (NRSV similar). The repetition here adds rhetorical emphasis. ‡† tn: Heb “Would they not have stolen only their sufficiency?” The rhetorical question is used to make an emphatic assertion, which is perhaps best represented by the indicative form in the translation. ‡‡ tn: Heb “If grape pickers came to you.” The phrase “to harvest your vineyards” does not appear in the Hebrew, but is supplied in the translation to clarify the point of the entire simile which is assumed. ‡‡† tn: Heb “Would they not have left some gleanings?” The rhetorical question makes an emphatic assertion, which for the sake of clarity is represented by the indicative form in the translation. The implied answer to these rhetorical questions is “yes.” The fact that something would have remained after the imagined acts of theft or harvest stands in stark contrast to the totality of Edom’s destruction as predicted by Obadiah. Edom will be so decimated as a result of God’s judgment that nothing at all will be left sn: According to the Mosaic law, harvesters were required to leave some grain behind in the fields for the poor ( Lev 19:9; 23:22; see also Ruth 2); there was a similar practice with grapes and olives ( Lev 19:10; Deut 24:21). Regarding gleanings left behind from grapes, see Judg 8:2; Jer 6:9; 49:9; Mic 7:1. ‡‡‡ tn: Heb “O how you will be cut off.” This emotional interjection functions rhetorically as the prophet’s announcement of judgment on Edom. In Hebrew this statement actually appears between the first and second metaphors, that is, in the middle of this verse. As the point of the comparison, one would expect it to follow both of the two metaphors; however, Obadiah interrupts his own sentence to interject his emphatic exclamation that cannot wait until the end of the sentence. This emphatic sentence structure is eloquent in Hebrew but awkward in English. Since this emphatic assertion is the point of his comparison, it appears at the end of the sentence in this translation, where one normally expects to find the concluding point of a metaphorical comparison. § tn: Heb “Esau.” The name Esau here is a synecdoche of part for whole referring to the Edomites. Cf. “Jacob” in v. 10, where the meaning is “Israelites.” §† tn: Heb “How Esau will be searched!”; NAB “How they search Esau.” The Hebrew verb §† שׁוּר

§†† tn: Heb “his” (so KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV); this is singular agreeing with “Esau” in the previous line. §† tn: Heb “searched out” (so NASB, NRSV); NIV “pillaged”; TEV “looted”; NLT “found and taken.” This pictures the violent action of conquering warriors ransacking the city in order to loot and plunder its valuables. §†† tn: Heb “All the men of your covenant”; KJV, ASV “the men of thy confederacy.” In Hebrew “they will send you unto the border” and “all the men of your covenant” appear in two separate poetic lines (cf. NAB “To the border they drive you – all your allies”). Since the second is a noun clause functioning as the subject of the first clause, the two are rendered as a single sentence in the translation. §† tn: Heb “send”; NASB “send you forth”; NAB “drive”; NIV “force.” §† tn: Heb “to the border” (so NASB, NIV, NRSV). §§† tn: Heb “the men of your peace.” This expression refers to a political/military alliance or covenant of friendship. §§† tn: Heb “your bread,” which makes little sense in the context. The Hebrew word can be revocalized to read “those who eat bread with you,” i.e., “your friends.” Cf. KJV “they that eat thy bread”; NIV “those who eat your bread”; TEV “Those friends who ate with you.” §§§ tn: Heb “set a trap” (so NIV, NRSV). The meaning of the Hebrew word §§§ קָוַר

For the sake of clarity this has been represented by the emphatic indicative in the translation. 22 tn: Heb “understanding”; NIV “men of understanding.” This undoubtedly refers to members of the royal court who offered political and military advice to the Edomite kings. In the ancient Near East, such men of wisdom were often associated with divination and occultic practices (cf. Isa 3:3, 47:10, 13). The Edomites were also renown in the ancient Near East as a center of traditional sagacity and wisdom; perhaps that is referred to here (cf. Jer 49:7). 23 tn: Heb “and understanding from the mountain of Esau.” The phrase “I will remove the men of...” does not appear in the Hebrew but is supplied in the translation for the sake of clarity and smoothness. Here “understanding” is a synecdoche of part for whole; the faculty of understanding is put for the wise men who possess it. 24 sn: Teman, like Sela, was a prominent city of Edom. The name Teman is derived from the name of a grandson of Esau (cf. Gen 36:11). Here it is a synecdoche of part for whole, standing for all of Edom. 25 tn: The Hebrew word used here ( <sup>25</sup> וְהָרַגְתָּ )

26 tn: Heb “a man,” meaning “every single person” here; cf. KJV “every one.” 27 tn: Heb “cut off” (so KJV, NASB, NRSV); NIV, NLT “cut down”; CEV “wiped out.” 28 tn: Heb “from.” The preposition is used here with a causal sense. 29 tn: Heb “because of the slaughter and because of the violence.” These two expressions form a hendiadys meaning “because of the violent slaughter.” Traditional understanding connects the first phrase “because of the slaughter” with the end of v. 9 (cf. KJV, NASB, NIV, NLT). It is preferable, however, to regard it as parallel to the reference to violence at the beginning of v. 11. Both the parallel linguistic structure of the two phrases and the metrical structure of the verse favor connecting this phrase with the beginning of v. 10 (cf. NRSV, TEV). 30 tn: Heb “the violence of your brother.” The genitive construction is to be understood as an objective genitive. The meaning is not that Jacob has perpetrated violence (= subjective

The Hebrew word is somewhat ambiguous here. This word also appears in v. 13, where it clearly refers to wealth. ‡† tc: The present translation follows the Qere which reads the plural ("gates") rather than the singular. ‡‡ sn: Casting lots seems to be a way of deciding who would gain control over material possessions and enslaved peoples following a military victory. ‡‡‡ map: For location see . ‡‡‡ tn: Heb "like one from them"; NASB "You too were as one of them." § tn: In vv. 12-14 there are eight prohibitions which summarize the nature of the Lord's complaint against Edom. Each prohibition alludes to something that Edom did to Judah that should not have been done by one "brother" to another. It is because of these violations that the Lord has initiated judgment against Edom. In the Hebrew text these prohibitions are expressed by לֹא

You should not have looted<sup>19</sup> their wealth when they endured distress. <sup>20</sup>

<sup>14</sup> You should not have stood at the fork in the road<sup>21</sup> to slaughter<sup>22</sup> those trying to escape. <sup>23</sup> You should not have captured their refugees when they suffered adversity. <sup>24</sup>

The term "gate" here functions as a synecdoche for the city as a whole, which the Edomites plundered. §§‡ tn: Heb "in the day of their distress." The phrase is used three times in this verse; the Hebrew word translated "distress" ( דַּיָּרָא

<sup>26</sup> tn: Heb "near" (so KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT); NCV "is coming soon." <sup>27</sup> sn: God's judgment would not be confined to Edom. Edom would certainly be punished in just measure for its wrongdoing, but "the day of the Lord" would also encompass judgment of the nations (v. 15). <sup>28</sup> tn: Heb "your deed will return on your own head." Verses 15 and 16 provide an example of ironic reversal, whereby the tables are turned and poetic justice is served. This is a motif that is common in prophetic oracles against foreign nations. <sup>29</sup> tn: The identification of the referent of "you" in v. 16a is uncertain. There are three major options: (1) On the surface, it would appear to be Edom, which is addressed in v. 15b and throughout the prophecy. However, when Edom is addressed, second person singular forms are normally used in the Hebrew. In v. 16a the Hebrew verb "you drank" is a plural form שָׁתוּ

30 sn:
 This reference to drinking portrays the profane activities of those who had violated Jerusalem’s sanctity. The following reference to drinking on the part of the nations portrays God’s judgment upon them. They will drink, as it were, from the cup of divine retribution.
 † sn: The judgment is compared here to intoxicating wine, which the nations are forced to keep drinking (v. 16). Just as an intoxicating beverage eventually causes the one drinking it to become disoriented and to stagger, so God’s judgment would cause the panic-stricken nations to stumble around in confusion. This extended metaphor is paralleled in Jer 49:12 which describes God’s imminent judgment on Edom, “If even those who did not deserve to drink from the cup of my wrath have to drink from it, do you think you will go unpun-ished? You will not go unpunished, but you also will certainly drink from the cup of my wrath.” There are numerous parallels between Obadiah and the oracle against Edom in Jer 49:1-22, so perhaps the latter should be used to help understand the enigmatic metaphor here in v. 16. †† tn: Heb “will be a fugitive.” This is a collective singular. Cf. NCV “some will escape the judgment.” ‡ tn: Heb

In some cultures the procedure for "casting lots" is to "draw straws" so that the person who receives the short straw is chosen. In other situations a colored stone or a designated playing card might be picked at random. In Jonah's case, small stones were probably used. ‡21 sn: In the ancient Near East, casting lots was a custom used to try to receive a revelation from the gods about a particular situation. The Phoenician sailors here cried out to their gods and cast lots in the hope that one of their gods might reveal the identity of the person with whom he was angry. † tn: Heb "a three-day walk." The term "required" is supplied in the translation for the sake of smoothness and clarity. sn: Required three days to walk through it. Although this phrase is one of the several indications in the book of Jonah of Nineveh's impressive size, interpreters are not precisely sure what "a three-day walk" means. In light of the existing archaeological remains, the phrase does not describe the length of time it would have taken a person to walk around the walls of the city or to walk from one end of the walled city to the other. Other suggestions are that it may indicate the time required to walk from one edge of Nineveh's environs to the other (in other words, including outlying regions) or that it indicates the time required to arrive, do business, and leave. More information might also show that the phrase involved an idiomatic description (consider Gen 30:36; Exod 3:18; a three-day-journey would be different for families than for soldiers, for example), rather than a precise measurement of distance, for which terms were available (Ezek 45:1-6; 48:8-35). With twenty miles as quite a full day's walk, it seems possible and simplest, however, to take the phrase as including an outlying region associated with Nineveh, about sixty miles in length. †† tn: Heb "Yet forty days and Nineveh will be overthrown!" By speaking of the harm they did as "in their hands," the king recognized the Ninevites' personal awareness and immediate responsibility. The term "hands" is either a synecdoche of instrument (e.g., "Is not the hand of Joab in all this?" 2 Sam 14:19) or a synecdoche of part for the whole. The king's descriptive figure of speech reinforces their guilt. §† sn: The king expresses his uncertainty whether Jonah's message constituted a conditional announcement or an unconditional decree. Jeremiah 18 emphasizes that God sometimes gives people an opportunity to repent when they hear an announcement of judgment. However, as Amos and Isaiah learned, if a people refused to repent over a period of time, the patience of God could be exhausted. The offer of repentance in a conditional announcement of judgment can be withdrawn and in its place an unconditional decree of judgment issued. In many cases it is difficult to determine on the front end whether or not a prophetic message of coming judgment is conditional or unconditional, thus explaining the king's uncertainty. §§† tn: "he might turn and relent." This is a figurative description of earthquakes, landslides, and collapse of the mountains, rather than some sort of volcanic activity (note the remainder of the verse). §‡ sn: The mountains will disintegrate...the valleys will be split in two. This imagery pictures an earthquake and accompanying landslide. §§† tn: The words "the mountains will melt" are supplied in the translation for clarification. The simile extends back to the first line of the verse. §§‡ tn: The words "the rocks will slide down" are supplied in the translation for clarification. To make this clear the question has been translated as a strong affirmative statement. 21 tn: Heb "What are Judah's high places?" 22 tn: Heb "Is it not Jerusalem?" The rhetorical question expects the answer, "It certainly is!" sn: In vv. 2-5 Micah narrows the scope of God's judgment from the nations (vv. 2-4) to his covenant people (v. 5). Universal judgment is coming, but ironically Israel is the focal point of God's anger. In v. 5c the prophet includes Judah within the scope of divine judgment, for it has followed in the pagan steps of the northern kingdom. He accomplishes this with rhetorical skill. In v. 5b he develops the first assertion of v. 5a ("All of this is because of Jacob's rebellion"). One expects in v. 5c an elaboration of the second assertion in v. 5a ("and the sins of the nation of Israel"), which one assumes, in light of v. 5b, pertains to the northern kingdom. But the prophet specifies the "sins" as "high places" and makes it clear that "the nation of Israel" includes Judah. Verses 6-7 further develop v. 5b (judgment on the northern kingdom), while vv. 8-16 expand on v. 5c (judgment on Judah). map: For location see . 23 map: For location see . 24 tn: Heb "into a planting place for vineyards." 25 tn: Heb "pour" (so NASB, NIV); KJV, NRSV "pour down"; NAB "throw down"; NLT "roll." 26 tn: Heb "her stones."  the prophet's cry has been specified as "my lament" in the translation. 34 tn: The singular form is understood as collective. 35

The Hebrew term translated "pastureland" may be a place name. sn: The point seems to be that Israel is in a vulnerable position, like sheep in a thicket populated by predators, while rich pastureland (their homeland and God's blessings) is in view. 21 sn: The regions of Bashan and Gilead, located in Transjordan, were noted for their rich grazing lands. 22 tn: Heb "as in the days of antiquity."

23 tn: Heb "him." This probably refers to Israel in a collective sense. Because the switch from direct address to the third person is awkward, some prefer to emend the suffix to a second person form. In any case, it is necessary to employ a second person pronoun in the translation to maintain the connection for the English reader.
 24 sn: I will show you miraculous deeds. In this verse the LORD

25 tn: Or "be ashamed of." 26 tn: Heb "and their ears will be deaf." Apparently this means the opposing nations will be left dumbfounded by the LORD

29 tn: Heb "they will be in dread and afraid." 30 tn: The LORD

31 tn: Heb "Who is a God like you?" The rhetorical question expects the answer, "No one!" 32 tn: Heb "one who." The prayer moves from direct address (second person) in v. 18a to a descriptive (third person) style in vv. 18b-19a and then back to direct address (second person) in vv. 19b-20. Due to considerations of English style and the unfamiliarity of the modern reader with alternation of persons in Hebrew poetry, the entire section has been rendered as direct address (second person) in the translation. 33 tn: Heb "pass over." 34 tn: Heb "of the remnant of his inheritance." 35 tn: Heb "he does not keep hold of his anger forever." 36 tn: The verb יָשׁוּב your gods.

B.C.

§†† tn: Heb “from you”; the word “neck” is supplied in the translation as a clarification for the modern reader who may be less familiar with the imagery of a yoke around the neck of farm animals or draft animals. sn: The statement I will break Assyria’s yoke bar from your neck draws an implied comparison (hypocatastasis) between breaking a plowing yoke off the neck of a farming animal and freeing a vassal from the tyranny of an oppressive suzerain through military conquest ( Lev 26:13; Isa 58:6; Jer 30:8; Ezek 30:18; 34:27).
† sn: The phrase the shackles that are on you draws an implied comparison between the chains and stocks of prisoners or slaves with the burden of international vassalldom to a tyrannical suzerain who demands absolute obedience and requires annual tributary offerings (e.g., Ps 2:3; Isa 52:2; Jer 27:2; 30:8). “Shackles” were the agent of covenantal discipline (e.g., Deut 28:48). Isaiah stated that the Assyrian “yoke” was the LORD where in the book of Nahum, the city of Nineveh is referred to by the feminine rather than masculine gender. Some modern English versions supply terms not in the Hebrew text to indicate the ad-

§ tn: Or "river dam gates"; NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "river gates." sn: Nineveh employed a system of dams and sluice gates to control the waters of the Tebilu and Khoser Rivers which flowed through the city (R. C. Thompson and R. W. Hutchinson, A Century of Exploration at Nineveh, 120-132). However, the Tebilu often flooded its banks inside the city, undermining palace foundations and weakening other structures. To reduce this flooding, Sennacherib changed the course of the Tebilu inside the city. Outside the city, he dammed up the Khoser and created a reservoir, regulating the flow of water into the city through an elaborate system of double sluice gates (D. D. Luckenbill, Ancient Records of Assyria and Babylon, 99-100; J. Reade, "Studies in Assyrian Geography, Part I: Sennacherib and the Waters of Nineveh," RA 72 [1978]: 47-72; idem, "Studies in Assyrian Geography, Part II: The Northern Canal System," RA 72 [1978]: 157-80). According to classical tradition (Diodorus and Xenophon), just before Nineveh fell, a succession of very high rainfalls deluged the area. The Khoser River swelled and the reservoir was breached. The waters rushed through the overloaded canal system, breaking a hole twenty stades (about 2.3 miles or 3.7 km) wide in the city wall and flooding the city. When the waters receded, the Babylonians stormed into Nineveh and conquered the city (Diodorus Siculus, Bibliotheca Historica, 2.26-27, especially 27.1-3; Xenophon, Anabasis, 3.4.12; P. Haupt, "Xenophon's Account of the Fall of Nineveh," JAOS 28 [1907]: 65-83). This scenario seems to be corroborated by the archaeological evidence (A. T. Olmstead, History of Assyria, 637).

 vv. 1-3. The Masoretic division is followed by NRSV and NJPS; the LXX division is followed by KJV and NIV; and the NASB division equivocates on the issue. It is best to connect v. 4 with vv. 5-6 (following the MT) because: (1) vv. 1-3 constitute a self-contained woe-oracle; and (2) the theme of the harlot unifies vv. 4-6: the accusation against the harlot (v. 4) and the stereotypical punishment of the harlot (vv. 5-6). † tn: Heb “fair of form, a mistress of sorceries.”

††† sn: Ironically, Sennacherib had recently planted fig trees along all the major avenues in Nineveh to help beautify the city, and had encouraged the citizens of Nineveh to eat from these fruit trees. How appropriate that Nineveh's defenses would now be compared to fig trees whose fruit would be eaten by its enemies. § sn: This extended simile compares the siege of Nineveh with reapers shaking a tree to harvest the "first-ripe fruit." Fruit that matured quickly and ripened early in the season dropped from the trees more easily than the later crop which developed more slowly ( Isa 28:4). To harvest the later crop the worker had to climb the tree (sixteen to twenty feet tall) and pick the figs by hand from each branch. On the other hand, the fruit from the early harvest could be gathered quickly and with a minimum of effort by simply shaking the trunk of the tree (G. Dalman, Arbeit und Sitte in Palestina, 1:378-80). The point of this simile is that Nineveh would fall easily and quickly. †† tn: This conditional sentence expresses a real anticipated situation expected to occur in the future, rather than an unreal completely hypothetical situation. ## The Lord Reveals Some Startling News

†† tn: Heb "The message [traditionally, "burden"] which Habakkuk the prophet saw." ‡ tn: Or "deliver." ‡† tn: Heb "Why do you make me see injustice?" ‡†† tn: Heb "Why do you look at wrongdoing?" sn: Habakkuk complains that God tolerates social injustice and fails to intervene on behalf of the oppressed (put up with wrongdoing). ‡††† tn: Heb "are before." ‡†††† tn: Heb "and there is conflict and strife he lifts up." The present translation takes the verb נִשְׁבַּע

§ tn: Heb "the law is numb," i.e., like a hand that has "fallen asleep" (see Ps 77:2). Cf. NAB "is benumbed"; NIV "is paralyzed." §† tn: Heb "never goes out." §††† tn: Or "for." §†††† tn: Heb "surround" (so NASB, NRSV). §††††† tn: Or "righteous" (KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT). §†††††† tn: Heb "comes out crooked." §††††††† tn: Or "look among the nations and observe." The imperatival forms in v. 5 are plural, indicating that the Lord's message is for the whole nation, not just the prophet. §§††††† tn: The Hebrew text combines the Hitpa'el and Qal imperatival forms of the verb תִּמְנַח

§§††††† tc: Heb "for a work working in your days." Following the LXX reading, some supply a first person singular pronoun with the participle מִלְּפָנַי

that you will not believe even though you are forewarned.§§§

6 Look, I am about to empower<sup>18</sup> the Babylonians, that ruthless<sup>19</sup> and greedy<sup>20</sup> nation. They sweep across the surface<sup>21</sup> of the earth, seizing dwelling places that do not belong to them.
 7 They are frightening and terrifying; they decide for themselves what is right.<sup>22</sup>
 8 Their horses are faster than leopards and more alert<sup>23</sup> than wolves in the desert.<sup>24</sup> Their horses<sup>25</sup> gallop,<sup>26</sup> their horses come a great distance; like a vulture<sup>27</sup> they swoop down quickly to devour their prey.<sup>28</sup>
 9 All of them intend<sup>29</sup> to do violence; every face is determined.<sup>30</sup> They take prisoners as easily as one scoops up sand.<sup>31</sup>
 10 They mock kings and laugh at rulers.

יָיָא §§§
 tn: Heb "you will not believe when it is told." In this context the force of יָיָא 18 tn: Heb "raise up" (so KJV, ASV). 19 tn: Heb "bitter." Other translation options for this word in this context include "fierce" (NASB, NRSV); "savage" (NEB); or "grim." 20 tn: Heb "hasty, quick." Some translate here "impetuous" (so NEB, NASB, NIV, NRSV) or "rash," but in this context greed may very well be the idea. The Babylonians move quickly and recklessly ahead in their greedy quest to expand their empire.

21 tn: Heb "the open spaces." 22 tn: Heb "from him his justice, even his lifting up, goes out." In this context תִּמְנַח

23 tn: Heb "sharper," in the sense of "keener" or "more alert." Some translate "quicker" on the basis of the parallelism with the first line (see HALOT 291 s.v. דָּד). 24 tn: Heb "wolves of the evening," that is, wolves that prowl at night. The present translation assumes an emendation to עֲבָרָה 25 tn: Or "horsemen," "cavalry." 26 tn: The precise nuance of the rare verb שָׁלַח

27 tn: Or "eagle" (so NASB, NRSV). The term can refer to either eagles or vultures, but in this context of gruesome destruction and death "vulture" is preferred. 28 tn: Heb "they fly like a vulture/an eagle quickly to devour." The direct object "their prey" is not included in the Hebrew text but is implied, and has been supplied in the translation for clarity. 29 tn: Heb "come." 30 tn: Heb "The totality of their faces is to the east" (or "is forward"). The precise meaning of the Hebrew term מִן־מִזְרָח

31 tn: Heb "and he gathers like sand, prisoners."

They laugh at every fortified city;
 they build siege ramps† and capture them.
 11 They sweep by like the wind and pass on. ††

Habakkuk Voices Some Concerns

12 LORD, you have been active from ancient times; † my sovereign God, ‡ you are immortal. †† LORD, you have made them‡‡ your instrument of judgment. § Protector, † you have appointed them as your instrument of punishment. ††† 13 You are too just‡ to tolerate‡‡ evil;
 you are unable to condone‡‡ wrongdoing.
 So why do you put up with such treacherous people
 Why do you say nothing when the wicked devour‡‡ those more righteous than they are? ‡‡‡

† tn: Heb “they heap up dirt.” This is a reference to the piling up of earthen ramps in the process of laying siege to a fortified city.
 †† tn: The precise meaning of v. 11a is uncertain. The present translation assumes the first line further describes the Babylonian hordes, comparing them to a destructive wind. Another option is to understand רוח

tn: Heb “My God, my holy one.” God’s “holiness” in this context is his sovereign transcendence as the righteous judge of the world (see vv. 12b-13a), thus the translation “My sovereign God.” ††† tc: The MT reads, “we will not die,” but an ancient scribal tradition has “you [i.e., God] will not die.” This is preferred as a more difficult reading that can explain the rise of the other variant. Later scribes who copied the manuscripts did not want to associate the idea of death with God in any way, so they softened the statement to refer to humanity. ††† tn: Heb “him,” a collective singular referring to the Babylonians. The plural pronoun “them” has been used in the translation in keeping with contemporary English style. § tn: Heb “for judgment.” †† tn: Heb “Rock” or “Cliff.” This divine epithet views God as a place where one can go to be safe from danger. The translation “Protector” conveys the force of the metaphor (cf. KJV, NEB “O mighty God”). ††† tn: Heb “to correct, reprove.” †† tn: Heb “[you] are too pure of eyes.” God’s “eyes” here signify what he looks at with approval. His “eyes” are “pure” in that he refuses to tolerate any wrongdoing in his presence. ††† tn: Heb “to see.” Here “see” is figurative for “tolerate,” “put up with.” †† tn: Heb “to look at.”
 Cf. NEB “who canst not countenance wrongdoing”; NASB “You can not look on wickedness with favor.” †† tn: Heb “Why do you look at treacherous ones?” The verb נִבְּרָ

14 You made people like fish in the sea,

 When he catches‡‡ them in his dragnet,
 he is very happy. 21 16 Because of his success‡‡ he offers sacrifices to his specified in the translation for clarity (cf. NASB “The Chaldeans”; NIV “The wicked foe”; NRSV “The enemy”). Babylonian imperialism is here compared to a professional fisherman who repeatedly brings in his catch and has plenty to eat. 19 tn: Apparently two different types of fishing nets are referred to here. The נִבְּרָ

20 tn: Heb “and he gathers.” 21 tn: Heb “Therefore he is happy and rejoices.” Here two synonyms are joined for emphasis. 22 tn: Heb “therefore.” 23 sn: The fishing implements ( throw net and dragnet) represent Babylonian military might. The prophet depicts the Babylonians as arrogantly worshiping their own power ( sacrifices...burns incense, see also v. 11b). 24 tn: Heb “for by them his portion is full [or, “fat”].” 25 tn: Heb “and his food is plentiful [or, “fat”].” 26 tn: Or “therefore.” 27 tn: Heb “Will he then empty his throw net?” The words “continue to fill and” are supplied in the translation for clarification. 28 tn: Or “continually.”
 29 tn: Heb “kill.” 30 tn: Or “without showing compassion.”
 31 sn: Habakkuk compares himself to a watchman stationed on the city wall who keeps his eyes open for approaching messengers or danger. 32 tn: The word “know” is supplied in the translation for clarification. 33 tn: Heb “concerning my correction [or, “reproof”].” 34 tn: Heb “the LORD

35 tn: Heb “[the] vision.” 36 tn: Or “reads

 tn: Heb “who opens wide like Sheol his throat.” Here שֹׁפָּא st† sn: Sheol is the proper name of the subterranean world which was regarded as the land of the dead. In ancient Canaanite thought Death was a powerful god whose appetite was never satisfied. In the OT Sheol/Death, though not deified, is personified as greedy and as having a voracious appetite. See Prov 30:15-16; Isa 5:14; also see L. I. J. Stadelmann, The Hebrew Conception of the World, 168. S† tn: Heb “he gathers for himself.” S†† tn: Heb “he collects for himself.” S† tn: Heb “Will not these, all of them, take up a taunt against him...?” The rhetorical question assumes the response, “Yes, they will.” The present translation brings out the rhetorical force of the question by rendering it as an affirmation. S†† tn: This question is interjected parenthetically, perhaps to express rhetorically the pain and despair felt by the Babylonians' victims. S††† tn: Heb “and the one who makes himself heavy [i.e., wealthy] [by] debts.” Though only appearing in the first line, the term הִוִּי 18 tn: Heb “Will not your creditors suddenly rise up?” The rhetorical question assumes the response, “Yes, they will.” The present translation brings out the rhetorical force of the question by rendering it as an affirmation. sn: Your creditors will suddenly attack. The Babylonians are addressed directly here. They have robbed and terrorized others, but now the situation will be reversed as their creditors suddenly attack them. 19 tn: Heb “[Will not] the ones who make you tremble awake?” 20 tn: Heb “and you will become their plunder.” 21 tn: Or “nations.” 22 tn: Or “peoples.”

The weapon of "double lightning" appears often in Mesopotamian representations of gods. See Elizabeth Van Buren, Symbols of the Gods in Mesopotamian Art (AnOr), 70-73. <sup>21</sup> tn: Heb "and there [is] the covering of his strength"; or "and there is his strong covering." The meaning of this line is unclear. The point may be that the lightning bolts are merely a covering, or outward display, of God's raw power. In Job 36:32 one reads that God "covers his hands with light [or, "lightning"]." <sup>22</sup> tn: Because of parallelism with the previous line, the meaning "pestilence" is favored for נִשְׁבָּר

†† tn: Heb "[with] rivers you split open the earth." A literal rendering like "You split the earth with rivers" (so NIV, NRSV) suggests geological activity to the modern reader, but in the present context of a violent thunderstorm, the idea of streams swollen to torrents by downpours better fits the imagery. sn: As the LORD

††† tn: Heb "a heavy rain of waters passes by." Perhaps the flash floods produced by the downpour are in view here. ††† sn: The great deep, which is to be equated with the sea (vv. 8, 15), is a symbol of chaos and represents the Lord's enemies. ††† sn: Lifting the hands here suggests panic and is accompanied by a cry for mercy (see Ps 28:2; Lam 2:19). The forces of chaos cannot withstand the Lord's power revealed in the storm. § tn: Heb "in their lofty dwelling places." §† tn: Or "at the light of your arrows they vanish." §†† tn: Heb "at the brightness of the lightning of your spear." §† tn: Heb "anointed one." In light of the parallelism with "your people" in the preceding line this could refer to Israel, but elsewhere the Lord's anointed one is always an individual. # Zephaniah

Introduction

1 This is the prophetic message that the LORD gave to† Zephaniah son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah. Zephaniah delivered this message during the reign of†† King Josiah son of Amon of Judah:

The Lord's Day of Judgment is Approaching

2 "I will destroy‡ everything from the face of the earth," says the LORD.

3 "I will destroy people and animals; I will destroy the birds in the sky and the fish in the sea.

(The idolatrous images of these creatures will be destroyed along with evil people.)††

I will remove‡‡ humanity from the face of the earth," says the LORD.

4 "I will attack‡‡‡ Judah and all who live in Jerusalem. ‡‡‡

I will remove§ from this place every trace of Baal worship,§†

as well as the very memory§†† of the pagan priests. §‡

† tn: Heb "The word of the LORD in the days of." The words "Zephaniah delivered this message" are supplied in the translation for clarification. ‡ tn: The Hebrew text combines the infinitive absolute of ‡ ‡

†† tn: Heb "And the stumbling blocks [or, "ruins"] with the evil"; or "the things that make the evil stumble." The line does not appear in the original form of the LXX; it may be a later scribal addition. The present translation assumes the "stumbling blocks" are idolatrous images of animals, birds, and fish. See J. M. Roberts, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah (OTL), 167, and Adele Berlin, Zephaniah (AB), 73-74. ‡‡ tn: Heb "cut off." ‡‡† tn: Heb "I will stretch out my hand against," is an idiom for hostile action. ‡‡‡ map: For location see. § tn: Heb "cut off." §† tn: Heb "the remnant of Baal." §†† tn: Heb "name." Here the "name" is figurative for the memory of those who bear it. §‡ tc: Heb "of the pagan priests and priests." The first word ( ‡ ‡

§‡† tn: The words "I will remove" are repeated from v. 4b for stylistic reasons. In the Hebrew text vv. 4b-6 contain a long list of objects for the verb "I will remove" in v. 4b. In the present translation a new sentence was begun at the beginning of v. 5 in keeping with the tendency of contemporary English to use shorter sentences. §† tn: Heb "those who worship on their roofs the host of heaven." The "host of heaven" included the sun, moon, planets, and stars, all of which were deified in the ancient Near East. §‡ tc: The MT reads, "those who worship, those who swear allegiance to the LORD

§§† tn: Heb "those who swear by." §§‡ tn: The referent of "their king" is unclear. It may refer sarcastically to a pagan god (perhaps Baal) worshiped by the people. Some English versions (cf. NEB, NASB, NRSV) prefer to emend the text to "Milcom," the name of an Ammonite god (following some LXX MSS

Heb "the day of the LORD <sup>20</sup> <sup>21</sup>

The LORD has prepared a sacrificial meal; †
 he has ritually purified†† his guests.
<sup>8</sup> "On the day of the LORD's sacrificial meal,
 I will punish the princes‡ and the king's sons, and all who wear foreign styles of clothing. †† <sup>9</sup> On that day I will punish all who leap over the threshold, †† who fill the house of their master‡‡† with wealth taken by violence and deceit. ††† <sup>10</sup> On that day," says the LORD,
 "a loud cry will go up§ from the Fish Gate, †† wailing from the city's newer district, ††† and a loud crash§‡ from the hills.
<sup>11</sup> Wail, you who live in the market district, ††† for all the merchants§† will disappear§‡ and those who count money§§† will be removed. ††† <sup>12</sup> At that time I will search through Jerusalem with lamps.
 I will punish the people who are entrenched in their sin, †††
 those who think to themselves,<sup>18</sup>
 'The LORD neither rewards nor punishes.'<sup>19</sup> <sup>13</sup> Their wealth will be stolen and their houses ruined!
 They will not live in the houses they have built,

nor will they drink the wine from the vineyards they have planted.
<sup>14</sup> The LORD's great day of judgment<sup>20</sup> is almost here;
 it is approaching very rapidly!
 There will be a bitter sound on the LORD's day of judgment;
 at that time warriors will cry out in battle.<sup>21</sup> <sup>15</sup> That day will be a day of God's anger,<sup>22</sup> a day of distress and hardship, a day of devastation and ruin,
 a day of darkness and gloom,
 a day of clouds and dark skies,
<sup>16</sup> a day of trumpet blasts<sup>23</sup> and battle cries.<sup>24</sup> Judgment will fall on<sup>25</sup> the fortified cities and the high corner towers.
<sup>17</sup> I will bring distress on the people<sup>26</sup> and they will stumble<sup>27</sup> like blind men, for they have sinned against the LORD.
 Their blood will be poured out like dirt;
 their flesh<sup>28</sup> will be scattered<sup>29</sup> like manure.
<sup>18</sup> Neither their silver nor their gold will be able to deliver them in the day of the LORD's angry judgment.
 The whole earth<sup>30</sup> will be consumed by his fiery wrath.<sup>31</sup> Indeed,<sup>32</sup> he will bring terrifying destruction<sup>33</sup> on all who live on the earth."<sup>34</sup>

† tn: Heb "a sacrifice." This same word also occurs in the following verse. sn: Because a sacrificial meal presupposes the slaughter of animals, it is used here as a metaphor of the bloody judgment to come. †† tn: Or "consecrated" (ASV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV). ‡ tn: Or "officials" (NRSV, TEV); NLT "leaders." ‡† sn: The very dress of the royal court, foreign styles of clothing, revealed the degree to which Judah had assimilated foreign customs. †† sn: The point of the statement all who hop over the threshold is unclear. A ritual or superstition associated with the Philistine god Dagon may be in view (see 1 Sam 5:5). ††† tn: The referent of "their master" is unclear. The king or a pagan god may be in view. ††† tn: Heb "who fill...with violence and deceit." The expression "violence and deceit" refers metonymically to the wealth taken by oppressive measures.
 § tn: The words "will go up" are supplied in the translation for clarification. †† sn: The Fish Gate was located on Jerusalem's north side (cf. 2 Chr 33:14; Neh 3:3; 12:39). ††† tn: Heb "from the second area." This may refer to an area northwest of the temple where the rich lived (see Adele Berlin, Zephaniah [AB 25A], 86; cf.
 NASB, NRSV "the Second Quarter"; NIV "the New Quarter"). ††

 Heb "weigh out silver." ††† tn: Heb "be cut off." In the Hebrew text of v. 11b the perfect verbal forms emphasize the certainty of the judgment, speaking of it as if it were already accomplished.
 ††† tn: Heb "who thicken on their sediment." The imagery comes from wine making, where the wine, if allowed to remain on the sediment too long, will thicken into syrup. The image suggests that the people described here were complacent in their sinful behavior and interpreted the delay in judgment as divine apathy. †† tn: Heb duces ("trumpet blasts"). 24 sn: This description of the day of the refers to mankind in general (see vv. 2-3) or more specifically to the residents of Judah (see vv. 4-13). 27 tn: Heb "walk." 28 tn:

 Some take the referent of "flesh" to be more specific here; cf. NEB ("bowels"), NAB ("brains"), NIV ("entrails"). 29 tn: The words "will be scattered" are supplied in the translation for clarity based on the parallelism with "will be poured out" in the previous line. 30 tn:

 sent verse. 31 tn: Or "passion"; traditionally, "jealousy." 32 tn:

† tn: The Hebrew text combines a Hitpolel imperative of אָשַׁף זָרָה

†† tn: Some relate this word to an Aramaic cognate meaning "to be ashamed." With the negative particle it would then mean "unashamed" (cf. NIV "shameful"; NRSV "shameless"). However, elsewhere in biblical Hebrew the verb means "to desire," or with the negative particle "undesirable." Cf. also NEB "unruly." ‡ tn: Heb "before the giving birth of a decree." For various alternative readings, see J. J. M. Roberts, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah (OTL), 187-88. ‡† tn: The second half of the line reads literally, "like chaff it passes by a day." The translation above assumes the "day" is the brief time God is giving the nation to repent. The comparison of this quickly passing opportunity to chaff is consistent with the straw imagery of v. 1. ‡‡ tn: Heb "the fury of the anger of the LORD

‡‡† tn: Heb "comes upon." This phrase occurs twice in this verse. ‡‡‡ tn: Heb "seek the LORD

The word may refer to the economically poor or to the spiritually humble. §† tn: The present translation assumes the Hebrew term 'span class="hebrew" lang="heb" מִשְׁפָּט (mishpat) here refers to God's covenantal requirements and is a synonym for the Law. The word can mean "justice" and could refer more specifically to the principles of justice contained in the Law. In this case the phrase could be translated, "who have promoted the justice God demands." §†† tn: Heb "Seek what is right." §‡ tn: Heb "Seek humility." §‡† tn: Heb "hidden." Cf. NEB "it may be that you will find shelter"; NRSV "perhaps you may be hidden." §† tn: Or "for" (KJV, NAB, NASB, NRSV). §‡ tn: There is a sound play here in the Hebrew text: the name Gaza (עַזְזָה) §§† tn: Or "a desolate place." §§‡ tn: Heb "[As for] Ashdod, at noon they will drive her away." sn: The reference to noon may suggest a sudden, quick defeat (see Jer 6:4; 15:8). §§§ tn: Heb "uprooted." is, wolves that prowl at night. The translation assumes an emendation to עֲבֹרָה

† tn: Heb "they do not gnaw [a bone] at morning." The precise meaning of the line is unclear. The statement may mean these wolves devour their prey so completely that not even a bone is left to gnaw by the time morning arrives. For a discussion of this and other options, see Adele Berlin, Zephaniah (AB 25A), 129. †† sn: Applied to prophets, the word עֲבֹרָה

Note that NASB (which capitalizes pronouns referring to Deity) has divided the lines differently: "Every morning He brings His justice to light; He does not fail." §† tn: Heb "cut off." §†† tn: Heb "corner towers"; NEB, NRSV "battlements." §‡ tn: This Hebrew verb ( הִצִּי

§†† tn: Heb "so that there is no man, without inhabitant." §† tn: Heb "said." §‡ tn: Or "fear." The second person verb form ("you will respect") is feminine singular, indicating that personified Jerusalem is addressed. sn: God's judgment of the nations (v. 6) was an object lesson for Israel's benefit. §§† tn: Or "dwelling place." §§‡ tn: Heb "cut off." §§§ tn: Heb "all which I have punished her." The precise meaning of this statement and its relationship to what precedes are unclear. 18 tn: Heb "But they got up early, they made corrupt all their actions." The phrase "they got up early" probably refers to their eagerness to engage in sinful activities. 19 tn: The second person verb form ("you must wait patiently") is masculine plural, indicating that a group is being addressed. Perhaps the humble individuals addressed earlier (see 2:3)

"for the day when I attack and take plunder. 20 I have decided21 to gather nations together and assemble kingdoms, so I can pour out my fury on them – all my raging anger. For 22 the whole earth will be consumed by my fiery anger. 9 Know for sure that I will then enable the nations to give me acceptable praise. 23 All of them will invoke the LORD's name when they pray,24 and will worship him in unison. 25 10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, 26 those who pray to me27 will bring me tribute. 11 In that day you28 will not be ashamed of all your rebelliousness against me, 29 for then I will remove from your midst those who proudly boast,30 and you will never again be arrogant on my holy hill. 12 I will leave in your midst a humble and meek group of people, 31 and they will find safety in the LORD's presence. 32 13 The Israelites who remain33 will not act deceitfully. They will not lie, and a deceitful tongue will not be found in their mouth. Indeed, they will graze peacefully like sheep34 and lie down; no one will terrify them."

are in view. Because of Jerusalem's sin, they must patiently wait for judgment to pass before their vindication arrives. 20 tn: Heb "when I arise for plunder." The present translation takes עָמַד

טַוֵּל
 21 tn: Heb "for my decision is." 22 tn: Or "certainly." 23 tn: Heb "Certainly [or perhaps, "For"] then I will restore to the nations a pure lip." sn: I will then enable the nations to give me acceptable praise. This apparently refers to a time when the nations will reject their false idol-gods and offer genuine praise to the one true God. 24 tn: Heb "so that all of them will call on the name of the LORD 25 tn: Heb "so that [they] will serve him [with] one shoulder." 26 tn: Or "Nubia"; Heb "Cush." "Cush" is traditionally assumed to refer to the region south of Egypt, i.e. Nubia or northern Sudan, referred to as "Ethiopia" by classical authors (not the more recent Abyssinia). 27 tn: Heb "those who pray to me, the daughter of my dispersed ones." The meaning of the phrase is unclear. Perhaps the text is corrupt at this point or a proper name should be understood. For a discussion of various options see Adele Berlin, Zephaniah (AB 25A), 134-35. sn: It is not certain if those who pray to me refers to the converted nations or to God's exiled covenant people. 28 sn: The second person verbs and pronouns are feminine singular, indicating that personified Jerusalem is addressed here. 29 tn: Heb "In that day you not be ashamed because of all your actions, [in] which you rebelled against me." 30 tn: Heb "the arrogant ones of your pride." 31 tn: Heb "needy and poor people." The terms often refer to a socioeconomic group, but here they may refer to those who are humble in a spiritual sense. 32 tn: Heb "and they will take refuge in the name of the LORD LORD LORD tn: The words "peacefully like sheep" are supplied in the translation for clarification. † sn: This phrase is used as an epithet for the city and the nation. "Daughter" may seem extraneous in English but consciously joins the various epithets and metaphors of Israel and Jerusalem as a woman, a device used to evoke sympathy from the reader. †† tn: Heb "your judgments," that is, "the judgments directed against you." The translation reflects the implications of the parallelism. ‡ tn: Heb "it will be said." The passive construction has been translated as active for stylistic reasons. ‡† tn: Heb "your hands must not go limp." ‡‡ tn: Heb "he rejoices over you with joy." ‡‡‡ tc: The MT reads, "he is silent in his love," but this makes no sense in light of the immediately preceding and following lines. Some take the Hiphil verb form as causative (see Job 11:3) rather than intransitive and translate, "he causes [you] to be silent by his love," that is, "he soothes [you] by his love." The present translation follows the LXX and assumes an original reading שׁוֹמֵחַ!

33 tn: Or "the remnant of Israel." 34

tn: Heb "he rejoices over you with a shout of joy."

§ tn: Heb "The ones grieving from an assembly I gathered from you they were, tribute upon her, a reproach." Any translation of this difficult verse must be provisional at best. The present translation assumes three things: (1) The preposition בְּ

תִּשְׁמַח

§† tn: The word "sheep" is supplied for clarification. As in Mic 4:6-7, the exiles are here pictured as injured and scattered sheep whom the divine shepherd rescues from danger. §†† tn: Heb "I will make them into praise and a name, in all the earth, their shame." The present translation assumes that "their shame" specifies "them" and that "name" stands here for a good reputation. §‡ tn: In this line the second person pronoun is masculine plural, indicating that the exiles are addressed. §‡† tn: Or "for." §† tn: Heb "I will make you into a name and praise among all the peoples of the earth." Here the word "name" carries the nuance of "good reputation." §‡ tn: Heb "when I restore your fortunes to your eyes." See the note on the phrase "restore them" in 2:7.

Haggai

Introduction

1 On the first day of the sixth month† of King Darius†† second year, the LORD spoke this message through the prophet Haggai‡ to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak: ‡†

The Indifference of the People

2 The LORD who rules over all§§ says this : “These people have said, ‘The time for rebuilding the LORD’s temple has not yet come.’” <sup>‡‡3</sup> So the LORD spoke through the prophet Haggai as follows: <sup>‡‡4</sup> “Is it right for you to live in richly paneled houses§ while my temple is in ruins? <sup>§†5</sup> Here then is what the LORD who rules over all says: ‘Think carefully about what you are doing. <sup>§††6</sup> You have planted much, but have harvested little. You

‡† tn: The typical translation “Joshua (the) son of Jehozadak, the high priest” (cf. ASV, NASB, NIV, NRSV) can be understood to mean that Jehozadak was high priest. However, Zech 3:1, 8 clearly indicates that Joshua was high priest (see also Ezra 5:1-2; cf. NAB). The same potential misunderstanding occurs in Hag 1:12, 14 and 2:2, where the same solution has been employed in the translation. ‡† sn: The epithet LORD

NCV “fancy houses”; TEV “well-built houses”; NLT “luxurious houses”). The impropriety of the people living in such lavish accommodations while the temple lay unfinished is striking. §† tn: Heb “Is it time for you, [yes] you, to live in paneled houses, while this house is in ruins”; NASB “lies desolate”; NIV “remains a ruin.” §†† tn: Heb “Set your heart upon your ways” (see 2:15, 18); traditionally “Consider your ways” (so KJV, ASV, NAB, NASB).

The Instruction of the People

7 “ Moreover, the LORD who rules over all says: ‘Pay close attention to these things also. <sup>§††8</sup> Go up to the hill country and bring back timber to build§† the temple. §† Then I will be pleased and honored;’ §†† says the LORD. <sup>9</sup> ‘ You expected a large harvest, but instead§§† there was little, and when you brought it home it disappeared right away. §§§ Why ?’ asks the LORD who rules over all. ‘Because my temple remains in ruins, thanks to each of you favoring his own house! <sup>18</sup><sup>10</sup> This is why the sky<sup>19</sup> has held back its dew and the earth its produce. <sup>20</sup><sup>11</sup> Moreover, I have called for a drought that will affect the fields, the hill country, the grain, new wine, fresh olive oil, and everything that grows from the ground; it also will harm people, animals, and everything they produce.’” <sup>21</sup>

§† tn: Some translate “pockets” (so NLT) but the Hebrew word צָרוֹר

§†† tn: Heb “Set your heart upon your ways”; see v. 5.
§† tn: Heb “and build the house” (so NIV, NRSV), with “house” referring specifically to the temple here. §† sn: The temple was built primarily of stone, so the timber here refers to interior paneling (see v. 4) and perhaps to scaffolding (see Ezra 5:8; 6:4). §§† tn: The Hebrew verb אָבְדָה

אָבְדָה

§§† tn: Heb “look!” ( הִנֵּה )

The imagery here suggests that human achievements are so fragile and temporal that a mere breath from God can destroy them (see Ezek 22:20, 21; and Isa 40:7 with נָשַׁב <sup>18</sup> tn: Heb “and each of you runs to his own house”; NIV “is busy with”; TEV “is busy working on”; NCV “work hard for.” <sup>19</sup> tn: The Hebrew text has “over you” (so KJV), but this is redundant in contemporary English and has been left untranslated. <sup>20</sup> sn: This linkage of human sin to natural disaster is reminiscent of the curse brought upon the earth by Adam’s disobedience ( Gen 3:17-19; see Rom 8:20-22). <sup>21</sup> tn: Heb “all the labor of hands” (similar KJV, NASB, NIV); cf. NAB “all that is produced by hand.”

The Response of the People

12 Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak, † along with the whole remnant of the people, †† obeyed‡ the LORD their God. They responded favorably to the message of the prophet Haggai, who spoke just as the LORD their God had instructed him, ‡ and the people began to respect the LORD. ‡‡13 Then Haggai, the LORD's messenger, spoke the LORD's word to the people :‡‡‡ "I am with you!" says the LORD. 14 So the LORD energized and encouraged‡‡‡ Zerubbabel § son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak, §† and the whole remnant of the people. §†† They came and worked on the temple of their God, the LORD who rules over all. 15 This took place on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month of King Darius' second year. §†

The Promised Blessing

<sup>10</sup> On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month of Darius' second year, † the LORD spoke again to the prophet Haggai: <sup>††11</sup> "The LORD who rules over all says, 'Ask the priests about the law. <sup>‡12</sup> If someone carries holy meat in a fold of his garment and that fold touches bread, a boiled dish, wine, olive oil, or any other food, will that item become holy?' †† The priests answered, "It will not." <sup>13</sup> Then Haggai asked, "If a person who is ritually unclean because of touching a dead body‡ comes in contact with one of these items, will it become unclean?" The priests answered, "It will be unclean."

There is, however, a Mosaic law that provides the basis for the priestly ruling ( Lev 6:27). ‡‡ tn: Heb "unclean of a person," a euphemism for "unclean because of a dead person"; see Lev 21:11; Num 6:6. Cf. NAB "unclean from contact with a corpse." ††† tn: Heb "so this people, and so this nation before me." In this context "people" and "nation" refer to the same set of individuals; the repetition is emphatic. Cf. CEV "this entire nation." ††† sn: The point here is that the Jews cannot be made holy by unholy fellowship with their pagan neighbors; instead, they and their worship will become corrupted by such associations. § tn: Heb "and now set your heart from this day and upward." KJV "Since those days were." §‡ tn: Heb "you, all the work of your hands"; NRSV "you and all the products of your toil"; NIV "all the work of your hands." §†† tn: Heb "and there was not with you." The context favors the idea that the harvests were so poor that the people took care of only themselves, leaving no offering for the LORD

Zerubbabel the Chosen One

§† tn: Heb "set your heart." A similar expression occurs in v. 15. §‡ sn: The twenty-fourth day of the ninth month was Kislev 24 or December 18, 520. See v. 10. Here the reference is to "today," the day the oracle is being delivered. §§† sn: The day work...was resumed. This does not refer to the initial founding of the Jerusalem temple in 536 B.C.

<sup>18</sup> sn: Again, the twenty-fourth day of the month was Kislev 24 or December 18, 520 B.C. <sup>19</sup> tn: The participle here suggests an imminent undertaking of action (cf. NRSV, TEV, NLT "I am about to"). The overall language of the passage is eschatological, but eschatology finds its roots in the present. <sup>20</sup> tn: See the note on the word "sky" in 2:6. Most English translations render the Hebrew term as "heavens" here. <sup>21</sup> tn: Heb "the kingdoms of the nations." Cf. KJV "the kingdoms of the heathen"; NIV, NLT "foreign kingdoms." <sup>22</sup> tn: Heb "and horses and their riders will go down, a man with a sword his brother"; KJV "every one by the sword of his brother." <sup>23</sup> sn: The expression on that day appears as a technical eschatological term in a number of other OT passages (cf., e.g., Isa 2:11, 17, 20; 3:7, 18; Amos 8:3, 9; Hos 2:18, 21). <sup>24</sup> sn: My servant. The collocation of "servant" and "chosen" bears strong messianic overtones. See the so-called "Servant Songs" and other messianic texts in Isaiah ( Isa 41:8; 42:1; 44:4; 49:7). <sup>25</sup> sn: The noun signet ring, used also to describe Jehoiachin ( Jer 22:24-30), refers to a ring seal worn by a king or other important person and used as his signature. Zerubbabel was a grandson of King Jehoiachin ( 1 Chr 3:17-19; Matt 1:12); God once pronounced that none of Jehoiachin's immediate descendants would rule ( Jer 22:24-30), but here he reverses that judgment. Zerubbabel never ascended to such a lofty position of rulership; he is rather a prototype of the Messiah who would sit on David's throne. <sup>26</sup> tn: The repetition of the formula "says the LORD

Introduction

1 In the eighth month of Darius' † second year, †† the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah, ‡ son of Berechiah son of Iddo, as follows:
 2 The LORD was very angry with your ancestors. ‡‡ Therefore say to the people:‡‡ The LORD who rules over all‡‡ says, "Turn‡‡ to me," says the LORD who rules over all, "and I will turn to you," says the LORD who rules over all. 4 "Do not be like your ancestors, to whom the former prophets called out, saying, 'The LORD who rules over all says, "Turn now from your evil wickedness,'" but they would by no means obey me," says the LORD. 5 "As for your ancestors, where are they? And did the prophets live forever? 6 But have my words and statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, not outlived your fathers? ‡ Then they paid attention‡† and confessed, 'The LORD who rules over all has indeed done what he said he would do to us, because of our sinful ways.'"

 †† sn: The eighth month of Darius' second year was late October - late November, 520 B.C.

‡ sn: Both Ezra ( 5:1; 6:14) and Nehemiah (12:16) speak of Zechariah as a son of Iddo only. A probable explanation is that Zechariah's actual father Berechiah had died and the prophet was raised by his grandfather Iddo. The "Zechariah son of Barachiah" of whom Jesus spoke ( Matt 23:35; Luke 11:51) was probably the martyred prophet by that name who may have been a grandson of the priest Jehoiada ( 2 Chr 24:20-22). ‡† tn: Heb "fathers" (so KJV, NAB); NIV "forefathers" (also in vv. 4, 5). ‡‡ tn: Heb "to them"; the referent (the people) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡‡† sn: The epithet LORD

The Introduction to the Visions

7 On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, the month Shebat , in Darius' second year, §†† the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah son of Iddo, as follows:

The Content of the First Vision

8 I was attentive that night and saw a man seated§† on a red horse that stood among some myrtle trees§§† in the ravine. Behind him were red, sorrel, §† and white horses.

The Interpretation of the First Vision

9 Then I asked one nearby, "What are these, sir?" The angelic messenger§† who replied to me said, "I will show you what these are." 10 Then the man standing among the myrtle trees spoke up and said, "These are the ones whom the LORD has sent to walk about§§† on the earth." 11 The riders then agreed with the angel of the LORD , §§† who was standing among the myrtle trees, "We have been walking about on the earth, and now everything is at rest and quiet." 12 The angel of the LORD then asked, " LORD who rules over all, §§§ how long before you have compassion on Jerusalem<sup>18</sup> and the other cities of Judah which you have been so angry

† sn: The land of Babylonia ( Heb "the land of Shinar") is another name for Sumer and Akkad, where Babylon was located ( Gen 10:10). Babylon throughout the Bible symbolizes the focus of anti-God sentiment and activity ( Gen 11:4; 14:1; Isa 13-14; 47:1-3; Jer 50-51; Rev 14:8; 17:1, 5, 18; 18:21). †† tn: Heb "two mountains, and the mountains [were] mountains of bronze." This has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons. sn: Bronze, a hard, almost impenetrable metal, is an apt figure to speak of the obstacles standing in the way of the accomplishment of God's purposes for the postexilic Jewish community (cf. 4:7). The cleft between the two from which the chariots emerge might be related to the eschatological triumph of the LORD

<sup>3</sup> Listen to the howling of shepherds, because their magnificence has been destroyed. Listen to the roaring of young lions, because the thickets of the Jordan have been devastated.

<sup>4</sup> The LORD my God says this: "Shepherd the flock set aside for slaughter. <sup>5</sup> Those who buy them†† slaughter them and are not held guilty; those who sell them say, 'Blessed be the LORD, for I am rich.' Their own shepherds have no compassion for them. <sup>6</sup> Indeed, I will no longer have compassion on the people of the land," says the LORD, "but instead I will turn every last person over to his neighbor and his king. <sup>10</sup> Then I took my staff "Pleasantness" and cut it in two to annul my covenant that I had made with all the people. <sup>11</sup> So it was annulled that very day, and then the most afflicted of the flock who kept faith with me knew that that was the word of the LORD.

<sup>12</sup> Then I§† said to them, "If it seems good to you, pay me my wages, but if not, forget it." The "one month" probably means just any short period of time in which three kings ruled in succession. §†† sn: If taken at face value, thirty pieces (shekels) of silver was worth about two and a half years' wages for a common laborer. The Code of Hammurabi prescribes a monthly wage for a laborer of one shekel. If this were the case in Israel, 30 shekels would be the wages for 2 1/2 years (R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, pp. 76, 204-5). For other examples of "thirty shekels" as a conventional payment, see K. Luke, "The Thirty Pieces of Silver ( Zech. 11:12f.), Ind TS 19 (1982): 26-30. Luke, on the basis of Sumerian analogues, suggests that "thirty" came to be a term meaning anything of little or no value (p. 30). In this he follows Erica Reiner, "Thirty Pieces of Silver," in Essays in Memory of E. A. Speiser, AOS 53, ed. William W. Hallo (New Haven, Conn.: American Oriental Society, 1968), 186-90. Though the 30 shekels elsewhere in the OT may well be taken literally, the context of Zech. 11:12 may indeed support Reiner and Luke in seeing it as a pittance here, not worth considering (cf. Exod 21:32; Lev 27:4; Matt 26:15). §† tn: Heb "splendor of splendor" ( אָדָר הַיָּקָר )

The grammar (a subjective genitive) allows, and the problem of comparing Israel’s grief at God’s “wounding” with pagan mourning seems to demand, that this be viewed as a place name, perhaps where Judah lamented the death of good king Josiah (cf. 2 Chr 35:25). However, some translations render this as “for” (NRSV, NCV, TEV, CEV), suggesting a person, while others translate as “of” (KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NLT) which is ambiguous. <sup>20</sup> map: For location see . <sup>21</sup> sn: By the time of Zechariah the line of descent from David had already been transferred from the Solomon branch to the Nathan branch (the clan of the family of Nathan). Nathan was a son of David ( 2 Sam 5:14) through whom Jesus eventually came ( Luke 3:23-31). Matthew traces Jesus’ ancestry back through Solomon ( Matt 1:6-16) but apparently this is to tie Joseph into the Davidic (and thus messianic) line. The “official” descent of Jesus may be viewed as passing through Solomon whereas the “physical” descent came through Nathan. <sup>22</sup> sn: The Shimeites were Levites ( Exod 6:16-17; Num 3:17-18) who presumably were prominent in the postexilic era. Just as David and Nathan represented the political leadership of the community, so Levi and Shimei represented the religious leadership. All will lament the piercing of the Messiah.

Introduction and God's Election of Israel

1 What follows is divine revelation. † The word of the LORD came to Israel through Malachi: ††
 2 "I have shown love to you," says the LORD, but you say, "How have you shown love to us?"
 "Esau was Jacob's brother," the LORD explains, "yet I chose Jacob<sup>3</sup> and rejected Esau. ‡ I turned Esau's‡† mountains into a deserted wasteland‡† and gave his territory‡†† to the wild jackals."
 4 Edom‡†† says, "Though we are devastated, we will once again build the ruined places." So the LORD who rules over all§ responds, "They indeed may build, but I will overthrow. They will be known as§† the land of evil, the people with whom the LORD is permanently displeased. <sup>5</sup> Your eyes will see it, and then you will say, 'May the LORD be magnified§†† even beyond the border of Israel!'"

The Sacrilege of Priestly Service

6 "A son naturally honors his father and a slave respects§‡ his master. If I am your§†† father, where is my honor? If I am your master, where is my respect? The LORD who rules over all asks you this, you priests who make light of my name! But you reply, 'How have we made light of your name?' <sup>7</sup> You are offering improper sacrifices on my altar, yet you ask, 'How have we offended you?' By treating the table§† of the LORD as if it is of no importance! <sup>8</sup> For when you offer blind animals as a sacrifice, is that not wrong? And when you offer the lame and sick, §‡ is that not wrong as well? Indeed, try offering them§§† to your governor! Will he be pleased with you§§‡ or show you favor?" asks the LORD who rules over all. <sup>9</sup> But now plead for God's favor§§§ that he might be gracious to us. <sup>18</sup> "With this kind of offering in your hands, how can he be pleased with you?" asks the LORD who rules over all.

<sup>10</sup> "I wish that one of you would close the temple doors, <sup>19</sup> so that you no longer would light useless fires on my altar. I am not pleased with you," says the LORD who rules over all, "and I will no longer accept an offering from you. <sup>11</sup> For from the east to the west my name will be great among the nations. Incense and pure offerings will be offered in my name everywhere, for my name will be great among the nations," <sup>20</sup> says

§‡ tn: The verb "respects" is not in the Hebrew text but is supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons. It is understood by ellipsis (see "honors" in the preceding line). §†† tn: The pronoun "your" is supplied in the translation for clarification (also a second time before "master" later in this verse). §† sn: The word table, here a synonym for "altar," has overtones of covenant imagery in which a feast shared by the covenant partners was an important element (see Exod 24:11). It also draws attention to the analogy of sitting down at a common meal with the governor (v. 8). §‡ sn: Offerings of animals that were lame or sick were strictly forbidden by the Mosaic law (see Deut 15:21). §§† tn: Heb "it" (so NAB, NASB). Should I accept this from you?"†† asks the LORD. <sup>14</sup> "There will be harsh condemnation for the hypocrite who has a valuable male animal in his flock but vows and sacrifices something inferior to the Lord. For I am a great king,"‡ says the LORD who rules over all, "and my name is awesome among the nations."

The Rebellion of the People

<sup>10</sup> Do we not all have one father? ‡§† Did not one God create us? Why do we betray one another, in this way making light of the covenant of our ancestors? <sup>11</sup> Judah has become disloyal, and unspeakable sins have been committed in Israel and Jerusalem. §§† For Judah has profaned§§§ the holy things that the LORD loves and has turned to a foreign god! <sup>1812</sup> May the LORD cut off from the community<sup>19</sup> of Jacob every last person who does this,<sup>20</sup> as well as the person who presents improper offerings to the LORD who rules over all!

<sup>13</sup> You also do this : You cover the altar of the LORD with tears<sup>21</sup> as you weep and groan, because he no longer pays any attention to the offering nor accepts it favorably from you. <sup>14</sup> Yet you ask, "Why?" In light of the ascension of Elijah to heaven without dying ( 2 Kgs 2:11), Judaism has always awaited his return as an aspect of the messianic age (see, e.g., John 1:19-28). Jesus identified John the Baptist as Elijah, because he came in the "spirit and power" of his prototype Elijah ( Matt 11:14; 17:1-13; Mark 9:2-13; Luke 9:28-36). <sup>23</sup> tn: Heb "he will turn the heart[s] of [the] fathers to [the] sons, and the heart[s] of [the] sons to their fathers." This may mean that the messenger will encourage reconciliation of conflicts within Jewish families in the postexilic community (see Mal 2:10; this interpretation is followed by most English versions). Another option is to translate, "he will turn the hearts of the fathers together with those of the children [to me], and the hearts of the children together with those of their fathers [to me]." In this case the prophet encourages both the younger and older generations of sinful society to repent and return to the LORD

The Genealogy of Jesus Christ

1 This is the record of the genealogy† of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.

<sup>2</sup> Abraham was the father†† of Isaac, Isaac the father of Jacob, Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers, <sup>3</sup> Judah the father of Perez and Zerah (by Tamar), Perez the father of Hezron, Hezron the father of Ram, <sup>4</sup> Ram the father of Amminadab, Amminadab the father of Nahshon, Nahshon the father of Salmon, <sup>5</sup> Salmon the father of Boaz (by Rahab), Boaz the father of Obed (by Ruth), Obed the father of Jesse, <sup>6</sup> and Jesse the father of David the king.

David was the father of Solomon (by the wife of Uriah‡), <sup>7</sup> Solomon the father of Rehoboam, Rehoboam the father of Abijah, Abijah the father of Asa, <sup>‡‡8</sup> Asa the father of Jehoshaphat, Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, Joram the father of Uzziah, <sup>9</sup> Uzziah the father of Jotham, Jotham the father of Ahaz, Ahaz the father of Hezekiah, <sup>10</sup> Hezekiah the father of Manasseh, Manasseh the father of Amon, ‡‡ Amon the father of Josiah, <sup>11</sup> and Josiah‡‡‡ the father of Jeconiah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

Pharisees differed with Sadducees on certain doctrines and patterns of behavior. The Pharisees were strict and zealous adherents to the laws of the OT and to numerous additional traditions such as angels and bodily resurrection. 27 sn: The Sadducees controlled the official political structures of Judaism at this time, being the majority members of the Sanhedrin. They were known as extremely strict on law and order issues (Josephus, J. W. 2.8.2 [2.119], 2.8.14 [2.164-166]; Ant. 13.5.9 [13.171-173], 13.10.6 [13.293-298], 18.1.2 [18.11], 18.1.4 [18.16-17], 20.9.1 [20.199]; Life 2 [10-11]). There are differing interpretations for this phrase regarding the number of baptisms and their nature. (1) Some see one baptism here, and this can be divided further into two options. (a) The baptism of the Holy Spirit and fire could refer to the cleansing, purifying work of the Spirit in the individual believer through salvation and sanctification, or (b) it could refer to two different results of Christ's ministry: Some accept Christ and are baptized with the Holy Spirit, but some reject him and receive judgment. (2) Other interpreters see two baptisms here: The baptism of the Holy Spirit refers to the salvation Jesus brings at his first advent, in which believers receive the Holy Spirit, and the baptism of fire refers to the judgment Jesus will bring upon the world at his second coming. One must take into account both the image of fire and whether individual or corporate baptism is in view. A decision is not easy on either issue. The image of fire is used to refer to both eternal judgment (e.g., Matt 25:41) and the power of the Lord's presence to purge and cleanse his people (e.g., Isa 4:4-5). The pouring out of the Spirit at Pentecost, a fulfillment of this prophecy no matter which interpretation is taken, had both individual and corporate dimensions. It is possible that since Holy Spirit and fire are governed by a single preposition in Greek, the one-baptism view may be more likely, but this is not certain. Simply put, there is no consensus view in scholarship at this time on the best interpretation of this passage. †† sn: A winnowing fork was a pitchfork-like tool used to toss threshed grain in the air so that the wind blew away the chaff, leaving the grain to fall to the ground. The note of purging is highlighted by the use of imagery involving sifting though threshed grain for the useful kernels. ‡‡ tn: Or "granary," "barn" (referring to a building used to store a farm's produce rather than a building to house livestock). ‡‡‡ sn: The image of fire that cannot be extinguished is from the OT: Job 20:26; Isa 34:8-10; 66:24. ‡‡‡ tn: "River" is not in the Greek text but is supplied for clarity. § tc: ‡ The earliest MSS <sup>κ</sup>

It is thus often assumed that Jesus was referring to chemically impure salt, perhaps a natural salt which, when exposed to the elements, had all the genuine salt leached out, leaving only the sediment or impurities behind. Others have suggested that the background of the saying is the use of salt blocks by Arab bakers to line the floor of their ovens; under the intense heat these blocks would eventually crystallize and undergo a change in chemical composition, finally being thrown out as unserviceable. The Roman troops stationed in Judea were auxiliaries, who would normally be rewarded with Roman citizenship after 25 years of service. Some of the centurions may have served originally in the Roman legions (regular army) and thus gained their citizenship at enlistment. Others may have inherited it, like the apostle Paul did. <sup>21</sup> sn: While in Matthew's account the centurion came to him asking for help, Luke's account ( 7:1-10) mentions that the centurion sent some Jewish elders as emissaries on his behalf. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "and saying, 'Lord.'" To claim divine prerogatives or claim to speak for God when one really does not would be such an act of offense. The remark raised directly the issue of the nature of Jesus’ ministry. 24 sn: Which is easier is a reflective kind of question. On the one hand to declare sins are forgiven is easier, since one does not need to see it, unlike telling a paralyzed person to walk. On the other hand, it is harder, because for it to be true one must possess the authority to forgive the sin. 25 sn: Now Jesus put the two actions together. The walking of the man would be proof ( so that you may know) that his sins were forgiven and that God had worked through Jesus (i.e., the Son of Man). 26 sn: The term Son of Man, which is a title in Greek, comes from a pictorial description in Dan 7:13 of one “like a son of man” (i.e., a human being). It is Jesus’ favorite way to refer to himself. Jesus did not reveal the background of the term here, which mixes human and divine imagery as the man in Daniel rides a cloud, something only God does. He just used it. It also could be an idiom in Aramaic meaning either “some person” or “me.” So there is a little ambiguity in its use here, since its origin is not clear at this point. However, the action makes it clear that Jesus used it to refer to himself here.

But the days24 are coming when the bridegroom will be taken from them, 25 and then they will fast. 16 No one sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on an old garment, because the patch will pull away from the garment and the tear will be worse. 17 And no one pours new wine into old wineskins; 26 otherwise the skins burst and the wine is spilled out and the skins are destroyed. Instead they put new wine into new wineskins27 and both are preserved."

The zealous fasted twice a week on Monday and Thursday. 22 tn: Grk "sons of the wedding hall," an idiom referring to wedding guests, or more specifically friends of the bridegroom present at the wedding celebration (L&N 11.7). 23 sn: The expression while the bridegroom is with them is an allusion to messianic times ( John 3:29; Isa 54:5-6; 62:4-5; 4 Ezra 2:15, 38). 24 tn: Grk "days." 25 sn: The statement the bridegroom will be taken from them is a veiled allusion by Jesus to his death, which he did not make explicit until the incident at Caesarea Philippi in 16:13ff. 26 sn: Wineskins were bags made of skin or leather, used for storing wine in NT times. As the new wine fermented and expanded, it would stretch the new wineskins. Putting new (unfermented) wine in old wineskins, which had already been stretched, would result in the bursting of the wineskins. 27 sn: The meaning of the saying new wine into new wineskins is that the presence and teaching of Jesus was something new and signaled the passing of the old. ### Workers for the Harvest

<sup>35</sup> Then Jesus went throughout all the towns<sup>18</sup> and villages, teaching in their synagogues, <sup>19</sup> preaching the good news of the kingdom, and healing every kind of disease and sickness. <sup>2036</sup> When<sup>21</sup> he saw the crowds, he had compassion on them because they were bewildered and helpless, <sup>22</sup> like sheep without a shepherd. <sup>37</sup> Then he said to his disciples, "The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few. <sup>38</sup> Therefore ask the Lord of the harvest<sup>23</sup> to send out<sup>24</sup> workers into his harvest."

The strong man here pictures Satan. <sup>21</sup> sn: Some see the imagery here as similar to Eph 4:7-10, although no opponents are explicitly named in that passage. Jesus has the victory over Satan. Jesus' acts of healing mean that the war is being won and the kingdom is coming. <sup>22</sup> sn: Whoever is not with me is against me. The call here is to join the victor. Failure to do so means that one is being destructive. Responding to Jesus is the issue. <sup>23</sup> sn: For the image of scattering, see Pss. This passage has troubled many people, who have wondered whether or not they have committed this sin. Three things must be kept in mind: (1) the nature of the sin is to ascribe what is the obvious work of the Holy Spirit (e.g., releasing people from Satan's power) to Satan himself; (2) it is not simply a momentary doubt or sinful attitude, but is indeed a settled condition which opposes the Spirit's work, as typified by the religious leaders who opposed Jesus; and (3) a person who is concerned about it has probably never committed this sin, for those

21 κ s,c MSS §†† sn: Jesus here demonstrated the absurdity of the thinking of the religious leaders who maintained that he was in league with Satan and that he actually derived his power from the devil. He first teaches (vv. 25-28) that if he casts out demons by the ruler of the demons, then in reality Satan is fighting against himself, with the result that his kingdom has come to an end. He then teaches (v. 29) about tying up the strong man to prove that he does not need to align himself with the devil because he is more powerful. Jesus defeated Satan at his temptation (4:1-11) and by his exorcisms he clearly demonstrated himself to be stronger than the devil. The passage reveals the desperate condition of the religious leaders, who in their hatred for Jesus end up attributing the work of the Holy Spirit to Satan (a position for which they will be held accountable, 12:31-32). §† tn: Or "is left in ruins." §†† tn: This first class condition, the first of three

<sup>21</sup> sn: The background for the reference to waterless places is not entirely clear, though some Jewish texts suggest spirits must have a place to dwell, but not with water ( Luke 8:29-31; Tob 8:3). Some suggest that the image of the desert or deserted cities as the places demons dwell is where this idea started ( Isa 13:21; 34:14). <sup>22</sup> tn: Here καί kai

The key to the example appears to be that no one else has been invited in to dwell. If an exorcism occurs and there is no response to God, then the way is free for the demon to return. Some see the reference to exorcism as more symbolic; thus the story's only point is about responding to Jesus. This is possible and certainly is an application of the passage. <sup>27</sup> tn: Here καί kai

Epiphanius, in the 4th century, argued that Mary was a perpetual virgin and had no offspring other than Jesus. Others argued that these brothers were really cousins. Nothing in the text suggests any of this. ‡††† sn: Though parables can contain a variety of figures of speech (cf. the remainder of chapter 13), many times they are simply stories that attempt to teach spiritual truth (which is unknown to the hearers) by using a comparison with something known to the hearers. In general, parables usually advance a single idea, though there may be many parts and characters in a single parable and subordinate ideas may expand the main idea further. The beauty of using the parable as a teaching device is that it draws the listener into the story, elicits an evaluation, and demands a response. ‡††† tn: Grk "Behold." § sn: A sower went out to sow. The background for this well-known parable, drawn from a typical scene in the Palestinian countryside, is a field through which a well-worn path runs. Sowing would occur in late fall or early winter (October to December) in the rainy season, looking for sprouting in April or May and a June harvest. The use of seed as a figure for God's giving life has OT roots (Isa 55:10-11). The point of the parable of the sower is to illustrate the various responses to the message of the kingdom of God. §† tn: In Matthew's version of this parable, plural pronouns are used to refer to the seed in v. 4 ( ἃ αὐτά ja auta

This was Jesus' common expression to listen and heed carefully (cf. Matt 11:15, 13:43; Mark 4:9, 23; Luke 8:8, 14:35).

<sup>10</sup> Then§§† the disciples came to him and said, "Why do you speak to them in parables?"<sup>11</sup> He replied, §§§ "You have been given<sup>18</sup> the opportunity to know<sup>19</sup> the secrets<sup>20</sup> of the kingdom of heaven, but they have not.<sup>12</sup> For whoever has will be given more, and will have an abundance. But whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken from him.<sup>21,13</sup> For this reason I speak to them in parables: Although they see they do not see, and although they hear they do not hear nor do they understand.<sup>14</sup> And concerning them the prophecy of Isaiah is fulfilled that says:

' You will listen carefully<sup>22</sup> yet will never understand, you will look closely<sup>23</sup> yet will never comprehend.<sup>15</sup> For the heart of this people has become dull; they are hard of hearing, and they have shut their eyes, so that they would not see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their hearts and turn, and I would heal them.'<sup>24</sup>

<sup>16</sup> " But your eyes are blessed<sup>25</sup> because they see, and your ears because they hear.<sup>17</sup> For I tell you the truth, <sup>26</sup> many prophets and righteous people longed to see<sup>27</sup> what you see but did not see it, and to hear what you hear but did not hear it.

The Parable of the Yeast

33 He told them another parable : “The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed with 24 three measures 25 of flour until all the dough had risen.” 26

The Purpose of Parables

34 Jesus spoke all these things in parables to the crowds; he did not speak to them without a parable. 35 This fulfilled what was spoken by the prophet: 27 “ I will open my mouth in parables, I will announce what has been hidden from the foundation of the world .” 28

ble, saying.” The participle λέγων legwn 20 sn: The mustard seed was noted for its tiny size. 21 sn: This is rhetorical hyperbole, since technically a mustard plant is not a tree. This could refer to one of two types of mustard plant popular in Palestine and would be either ten or twenty-five ft (3 or 7.5 m) tall. 22 tn: Grk “the birds of the sky” or “the birds of the heaven”; the Greek word οὐρανός ouranos πτειλόν 23 sn: The point of the parable seems to be that while the kingdom of God may appear to have insignificant and unnoticeable beginnings (i.e., in the ministry of Jesus), it will someday (i.e., at the second advent) be great and quite expansive. The kingdom, however, is not to be equated with the church, but rather the church is an expression of the kingdom. Also, there is important OT background in the image of the mustard seed that grew and became a tree: Ezek 17:22-24 pictures the reemergence of the Davidic house where people can find calm and shelter. Like the mustard seed, it would start out small but grow to significant size. 24 tn: Grk “hid in.” 25 sn: This measure was a saton, the Greek name for the Hebrew term “seah.” Three of these was a very large quantity of flour, since a saton is a little over 16 pounds (7 kg) of dry measure (or 13.13 liters). So this was over 47 lbs (21 kg) of flour total, enough to feed over a hundred people. 26 tn: Grk “it was all leavened.” sn: The parable of the yeast and the dough teaches that the kingdom of God will start small but eventually grow to permeate everything. Jesus’ point was not to be deceived by its seemingly small start, the same point made in the parable of the mustard seed, which preceded this one. 27 tc: A few important mss κ θ 1,13

Explanation for the Disciples

<sup>36</sup> Then he left the crowds and went into the house. And his disciples came to him saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field." <sup>37</sup> He† answered, "The one who sowed the good seed is the Son of Man. <sup>38</sup> The field is the world and the good seed are the people†† of the kingdom. The weeds are the people‡ of the evil one, <sup>39</sup> and the enemy who sows them is the devil. The harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are angels. <sup>40</sup> As†† the weeds are collected and burned with fire, so it will be at the end of the age. <sup>41</sup> The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will gather from his kingdom everything that causes sin as well as all lawbreakers. <sup>††42</sup> They will throw them into the fiery furnace, ††† where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>43</sup> Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. ††† The one who has ears had better listen! §

Rejection at Nazareth

<sup>53</sup> Now when§† Jesus finished these parables, he moved on from there. <sup>54</sup> Then§†† he came to his hometown§† and began to teach the people§† in their synagogue. §§† They§§† were astonished and said, "Where did this man get such wisdom and miraculous powers? <sup>55</sup> Isn't this the carpenter's son? Isn't his mother named Mary? <sup>‡§§§</sup> And aren't his brothers James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas? <sup>56</sup> And aren't all his sisters here with us? Where did he get all this?" <sup>1857</sup> And so they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his hometown and in his own house." <sup>58</sup> And he did not do many miracles there because of their unbelief.

14 At that time Herod the tetrarch<sup>19</sup> heard reports about Jesus, <sup>2</sup> and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist. He has been raised from the dead! And because of this, miraculous powers are at work in him." <sup>3</sup> For Herod had arrested John, bound him,<sup>20</sup> and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, <sup>4</sup> because John had repeatedly told<sup>21</sup> him, "It is not lawful for you to have her." <sup>225</sup> Although<sup>23</sup> Herod <sup>24</sup> wanted to kill John, <sup>25</sup> he feared the crowd be-

§§§ sn: The reference to Jesus as the carpenter's son is probably derogatory, indicating that they knew Jesus only as a common laborer like themselves. The reference to his mother...Mary (even though Jesus' father was probably dead by this point) appears to be somewhat derogatory, for a man was not regarded as his mother's son in Jewish usage unless an insult was intended (cf. Judg 11:1-2; John 4:41; 8:41; 9:29). <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "Where did he get these things?" <sup>19</sup> sn: A tetrarch, a ruler with rank and authority lower than a king, ruled only with the approval of the Roman authorities. This was roughly equivalent to being governor of a region. The Feeding of the Five Thousand

<sup>13</sup> Now when Jesus heard this he went away from there privately in a boat to an isolated place. But when the crowd heard about it,‡†† they followed him on foot from the towns. <sup>‡††14</sup> As he got out he saw the large crowd, and he had compassion on them and healed their sick. <sup>15</sup> When evening arrived, his disciples came to him saying, "This is an isolated place§ and the hour is already late. Send the crowds away so that they can go into the villages and buy food for themselves." <sup>16</sup> But he§† replied, "They don't need to go. You§†† give them something to eat." <sup>17</sup> They§‡ said to him, "We have here only five loaves and two fish." <sup>18</sup> "Bring them here to me," he replied. <sup>19</sup> Then§†† he instructed the crowds to sit down on the grass. He took the five loaves and two fish, and looking up to heaven he gave thanks and broke the loaves. He gave them to the disciples, §† who in turn gave them to the crowds. <sup>§‡20</sup>

<sup>22</sup> Immediately Jesus§§† made the disciples get into the boat and go ahead of him to the other side, while he dispersed the crowds. <sup>23</sup> And after he sent the crowds away, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. When evening came, he was there alone. <sup>24</sup> Meanwhile the boat, already far from land, §§§ was taking a beating from the waves because the wind was against it. <sup>25</sup> As the night was ending, §§§ Jesus came to them walking on the sea. <sup>1826</sup> When<sup>19</sup> the disciples saw him walking on the water<sup>20</sup> they were terrified and said, "It's a ghost!" and cried out with fear. <sup>27</sup> But immediately Jesus<sup>21</sup> spoke to them :<sup>22</sup> "Have courage ! The Feeding of the Four Thousand

32 Then Jesus called the<sup>19</sup> disciples and said, "I have compassion on the crowd, because they have already been here with me three days and they have nothing to eat. I don't want to send them away hungry since they may faint on the way." 33 The disciples said to him, "Where can we get enough bread in this desolate place to satisfy so great a crowd?" 34 Jesus said to them, "How many loaves do you have ?" They replied, "Seven - and a few small fish." 35 After instructing the crowd to sit down on the ground, 36 he took the seven loaves and the fish, and after giving thanks, he broke them and began giving them to the disciples, who then gave them to the crowds. <sup>2037</sup> They<sup>21</sup> all ate and were satisfied, and they picked up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. 38 Not counting children and women, 22 there were four thousand men who ate. <sup>2339</sup> After sending away the crowd, he got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan. 24

give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven. Whatever you bind on earth will have been bound in heaven, and whatever you release on earth will have been released in heaven." <sup>20</sup> Then he instructed his disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Christ. §§§

First Prediction of Jesus' Death and Resurrection

<sup>21</sup> From that time on<sup>18</sup> Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem<sup>19</sup> and suffer<sup>20</sup> many things at the hands of the elders, chief priests, and experts in the law, <sup>21</sup> and be killed, and on the third day be raised. <sup>22</sup> So Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him :<sup>22</sup> "God forbid, <sup>23</sup> Lord ! This must not happen to you!" <sup>23</sup> But he turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan ! You are a stumbling block to me, because you are not setting your mind on God's interests, but on man's." <sup>24</sup> Then Jesus said to his disciples, "If anyone wants to become my follower, <sup>25</sup> he must deny<sup>26</sup> himself, take up his cross, <sup>27</sup> and follow me. <sup>25</sup> For whoever wants to save his life<sup>28</sup> will lose it, <sup>29</sup> but whoever loses his life for my sake will find it. <sup>26</sup>

The reference to six days later in 17:1 seems to indicate that Matthew had the transfiguration in mind insofar as it was a substantial prefiguring of the consummation of the kingdom (although this interpretation is not without its problems). As such, the transfiguration would be a tremendous confirmation to the disciples that even though Jesus had just finished speaking of his death (in vv. 21-23), he was nonetheless the promised Messiah and things were proceeding according to God’s plan. ‡‡† tn: Grk “And after six days.” § tn: Grk “John his brother” with “his” referring to James. §† sn: In 1st century Judaism and in the NT, there was the belief that the righteous get new, glorified bodies in order to enter heaven ( 1 Cor 15:42-49; 2 Cor 5:1-10). ### The Authority of Jesus

23 Now after Jesus<sup>s††</sup> entered the temple courts, 18 the chief priests and elders of the people came up to him as he was teaching and said, "By what authority<sup>19</sup> are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?" 24 Jesus<sup>20</sup> answered them, "I will also ask you one question. If you answer me then I will also tell you by what authority I do these things. 25 Where did John's baptism come from? From heaven or from people?"<sup>21</sup> They discussed this among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Then why did you not believe him?'" 26 But if we say, 'From people,' we fear the crowd, for they all consider John to be a prophet." 27 So<sup>22</sup> they answered Jesus, 23 "We don't know." 24 Then he said to them, "Neither will I tell you<sup>25</sup> by what authority<sup>26</sup> I am doing these things.

Jesus' Anointing

<sup>6</sup> Now while Jesus was in Bethany at the house of Simon the leper, <sup>7</sup> a woman came to him with an alabaster jar§§§ of expensive perfumed oil, <sup>18</sup> and she poured it on his head as he was at the table. <sup>19</sup> When<sup>20</sup> the disciples saw this, they became indignant and said, "Why this waste? <sup>9</sup> It<sup>21</sup> could have been sold at a high price and the money<sup>22</sup> given to the poor!" <sup>10</sup> When<sup>23</sup> Jesus learned of this, he said to them, "Why are you bothering this woman? She<sup>24</sup> has done a good service for me. <sup>11</sup> For you will always have the poor with you, but you will not always have me! <sup>25</sup> <sup>12</sup> When<sup>26</sup> she poured this oil on my body, she did it to prepare me for burial. <sup>13</sup> I tell you the truth, <sup>27</sup> wherever this gospel is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will also be told in memory of her."

The Plan to Betray Jesus

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelve, the one named Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests<sup>15</sup> and said, "What will you give me to betray him into your hands?"<sup>28</sup> So they set out thirty silver coins for him. <sup>16</sup> From that time<sup>29</sup> on, Judas<sup>30</sup> began looking for an opportunity to betray him.

It would be better for him if he had never been born." <sup>25</sup> Then‡† Judas, the one who would betray him, said, "Surely not I, Rabbi ?" Jesus‡† replied, "You have said it yourself."

The Lord's Supper

<sup>26</sup> While‡‡† they were eating, Jesus took bread, and after giving thanks he broke it, gave it to his disciples, and said, "Take, eat, this is my body." <sup>27</sup> And after taking the cup and giving thanks, he gave it to them, saying, "Drink from it, all of you, <sup>28</sup> for this is my blood, the blood‡‡† of the covenant, ‡‡‡ that is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. <sup>29</sup> I<sup>†18</sup> tell you, from now on I will not drink of this fruit<sup>19</sup> of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." <sup>30</sup> After<sup>20</sup> singing a hymn, <sup>21</sup> they went out to the Mount of Olives.

The Prediction of Peter's Denial

<sup>31</sup> Then Jesus said to them, "This night you will all fall away because of me, for it is written: ' I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.' "<sup>22</sup>

<sup>32</sup> But after I am raised, I will go ahead of you into Galilee." <sup>33</sup> Peter<sup>23</sup> said to him, "If they all fall away because of you, I will never fall away!" <sup>34</sup> Jesus said to him, "I tell you the truth, <sup>24</sup> on this night, before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times." <sup>35</sup> Peter said to him, "Even if I must die with you, I will never deny you." And all the disciples said the same thing.

Gethsemane

<sup>36</sup> Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane, and he said to the disciples, "Sit here while I go over there and pray." <sup>37</sup> He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and became anguished and distressed. <sup>38</sup> Then he said to them, "My soul is deeply grieved, even to the point of death. Remain here and stay awake with me." <sup>39</sup> Going a little farther, he threw himself down with his face to the ground and prayed,

The Passover lamb was roasted and eaten after sunset in a family group of at least ten people ( m. Pesahim 7.13). People ate the meal while reclining (see the note on table in 26:20). ### Betrayal and Arrest

<sup>47</sup> While he was still speaking, Judas, §† one of the twelve, arrived. With him was a large crowd armed with swords and clubs, sent by the chief priests and elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> (Now the betrayer§†† had given them a sign, saying, "The one I kiss is the man. §† Arrest him!") <sup>§††49</sup> Immediately§† he went up to Jesus and said, "Greetings, Rabbi," and kissed him. <sup>§†50</sup> Jesus§§† said to him, "Friend, do what you are here to do." Then all the disciples left him and fled.

Condemned by the Sanhedrin

<sup>57</sup> Now the ones who had arrested Jesus led him to Caiaphas, the high priest, in whose house<sup>25</sup> the experts in the law<sup>26</sup> and the elders had gathered. <sup>58</sup> But Peter was following him from a distance, all the way to the high priest's courtyard. After<sup>27</sup> going in, he sat with the guards<sup>28</sup> to see the outcome. <sup>59</sup> The<sup>29</sup> chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin were trying to find false testimony against Jesus so that they could put him to death. <sup>60</sup> But they did not find anything, though many false witnesses came forward. Finally <sup>30</sup> two came forward <sup>61</sup> and declared, "This man<sup>31</sup> said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God and rebuild it in three days.'" <sup>62</sup> So<sup>32</sup> the high priest stood up and said to him, "Have you no answer? The<sup>33</sup> high priest said to him, "I charge you under oath by the living God, tell us if you are the Christ, <sup>34</sup> the Son of God." <sup>64</sup> Jesus said to him, "You have said it yourself. Jesus and Pilate

11 Then† Jesus stood before the governor, and the governor asked him, †† "Are you the king‡ of the Jews?" Jesus†† said, "You say so." <sup>‡‡12</sup> But when he was accused by the chief priests and the elders, he did not respond. <sup>13</sup> Then Pilate said to him, "Don't you hear how many charges they are bringing against you?" <sup>14</sup> But he did not answer even one accusation, so that the governor was quite amazed.

<sup>15</sup> During the feast the governor was accustomed to release one prisoner to the crowd, ‡‡ whomever they wanted. <sup>16</sup> At that time they had in custody a notorious prisoner named Jesus‡‡ Barabbas. <sup>17</sup> So after they had assembled, Pilate said to them, "Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus§ Barabbas or Jesus who is called the Christ?" <sup>§†18</sup> (For he knew that they had handed him over because of envy.) <sup>§††19</sup> As§† he was sitting on the judgment seat, §†† his wife sent a message§† to him :§† "Have nothing to do with that innocent man; §§† I have suffered greatly as a result of a dream§§† about him today." <sup>20</sup> But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus killed. <sup>21</sup> The§§§ governor asked them, "Which of the two do you want me to release for you?" And they said, "Barabbas!" <sup>22</sup> Pilate said to them, "Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Christ?"<sup>18</sup> They all said, "Crucify him!" <sup>1923</sup> He asked, "Why? What wrong has he done?" But they shouted more insistently, "Crucify him!"

Jesus is Condemned and Mocked

<sup>24</sup> When<sup>20</sup> Pilate saw that he could do nothing, but that instead a riot was starting, he took some water, washed his hands before the crowd and said, "I am innocent of this man's blood. You take care of it yourselves!" <sup>2125</sup> In<sup>22</sup> reply all the people said, "Let his blood be on us and on our children!" <sup>26</sup> Then he released Barabbas for them. But after he had Jesus flogged, <sup>23</sup> he handed him over<sup>24</sup> to be crucified. <sup>2527</sup> Then the governor's soldiers took Jesus into the governor's residence<sup>26</sup> and gathered the whole cohort<sup>27</sup> around him.

Then§† they led him away to crucify him.

The Crucifixion

32 As§† they were going out, they found a man from Cyrene named Simon, whom they forced§†† to carry his cross.<sup>§§†33</sup> They§§§ came to a place called Golgotha<sup>18</sup> (which means "Place of the Skull")<sup>1934</sup> and offered Jesus<sup>20</sup> wine mixed with gall to drink.<sup>21</sup> But after tasting

The soldiers did this to Jesus as a form of mockery in view of the charges that he was a king. ‡ tn: Or "weaving." ‡† sn: The crown may have been made from palm spines or some other thorny plant common in Israel. In placing the crown of thorns on his head, the soldiers were unwittingly symbolizing God's curse on humanity (cf. Gen 3:18) being placed on Jesus. Their purpose would have been to mock Jesus' claim to be a king; the crown of thorns would have represented the "radiant corona" portrayed on the heads of rulers on coins and other artifacts in the 1st century. ‡†† tn: Here kaí kai ‡††† tn: Or "a reed." Apparently he was unable to bear the cross himself, so Simon was conscripted to help (in all probability this was only the crossbeam, called in Latin the pattibulum, since the upright beam usually remained in the ground at the place of execution). Cyrene was located in North Africa where Tripoli is today. Nothing more is known about this Simon. Mark 15:21 names him as father of two people apparently known to Mark's audience. §§§†† tn: Here kaí kai 18 tn: This is an Aramaic name; see John 19:17. 19 sn: A place called Golgotha (which means "Place of the Skull"). He is the king of Israel! If he comes down<sup>35</sup> now from the cross, we will believe in him!<sup>43</sup> He trusts in God – let God, if he wants to, deliver him now<sup>36</sup> because he said, 'I am God's Son!'"<sup>44</sup> The<sup>37</sup> robbers who were crucified with him also spoke abusively to him.<sup>38</sup>

Jesus' Death

45 Now from noon until three,<sup>39</sup> darkness came over all the land.<sup>4046</sup> At<sup>41</sup> about three o'clock Jesus shouted with a loud voice,<sup>42</sup> "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?"<sup>4347</sup>

The Guard at the Tomb

<sup>62</sup> The<sup>22</sup> next day (which is after the day of preparation) the chief priests and the Pharisees<sup>23</sup> assembled before Pilate<sup>63</sup> and said, "Sir, we remember that while that deceiver was still alive he said, 'After three days I will rise again.'<sup>64</sup> So give orders to secure the tomb until the third day. Otherwise his disciples may come and steal his body<sup>24</sup> and say to the people, 'He has been raised from the dead,' and the last deception will be worse than the first."<sup>65</sup> Pilate said to them, "Take<sup>25</sup> a guard of soldiers. Go and make it as secure as you can."<sup>66</sup> So<sup>26</sup> they went with the soldiers<sup>27</sup> of the guard and made the tomb secure by sealing the stone.

28 Now after the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to look at the tomb.<sup>2</sup> Suddenly there was a severe earthquake, for an angel of the Lord<sup>28</sup> descending from heaven came and rolled away the stone and sat on it.<sup>3</sup> His<sup>29</sup> appearance was like lightning, and his clothes were white as snow.<sup>4</sup> The<sup>30</sup> guards were shaken and became like dead men because they were so afraid of him.<sup>5</sup> But the angel said<sup>31</sup> to the women, "Do not be afraid; I know<sup>32</sup> that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified.<sup>336</sup> He is not here, for he has been raised,<sup>34</sup> just as he said. They‡‡ came to him, held on to his feet and worshiped him. <sup>10</sup> Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid. Go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee. They will see me there."

The Guards' Report

1 The beginning of the gospel† of Jesus Christ, †† the Son of God. <sup>‡2</sup> As it is written in Isaiah the prophet, ‡

Though its origin is not entirely clear, it seems to have arisen in the postexilic community during the intertestamental period. A town could establish a synagogue if there were at least ten men. In normative Judaism of the NT period, the OT scripture was read and discussed in the synagogue by the men who were present. (See the Mishnah, m. Megillah 3-4; m. Berakhot 2.) Healings at Simon's House

The Call of Levi; Eating with Sinners

<sup>13</sup> Jesus‡‡‡ went out again by the sea. The whole crowd came to him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> As he went along, he saw Levi, the son of Alphaeus, sitting at the tax booth. ‡‡‡ "Follow me," he said to him. And he got up and followed him. <sup>15</sup> As Jesus§ was having a meal§† in Levi's§†† home, many tax collectors§‡ and sinners were eating with Jesus and his disciples, for there were many who followed him. <sup>16</sup> When the experts in the law§‡† and the Pharisees§† saw that he was eating sins are forgiven is easier, since one does not need to see it, unlike telling a paralyzed person to walk. On the other hand, it is harder, because for it to be true one must possess the authority to forgive the sin. † sn: Now Jesus put the two actions together. The walking of the man would be proof (so that you may know) that his sins were forgiven and that God had worked through Jesus (i.e., the Son of Man). †† sn: The term Son of Man, which is a title in Greek, comes from a pictorial description in Dan 7:13 of one "like a son of man" (i.e., a human being). It is Jesus' favorite way to refer to himself. Jesus did not reveal the background of the term here, which mixes human and divine imagery as the man in Daniel rides a cloud, something only God does. He just used it. It also could be an idiom in Aramaic meaning either "some person" or "me." So there is a little ambiguity in its use here, since its origin is not clear at this point. However, the action makes it clear that Jesus used it to refer to himself here. ‡ sn: Jesus did not finish his sentence with words but with action, that is, healing the paralytic with an accompanying pronouncement to him directly. ‡† tn: Grk "to your house." ‡‡ tn: Grk "he"; the referent (the man who was healed) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡‡† tn: Grk "He"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡‡‡ tn: While "tax office" is sometimes given as a translation for τελώνιον telwnion

The Superiority of the New

<sup>18</sup> Now§§‡ John's §§§ disciples and the Pharisees<sup>18</sup> were fasting. <sup>19</sup> So<sup>20</sup> they came to Jesus<sup>21</sup> and said, "Why do the disciples of John and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples don't fast?" <sup>19</sup> Jesus<sup>22</sup> said to them, "The wedding guests<sup>23</sup> cannot fast while the bridegroom<sup>24</sup> is with them, can they?<sup>25</sup> As long as they have the bridegroom with them they do not fast. <sup>20</sup> But the days are coming when the bridegroom will be taken from them, <sup>26</sup> and at that time<sup>27</sup> they will fast. <sup>21</sup> No one sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on an old garment; otherwise, the patch pulls away from it, the new from the old, and the tear becomes worse. <sup>22</sup> And no one pours new wine into old wineskins; <sup>28</sup> otherwise, the wine will burst the skins, and both the wine and the skins will be destroyed. and influential religious and political parties of Judaism in the time of Jesus. There were more Pharisees than Sadducees (according to Josephus, Ant. 17.2.4 [17.42] there were more than 6,000 Pharisees at about this time). Pharisees differed with Sadducees on certain doctrines and patterns of behavior. The Pharisees were strict and zealous adherents to the laws of the OT and to numerous additional traditions such as angels and bodily resurrection. §‡ sn: The issue here is inappropriate associations. Jews were very careful about personal associations and contact as a matter of ritual cleanliness. Their question borders on an accusation that Jesus is ritually unclean. §§† sn: Jesus' point is that he associates with those who are sick because they have the need and will respond to the offer of help. As the new wine fermented and expanded, it would stretch the new wineskins. Putting new (unfermented) wine in old wineskins, which had already been stretched, would result in the bursting of the wineskins. 29 sn: The mean-

Jesus' True Family

31 Then§† Jesus' §†† mother and his brothers§§§ came. Standing§§§ outside, they sent word to him, to summon him. 32 A crowd was sitting around him and they said to him, "Look, your mother and your brothers18 are outside looking for you." 33 He answered them and said, "Who are my mother and my brothers?" 1934 And looking at those who were sitting around him in a circle, he said, "Here20 are my mother and my brothers! 35 For whoever does the will of God is21 my brother and sister and mother."

4 Again he began to teach by the lake. Such a large crowd gathered around him that he got into a boat on the lake and sat there while22 the whole crowd was on the shore by the lake. 2 He taught them many things in parables, 23 and in his teaching said to

§†† sn: Is guilty of an eternal sin. This passage has troubled many people, who have wondered whether or not they have committed this eternal sin . Three things must be kept in mind: (1) the nature of the sin is to ascribe what is the obvious work of the Holy Spirit (e.g., releasing people from Satan's power) to Satan himself; (2) it is not simply a momentary doubt or sinful attitude, but is indeed a settled condition which opposes the Spirit's work, as typified by the religious leaders who opposed Jesus; and (3) a person who is concerned about it has probably never committed this sin, for those who commit it here (i.e., the religious leaders) are not in the least concerned about Jesus' warning. On this last point see W. W. Wessel, "Mark," EBC 8:645-46. §† sn: Unclean spirit refers to an evil spirit. §† tn: Grk "And." Here καί kai

‡‡† sn: Jesus spoke two parables to demonstrate the absurdity of the thinking of the religious leaders who maintained that he was in league with Satan and that he actually derived his power from the devil. The first parable (vv. 23-26) teaches that if Jesus cast out demons by the ruler of the demons, then in reality Satan is fighting against himself, with the result that his kingdom has come to an end. The second parable (v. 28) about tying up a strong man proves that Jesus does not need to align himself with the devil because Jesus is more powerful. Jesus defeated Satan at his temptation ( 1:12-13) and by his exorcisms he clearly demonstrated himself to be stronger than the devil. The passage reveals the desperate condition of the religious leaders, who in their hatred for Jesus end up attributing the work of the Holy Spirit to Satan (a position for which they will be held accountable, 3:29-30). For an explanation of what a parable is, see the note on parables in 4:2. ‡‡‡ sn: The three conditional statements in vv. 24-26 express the logical result of the assumption that Jesus heals by Satan's power, expressed by the religious leaders. The point is clear: If the leaders are correct, then Satan's kingdom will not stand, so the suggestion makes no sense. Satan would not seek to heal. § sn: The strong man here pictures Satan. §† sn: Some see the imagery here as similar to Eph 4:7-10, although no opponents are explicitly named in that passage. Jesus has the victory over Satan. Jesus' acts of healing mean that the war is being won and the kingdom is coming. §†† tn: Grk "Truly ( ἀμην amhn §† tn: Grk "all the sins and blasphemies they may speak will be forgiven the sons of men."

Epiphanius, in the 4th century, argued that Mary was a perpetual virgin and had no offspring other than Jesus. Others argued that these brothers were really cousins. Nothing in the text suggests any of this. See also John 7:3. §§§ tn: Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started here in the translation. 18 tc: ‡ Many MSS

In general, parables usually advance a single idea, though there may be many parts and characters in a single parable and subordinate ideas may expand the main idea further. The beauty of using the parable as a teaching device is that it draws

<sup>10</sup> When he was alone, those around him with the twelve asked him about the parables. <sup>11</sup> He said to them, "The secret§†† of the kingdom of God has been given§† to you. But to those outside, everything is in parables, the listener into the story, elicits an evaluation, and demands a response. † sn: A sower went out to sow. The background for this well-known parable, drawn from a typical scene in the Palestinian countryside, is a field through which a well worn path runs. Sowing would occur in late fall or early winter (October to December) in the rainy season, looking for sprouting in April or May and a June harvest. The use of seed as a figure for God's giving life has OT roots (Isa 55:10-11). The point of the parable of the sower is to illustrate the various responses to the message of the kingdom of God (cf. 4:11). †† tn: Mark's version of the parable, like Luke's (cf. Luke 8:4-8), uses the collective singular to refer to the seed throughout, so singular pronouns have been used consistently throughout this parable in the English translation. However, the parallel account in Matt 13:1-9 begins with plural pronouns in v. 4 but then switches to the collective singular in v. 5 ff. ‡ sn: The rocky ground in Palestine would be a limestone base lying right under the soil. †† tn: Grk "it did not have enough depth of earth." ††† tn: Grk "it did not have root." ††† sn: Palestinian weeds like these thorns could grow up to six feet in height and have a major root system. ††† sn: That is, crowded out the good plants. § tn: Here καί kai

§† tn: The translation "had better listen!" captures the force of the third person imperative more effectively than the traditional "let him hear," which sounds more like a permissive than an imperative to the modern English reader. This was Jesus' common expression to listen and heed carefully (cf. Matt 11:15; 13:9, 43; Mark 4:23; Luke 8:8, 14:35). §†† tn: Grk "the mystery." sn: The key term secret (μυστήριον musthriōn)

The Parable of the Growing Seed

<sup>26</sup> He also said, "The kingdom of God is like someone who spreads seed on the ground. <sup>27</sup> He goes to sleep and gets up, night and day, and the seed sprouts and grows, though he does not know how. <sup>28</sup> By itself the soil produces a crop, first the stalk, then the head, then the full grain in the head. <sup>29</sup> And when the grain is ripe, he sends in the sickle† because the harvest has come." ††

The Parable of the Mustard Seed

<sup>30</sup> He also asked, "To what can we compare the kingdom of God, or what parable can we use to present it? <sup>31</sup> It is like a mustard seed‡ that when sown in the ground, even though it is the smallest of all the seeds in the ground – <sup>32</sup> when it is sown, it grows up, †† becomes the greatest of all garden plants, and grows large branches so that the wild birds‡‡ can nest in its shade." ‡‡‡

†† sn: Because the harvest has come. This parable is found only in Mark (cf. Matt 13:24-30) and presents a complete picture of the coming of God's kingdom: (1) sowing; (2) growth; (3) harvest. Some understand the parable as a reference to evangelism. While this is certainly involved, it does not seem to be the central idea. In contrast to the parable of the sower which emphasizes the quality of the different soils, this parable emphasizes the power of the seed to cause growth (with the clear implication that the mysterious growth of the kingdom is accomplished by God), apart from human understanding and observation. ‡ sn: Mustard seeds are known for their tiny size. ‡† tn: Mark 4:31-32 is fairly awkward in Greek. Literally the sentence reads as follows: "As a mustard seed, which when sown in the earth, being the smallest of all the seeds in the earth, and when it is sown, it grows up..." The structure has been rendered in more idiomatic English, although some of the awkward structure has been retained for rhetorical effect. ‡‡ tn: Grk "the birds of the sky" or "the birds of the heaven"; the Greek word οὐρανός ouranos πειτελνόν ‡†† sn: The point of the parable seems to be that while the kingdom of God may appear to have insignificant and unnoticeable beginnings (i.e., in the ministry of Jesus), it will someday (i.e., at the second advent) be great and quite expansive. The kingdom, however, is not to be equated with the church, but rather the church is an expression of the kingdom. Also, there is important OT background in the image of the mustard seed that grew and became a tree: Ezek 17:22-24 pictures the reemergence of the Davidic house where people can find calm and shelter. Like the mustard seed, it would start out small but grow to significant size.

The Use of Parables

<sup>33</sup> So‡‡ with many parables like these, he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear. <sup>34</sup> He did not speak to them without a parable. But privately he explained everything to his own disciples.

Stilling of a Storm

<sup>35</sup> On that day, when evening came, Jesus§ said to his disciples, "Let's go across to the other side of the lake." <sup>§†36</sup> So§†† after leaving the crowd, they took him along, just as he was, in the boat, §† and other boats were with him. <sup>37</sup> Now§†† a great windstorm§† developed and the waves were breaking into the boat, so that the boat was nearly swamped. <sup>38</sup> But§† he was in the stern, sleeping on a cushion. They woke him up and said to him, "Teacher, don't you care that we are about to die?" <sup>39</sup> So§§† he got up and rebuked§§† the wind, and said to the sea, §§§ "Be quiet! Calm down!" Then<sup>18</sup> the wind stopped, and it was dead calm. <sup>40</sup> And he said to them, "Why are you cowardly? Do you still not have faith?" <sup>41</sup> They were overwhelmed by fear and said to one another, "Who then is this? <sup>19</sup> Even the wind and sea obey him!" <sup>20</sup>

19 sn: Jesus' authority over creation raised a question for the disciples about who he was exactly (Who then is this?). This verse shows that the disciples followed Jesus even though they did not know all about him yet. 20 sn: This section in Mark (4:35-5:43) contains four miracles: (1) the calming of the storm; (2) the exorcism of the demon-possessed man; (3) the giving of life to Jairus' daughter; (4) the healing of the woman hemorrhaging for twelve years. All these miracles demonstrate Jesus' right to proclaim the kingdom message and his sovereign authority over forces, directly or indirectly, hostile to the kingdom. The last three may have been brought together to show that Jesus had power over all defilement, since contact with graves, blood, or a corpse was regarded under Jewish law as causing a state of ritual uncleanness.

5 So† they came to the other side of the lake, to the region of the Gerasenes. ††2 Just as Jesus‡ was getting out of the boat, a man with an unclean spirit‡† came from the tombs and met him. ‡‡3 He lived among the tombs, and no one could bind him anymore, not even with a chain. 4 For his hands and feet had often been bound with chains and shackles, ‡‡† but‡‡† he had torn the chains apart and broken the shackles in pieces. No one was strong enough to subdue him. 5 Each night and every day among the tombs and in the mountains, he would cry out and cut himself with stones. 6 When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and bowed down before him. 7 Then‡ he cried out with a loud voice, "Leave me alone,‡† Jesus, Son of the Most High God! Then the herd rushed down the steep slope into the lake, and about two thousand were drowned in the lake.

14 Now‡† the herdsmen ran off and spread the news in the town and countryside, and the people went out to see what had happened. 15 They came to Jesus and saw the demon-possessed man sitting there, clothed and in his right mind – the one who had the "Legion" – and they were afraid. 16 Those who had seen what had happened to the demon-possessed man reported it, and they also told about the pigs. 17 Then‡† they asked Jesus‡†† to leave their region. 18 As he was getting into the boat the man who had been demon-possessed asked if he could go‡† with him. 19 But‡† Jesus‡†† did not permit him to do so. cope the author uses a term for being healed ( Grk “saved”) that would have spiritual significance to his readers. <sup>7</sup> Jesus§† called the twelve and began to send them out two by two. ### The Death of John the Baptist

<sup>14</sup> Now§§§ King Herod<sup>18</sup> heard this, for Jesus<sup>19</sup> name had become known. Some<sup>20</sup> were saying, “John the baptizer<sup>21</sup> has been raised from the dead, and because of this, miraculous powers are at work in him.” <sup>15</sup> Others said, “He is Elijah.” Others said, “He is a prophet, like one of the prophets from the past.” <sup>16</sup> But when Herod heard this, he said, “John, whom I beheaded, has been raised!” <sup>17</sup> For Herod himself had sent men, arrested John, and bound him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife, because Herod<sup>22</sup> had married her. <sup>18</sup> For John had repeatedly told<sup>23</sup> Herod, “It is not lawful for you to have your brother’s wife.” <sup>24</sup>19 So Herodias nursed a grudge against him and wanted to kill him. But<sup>25</sup> she could not<sup>20</sup> because Herod stood in awe of<sup>26</sup> John and protected him, since he knew that John<sup>27</sup> was a righteous and holy man. When Herod<sup>28</sup> heard him, he was thoroughly baffled, <sup>29</sup> and yet<sup>30</sup> he liked to listen to John. <sup>31</sup>

The Demand for a Sign

11 Then the Pharisees† came and began to argue with Jesus, asking for†† a sign from heaven‡ to test him. 12 Sighing deeply in his spirit he said, "Why does this generation look for a sign? I tell you the truth, ‡ no sign will be given to this generation." 13 Then‡‡ he left them, got back into the boat, and went to the other side.

The Yeast of the Pharisees and Herod

14 Now‡‡‡ they had forgotten to take bread, except for one loaf they had with them in the boat. 15 And Jesus‡‡‡ ordered them, § " Watch out ! Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees§† and the yeast of Herod!" 16 So they began to discuss with one another about having no bread. <sup>§††17</sup> When he learned of this, §† Jesus said to them, "Why are you arguing§†† about having no bread? Do you still not see or understand? Have your hearts been hardened? 18 Though you have eyes, don't you see? And though you have ears, can't you hear? ‡§† Don't you remember? 19 When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets full of pieces did you pick up?" They replied, "Twelve." 20 " When I broke the seven loaves for the four thousand, how many baskets full of pieces did you pick up?" They replied, §† " Seven." 21 Then§§† he said to them, "Do you still not understand?" §§†

A Two-stage Healing

22 Then§§§ they came to Bethsaida. They brought a blind man to Jesus<sup>18</sup> and asked him to touch him. 23 He took the blind man by the hand and brought him outside of the village. Then<sup>19</sup> he spit on his eyes, placed his hands on his eyes<sup>20</sup> and asked, "Do you see anything?" 24 Regaining his sight<sup>21</sup> he said, "I see people, but they look like trees walking." 25 Then Jesus<sup>22</sup> placed his hands on the man's<sup>23</sup> eyes again. And he opened his eyes, <sup>24</sup> his sight was restored, and he saw everything clearly. 26 Jesus<sup>25</sup> sent him home, saying, "Do not even go into the village." <sup>26</sup>

<sup>31</sup> Then §† Jesus §†† began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer §‡ many things and be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and experts in the law, §‡‡ and be killed, and after three days rise again. <sup>32</sup> He spoke openly about this. So §† Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. <sup>33</sup> But after turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, "Get behind me, Satan. § sn: Mark 8:27-10:52. The entire section 8:27-10:52 is built around three passion predictions of Jesus (8:31; 9:31; 10:33). These predictions form the structure of the section, the content for the section (Jesus' suffering, death, and the meaning of genuine discipleship) and the mood of the section (i.e., a somber mood). What is interesting is that after each passion prediction, Mark records both the misunderstanding of the disciples and then Jesus' teaching on the nature of his death and what genuine discipleship is all about: (1) denying oneself (8:34-38); (2) humility and serving (9:33-37); (3) suffering, humble service, and not lording it over people (10:35-45). ## Following Jesus

One who is willing to risk rejection will respond and find true life. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "a man," but ἀνθρωπος ανθρωπο

BDAG 195 s.v. γεύομαι) <sup>28</sup> sn: Several suggestions have been made as to the referent for the phrase the kingdom of God come with power: (1) the transfiguration itself, which immediately follows in the narrative; (2) Jesus' resurrection and ascension; (3) the coming of the Spirit; (4) Jesus' second coming and the establishment of the kingdom. The reference to after six days in 9:2 seems to indicate that Mark had the transfiguration in mind insofar as it was a substantial prefiguring of the consummation of the kingdom (although this interpretation is not without its problems). As such, the transfiguration was a tremendous confirmation to the disciples that even though Jesus had just finished speaking of his death (8:31; 9:31; 10:33), he was nonetheless the promised Messiah and things were proceeding according to God's plan. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "And after six days." <sup>30</sup> sn: In 1st century Judaism and in the NT, there was the belief that the righteous get new, glorified bodies in order to enter heaven (1 Cor 15:42-49; 2 Cor 5:1-10). This transformation his clothes became radiantly white, more so than any launderer in the world could bleach them. <sup>4</sup> Then Elijah appeared before them along with Moses, † and they were talking with Jesus. <sup>5</sup> So †† Peter said to Jesus, ‡ "Rabbi, it is good for us to be here. Let us make three shelters‡† – one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." <sup>6</sup> (For they were afraid, and he did not know what to say.) ‡‡ Then ‡‡‡ a cloud‡‡‡ overshadowed them, § and a voice came from the cloud, "This is my one dear Son. §† Listen to him!" §†† Suddenly when they looked around, they saw no one with them any more except Jesus.

<sup>9</sup> As they were coming down from the mountain, he gave them orders not to tell anyone what they had seen until after the Son of Man had risen from the dead. <sup>10</sup> They kept this statement to themselves, discussing what this rising from the dead meant.

<sup>11</sup> Then§† they asked him, §†† "Why do the experts in the law§† say that Elijah must come first?" <sup>12</sup> He said to them, "Elijah does indeed come first, and restores all things. And why is it written that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be despised? <sup>13</sup> But I tell you that Elijah has certainly come, and they did to him whatever they wanted, just as it is written about him."

means the righteous will share the glory of God. One recalls the way Moses shared the Lord's glory after his visit to the mountain in Exod 34. So the disciples saw Jesus transfigured, and they were getting a sneak preview of the great glory that Jesus would have (only his glory is more inherent to him as one who shares in the rule of the kingdom). † sn: Commentators and scholars discuss why Moses and Elijah are present. The most likely explanation is that Moses represents the prophetic office ( Acts 3:18-22) and Elijah pictures the presence of the last days ( Mal 4:5-6), the prophet of the eschaton (the end times). †† tn: Here καί kai

The Disciples' Failure to Heal

<sup>14</sup> When they came to the disciples, they saw a large crowd around them and experts in the law§† arguing with them. <sup>15</sup> When the whole crowd saw him, they were amazed and ran§§† at once and greeted him. <sup>16</sup> He asked them, "What are you arguing about with them?" <sup>17</sup> A member of the crowd said to him, "Teacher, I brought you my son, who is possessed by a spirit that makes him mute. <sup>18</sup> Whenever it seizes him, it throws him down, and he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and becomes rigid. I asked your disciples to cast it out, but§§† they were not able to do so." <sup>§§§19</sup> He answered them, <sup>18</sup> "You<sup>19</sup> unbelieving <sup>20</sup> generation ! How much longer<sup>21</sup> must I be with you ? How much longer must I endure<sup>22</sup> you <sup>23</sup> Bring him to me." <sup>20</sup> So they brought the boy<sup>24</sup> to him. When the spirit saw him, it immediately threw the boy into a convulsion. He<sup>25</sup> fell on the ground and rolled around, foaming at the mouth. <sup>21</sup> Jesus<sup>26</sup> asked his father, "How long has this been happening to him ?" And he said, "From childhood. <sup>22</sup> It has often thrown him into fire or water to destroy him. § sn: It was not uncommon in Jesus' day for a Jewish man to divorce his wife, but it was extremely rare for a wife to initiate such an action against her husband, since among many things it would have probably left her destitute and without financial support. Mark's inclusion of the statement And if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery (v. 12) reflects more the problem of the predominantly Gentile church in Rome to which he was writing. As such it may be an interpretive and parenthetical comment by the author rather than part of the saying by Jesus, which would stop at the end of v. 11. As such it should then be placed in parentheses. Further NT passages that deal with the issue of divorce and remarriage are Matt 5:31-32; 19:1-12; Luke 16:18; 1 Cor 7. ‡† tn: Here καί kai

 †† tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. sn: Mark 10:17-31. The following unit, Mark 10:17-31, can be divided up into three related sections: (1) the rich man's question (vv. 17-22); (2) Jesus' teaching on riches and the kingdom of God (vv. 23-27); and (3) Peter's statement and Jesus' answer (vv. 28-31). They are all tied together around the larger theme of the relationship of wealth to the kingdom Jesus had been preaching. The point is that it is impossible to attain to the kingdom by means of riches. The passage as a whole is found in the section 8:27-10:52 in which Mark has been focusing on Jesus' suffering and true discipleship. In vv. 28-31 Jesus does not deny great rewards to those who follow him, both in the present age and in the age to come, but it must be thoroughly understood that suffering will be integral to the mission of the disciples and the church, for in the very next section ( 10:32-34) Jesus reaffirmed the truth about his coming rejection, suffering, death, and resurrection. ‡ sn: The rich man wanted to know what he must do to inherit eternal life, but Jesus had just finished teaching that eternal life was not earned but simply received ( 10:15). †† sn: Jesus' response, Why do you call me good?, was designed to cause the young man to stop and think for a moment about who Jesus really was. The following statement No one is good except God alone seems to point the man in the direction of Jesus' essential nature and the demands which logically follow on the man for having said it. †† sn: A quotation from Exod 20:12-16; Deut 5:16-20, except for do not defraud, which is an allusion to Deut 24:14. ††† tn: Grk "He"; the referent (the man who asked the question in v. 17) has been specified in the translation for clarity. †††† tn: Grk "kept." The referent of the pronoun (the laws mentioned by Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. sn: While the rich man was probably being sincere when he insisted I have wholeheartedly obeyed all these laws, he had confined his righteousness to external obedience. The rich man's response to Jesus' command to give away all he had revealed that internally he loved money more than God. §† sn: Since my youth. Judaism regarded the age of thirteen as the age when a man would have become responsible to live by God's commands. §†† tn: The words "the money" are not in the Greek text, but are implied. Direct objects were often omitted in Greek when clear from the context. §† sn: The call for sacrifice comes with a promise of eternal reward: You will have treasure in heaven. 28 Peter began to speak to him, "Look, 23 we have left everything to follow you!" 2429 Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, 25 there is no one who has left home or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields for my sake and for the sake of the gospel‡† who will not receive in this age‡† a hundred times as much – homes, brothers, sisters, mothers, children, fields, all

<sup>28</sup> Now<sup>18</sup> one of the experts in the law<sup>19</sup> came and heard them debating. On this point the Pharisees agreed and were correct. But their understanding was nonetheless incomplete, for Messiah is also David's Lord. With this statement Jesus was affirming that, as the Messiah, he is both God and man. <sup>30</sup> sn: The Lord said to my Lord. With David being the speaker, this indicates his respect for his descendant (referred to as my Lord). Jesus was arguing, as the ancient exposition assumed, that the passage is about the Lord's anointed. The passage looks at an enthronement of this figure and a declaration of honor for him as he takes his place at the side of God. In Jerusalem, the king's palace was located to the right of the temple to indicate this kind of relationship. Jesus was pressing the language here to get his opponents to reflect on how great Messiah is.

For this kind of image, see Isa 40:8; 55:10-11. † sn: The phrase nor the Son has caused a great deal of theological debate because on the surface it appears to conflict with the concept of Jesus’ deity. The straightforward meaning of the text is that the Son does not know the time of his return. If Jesus were divine, though, wouldn’t he know this information? There are other passages which similarly indicate that Jesus did not know certain things. For example, Luke 2:52 indicates that Jesus grew in wisdom; this has to mean that Jesus did not know everything all the time but learned as he grew. So Mark 13:32 is not alone in implying that Jesus did not know certain things. The best option for understanding Mark 13:32 and similar passages is to hold the two concepts in tension: The Son in his earthly life and ministry had limited knowledge of certain things, yet he was still deity. †† tc: The vast majority of witnesses ( κ Θ Ψ 1,13 καὶ προσεύχασθε ἀγρυπνεῖτε agrupneite kai proseucesqe

The Passover

12 Now† on the first day of the feast of†† Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, ‡ Jesus‡ disciples said to him, “Where do you want us to prepare for you to eat the Passover?” ‡‡13 He sent two of his disciples and told them, “Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar‡‡ of water will meet you. Follow him. 14 Wherever he enters, tell the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher says, “Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?”’ 15 He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there.” 16 So‡‡ the disciples left, went‡ into the city, and found things just as he had told them, ‡† and they prepared the Passover.

17 Then, ‡†† when it was evening, he came to the house‡† with the twelve. 18 While they were at the table‡†† eating, Jesus said, “I tell you the truth, ‡† one of you eating with me will betray me.” ‡†19 They were distressed, and one by one said to him, “Surely not I?” 20 He said to them, “It is one of the twelve, one who dips his hand‡†† with me into the bowl. ‡‡‡21 For the Son of

The celebration of the Feast of Unleavened Bread lasted eight days, beginning with the Passover meal. The celebrations were so close together that at times the names of both were used interchangeably. ‡† tn: Grk “his”; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡‡ sn: This required getting a suitable lamb and finding lodging in Jerusalem where the meal could be eaten. The population of the city swelled during the feast, so lodging could be difficult to find. The Passover was celebrated each year in commemoration of the Israelites’ deliverance from Egypt; thus it was a feast celebrating redemption (see Exod 12). The Passover lamb was roasted and eaten after sunset in a family group of at least ten people ( m. Pesahim 7.13). People ate the meal while reclining (see the note on table in 14:18). It included, besides the lamb, unleavened bread and bitter herbs as a reminder of Israel’s bitter affliction at the hands of the Egyptians. Four cups of wine mixed with water were also used for the meal. For a further description of the meal and the significance of the wine cups, see E. In summary, they wanted Jesus to come down from the cross and save his physical life, but it was indeed his staying on the cross and giving his physical life that led to the fact that they could experience a resurrection from death to life. There is a similar kind of irony in the statement made by the chief priests and experts in the law in 15:31. § tn: Or "with the scribes." See the note on the phrase "experts in the law" in 1:22. Only "chief priests" is in the nominative case; this sentence structure attempts to capture this emphasis. §† tn: Grk "Mocking him, the chief priests...said among themselves." §†† tn: Or "the Messiah"; both "Christ" (Greek) and "Messiah" (Hebrew and Aramaic) mean "one who has been anointed." sn: See the note on Christ in 8:29. §† sn: Mark's wording suggests that both of the criminals spoke abusively to him. The responsibilities of centurions were broadly similar to modern junior officers, but there was a wide gap in social status between them and officers, and relatively few were promoted beyond the rank of senior centurion. The Roman troops stationed in Judea were auxiliaries, who would normally be rewarded with Roman citizenship after 25 years of service. Some of the centurions may have served originally in the Roman legions (regular army) and thus gained their citizenship at enlistment. Others may have inherited it, like Paul. 23 tn: Grk "the way he breathed his last"; or "the way he expired"; or "that he thus breathed no more." 24 sn: In Matt 27:56 the name Joses is written as Joseph. 25 tn: Grk "and ministered to him." sn: Cf. His faith is exemplary, especially for someone who was a member of the council that handed Jesus over for crucifixion (cf. Luke 23:51). He did this because he sought to give Jesus an honorable burial. ‡‡ tn: Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started here in the translation. ‡‡† tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Pilate) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡‡‡ sn: See the note on the word centurion in 15:39. § tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Joseph of Arimathea) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §† tn: The term σινδών sindwn is, cut or carved into an outcropping of natural rock, resulting in a cave-like structure (see L&N 19.25). §‡ tn: Here καί kai

Explanatory Preface

1 Now† many have undertaken to compile an account†† of the things‡ that have been fulfilled‡‡ among us, <sup>2</sup> like the accounts‡‡ passed on ‡‡‡ to us by those who were eyewitnesses and servants of the word‡‡‡ from the beginning. <sup>3</sup> So‡† it seemed good to me as well,‡†† because I have followed ‡† all things carefully from the beginning, to write an orderly account‡‡† for you, most excellent Theophilus, <sup>4</sup> so that you may know for certain‡† the things you were taught. ‡†

† tn: Grk "Since" or "Because." This begins a long sentence that extends through v. 4. Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence and the tendency of contemporary English style to use shorter sentences, the Greek sentence has been divided up into shorter English sentences in the translation. †† tn: This is sometimes translated "narrative," but the term itself can refer to an oral or written account. It is the verb "undertaken" which suggests a written account, since it literally is "to set one's hand" to something (BDAG 386 s.v. ἐπιχειρέω

‡ tn: Or "events." †† tn: Or "have been accomplished." Given Luke's emphasis on divine design (e.g., Luke 24:43-47) a stronger sense ("fulfilled") is better than a mere reference to something having taken place ("accomplished"). ‡‡ tn: Grk "even as"; this compares the recorded tradition of 1:1 with the original eyewitness tradition of 1:2. ‡‡† tn: Or "delivered." ‡‡‡ sn: The phrase eyewitnesses and servants of the word refers to a single group of people who faithfully passed on the accounts about Jesus. The language about delivery (passed on) points to accounts faithfully passed on to the early church. § tn: Grk "like the accounts those who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and servants of the word passed on to us." The location of "in the beginning" in the Greek shows that the tradition is rooted in those who were with Jesus from the start. §† tn: The conjunction "so" is supplied here to bring out the force of the latter part of this Greek sentence, which the translation divides up because of English style. Luke, in compiling his account, is joining a tradition with good precedent. §†† sn: When Luke says it seemed good to me as well he is not being critical of the earlier accounts, but sees himself stepping into a tradition of reporting about Jesus to which he will add uniquely a second volume on the early church when he writes the Book of Acts. §‡ tn: Grk "having followed"; the participle παρηκολουθηκότι parhkolouqhkoti §‡† sn: An orderly account does not necessarily mean that all events are recorded in the exact chronological sequence in which they occurred, but that the account produced is an orderly one. This could include, for example, thematic or topical order rather than strict chronological order. §† tn: Or "know the truth about"; or "know the certainty of." The issue of the context is psychological confidence; Luke's work is trying to encourage Theophilus. So in English this is better translated as "know for certain" than "know certainty" or "know the truth," which sounds too cognitive. "Certain" assumes the truth of the report. On this term, see Acts 2:36; 21:34; 22:30; and 25:26. The meaning "have assurance concerning" is also possible here. §‡ tn: Or "you heard about."

Birth Announcement of John the Baptist

This term can refer merely to a report of information ( Acts 21:24) or to instruction ( Acts 18:25). The scope of Luke's Gospel as a whole, which calls for perseverance in the faith and which assumes much knowledge of the OT, suggests Theophilus had received some instruction and was probably a believer. §‡† tn: Grk "It happened that in the days." The introductory phrase ἐγένετο egeneto

Because of the difference between Greek style, which often begins sentences or clauses with "and," and English style, which generally does not, καί kai 22 tn: Grk "walking in" (an idiom for one's lifestyle). sn: The description of Zechariah and Elizabeth as following... blamelessly was not to say that they were sinless, but that they were faithful and pious. Thus a practical righteousness is meant here ( Gen 6:8; Deut 28:9). 23 tn: The predicate adjective has the effect of an adverb here (BDF §243). 24 sn: Elizabeth was barren. Both Zechariah and Elizabeth are regarded by Luke as righteous in the sight of God, following all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blamelessly (v. 6). With this language, reminiscent of various passages in the OT, Luke is probably drawing implicit comparisons to the age and barrenness of such famous OT personalities as Abraham and Sarah (see, e.g., Gen 18:9-15), the mother of Samson ( Judg 13:2-5), and Hannah, the mother of Samuel ( 1 Sam 1:1-20). And, as it was in the case of these OT saints, so it is with Elizabeth: After much anguish and seeking the Lord, she too is going to have a son in her barrenness. In that day it was a great reproach to be childless, for children were a sign of God's blessing (cf. Gen 1:28; Lev 20:20-21; Pss 127 and 128; Jer 22:30). As the dawn of salvation draws near, however, God will change this elderly couple's grief into great joy and grant them the one desire time had rendered impossible. 25 tn: Grk "were both advanced in days" (an idiom for old age).

Tamid 1.2; 3.1; 5-7). A priest would have given this sacrifice, which was offered for the nation, once in one’s career. It would be offered either at 9 a.m. or 3 p.m., since it was made twice a day. ‡† tn: Grk “And,” but “now” better represents the somewhat parenthetical nature of this statement in the flow of the narrative. ‡† tn: Grk “all the multitude.” While “assembly” is sometimes used here to translate πλῆθος plhqo”

‡†† tn: The “hour of the incense offering” is another way to refer to the time of sacrifice. ‡‡† tn: Grk “And an angel.” Because of the difference between Greek style, which often begins sentences or clauses with “and,” and English style, which generally does not, δέ de § tn: Or “the angel of the Lord.” Linguistically, “angel of the Lord” is the same in both testaments (and thus, he is either “an angel of the Lord” or “the angel of the Lord” in both testaments). For arguments and implications, see ExSyn 252; M. J. Davidson, “Angels,” DJG, 9; W. G. MacDonald argues for “an angel” in both testaments: “Christology and ‘The Angel of the Lord,’” Current Issues in Biblical and Patristic Interpretation, 324-35. §† sn: This term is often used to describe a supernatural appearance ( 24:34; Acts 2:3; 7:2, 30, 35; 9:17; 13:31; 16:9; 26:16). §†† tn: The words “the angel” are not in the Greek text, but are implied. Direct objects were frequently omitted in Greek when clear from the context. §† tn: Or “and he was afraid”; Grk “fear fell upon him.” Fear is common when supernatural agents appear ( 1:29-30, 65; 2:9; 5:8-10; 9:34; 24:38; Exod 15:16; Judg 6:22-23; 13:6, 22; 2 Sam 6:9). §†† tn: The passive means that the prayer was heard by God. sn: Your prayer has been heard. Zechariah’s prayer while offering the sacrifice would have been for the nation, but the answer to the prayer also gave them a long hoped-for child, a hope they had abandoned because of their old age. §† tn: Grk “a son, and you”; καί kai §† tn: Grk “you will call his name John.” The future tense here functions like a command (see ExSyn 569-70). This same construction occurs in v. 31. sn: “Do not be afraid...you must call his name John.” This is a standard birth announcement (see Gen 16:11; Isa 7:14; Matt 1:21;

18 Zechariah<sup>26</sup> said to the angel, “How can I be sure of this ?<sup>27</sup> For I am an old man, and my wife is old as well.” 28<sup>19</sup> The<sup>29</sup> angel answered him, “I am Gabriel, who stands<sup>30</sup> in the presence of God, and I was sent to speak to you and to bring<sup>31</sup> you this good news. 20 And now, 32 because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in your time, 33 you will be silent, unable to speak, 34 until the day these things take place.”

<sup>34</sup> tn: Grk "this one." <sup>35</sup> sn: Compare the description of Jesus as great here with 1:15, "great before the Lord." Jesus is greater than John, since he is Messiah compared to a prophet. Great is stated absolutely without qualification to make the point. <sup>36</sup> sn: The expression Most High is a way to refer to God without naming him. Such avoiding of direct reference to God was common in 1st century Judaism out of reverence for the divine name. <sup>37</sup> tn: Or "ancestor." <sup>38</sup> tn: Grk "And he." Here kai kai

<sup>41</sup> tn: Grk "have not known." The expression in the Greek text is a euphemism for sexual relations. Mary seems to have sensed that the declaration had an element of immediacy to it that excluded Joseph. Many modern translations render this phrase "since I am a virgin," but the Greek word for virgin is not used in the text, and the euphemistic expression is really more explicit, referring specifically to sexual relations.

†† sn: The phrase will overshadow is a reference to God's glorious presence at work ( Exod 40:34-35; Ps 91:4). † tn: Or "the one born holy will be called the Son of God." The wording of this phrase depends on whether the adjective is a predicate adjective, as in the text, or is an adjective modifying the participle serving as the subject. The absence of an article with the adjective speaks for a predicate position. Other less appealing options supply a verb for "holy"; thus "the one who is born will be holy"; or argue that both "holy" and "Son of God" are predicates, so "The one who is born will be called holy, the Son of God." †† tc: A few MSS Θ 1

Mary and Elizabeth

<sup>39</sup> In those days§§§ Mary got up and went hurriedly into the hill country, to a town of Judah, <sup>1840</sup> and entered Zechariah's house and greeted Elizabeth. <sup>41</sup> When<sup>19</sup> Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the baby leaped<sup>20</sup> in her<sup>21</sup> womb, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit. <sup>2242</sup> She<sup>23</sup> exclaimed with a loud voice, <sup>24</sup> "Blessed are you among women, <sup>25</sup> and blessed is the child<sup>26</sup> in your womb! <sup>43</sup> And who am I<sup>27</sup> that the mother of my Lord should come and visit me? <sup>44</sup> For the instant<sup>28</sup> the sound of your greeting reached my ears, <sup>29</sup> the baby in my womb leaped for joy. <sup>3045</sup> And blessed<sup>31</sup> is she who believed that<sup>32</sup> what was spoken to her by<sup>33</sup> the Lord would be fulfilled." <sup>34</sup> has been typeset as poetry because many scholars regard this passage as poetic or hymnic. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: “(a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelismus membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic:

 an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context” (P. T.
 O’Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. † tn: Or “lifts up the Lord in praise.” †† sn: This psalm (vv. 46-55) is one of the few praise psalms in the NT. Mary praises God and then tells why both in terms of his care for her (vv.
 46-49) and for others, including Israel (vv. 50-55). Its traditional name, the “Magnificat,” comes from the Latin for the phrase My soul magnifies the Lord at the hymn’s start. ‡ tn: Or “rejoices.”
 The translation renders this aorist, which stands in contrast to the previous line’s present tense, as ingressive, which highlights Mary’s joyous reaction to the announcement. A comprehensive aorist is also possible here. ‡† tn: See the note on the word “servant” in v.
 38. ‡†† tn: Grk “for behold.” <sup>‡†††</sup> sn: From now on is a favorite phrase of Luke’s, showing how God’s acts change things from this point on ( 5:10; 12:52; 22:18, 69; Acts 18:6). <sup>‡†††</sup> sn: Mary is seen here as an example of an object of God’s grace ( blessed) for all generations. § tn: Traditionally, “the Mighty One.” §† tn: Grk “and from.” Here καί kai
§†† sn: God’s mercy refers to his “loyal love” or “steadfast love,” expressed in faithful actions, as the rest of the psalm illustrates. §‡ tn: That is, “who revere.” This refers to those who show God a reverential respect for his sovereignty. §†† tn: Or “shown strength,” “performed powerful deeds.” The verbs here switch to aorist tense through 1:55. This is how God will act in general for his people as they look to his ultimate deliverance. §† tn: Grk “in the imaginations of their hearts.” The psalm rebukes the arrogance of the proud, who think that power is their sovereign right. Here διανοία dianoia §‡ tn:
 Or “rulers.” §§† tn: Or “those of humble position” sn: The contrast between the mighty and those of lowly position is fundamental for Luke. God cares for those that the powerful ignore ( Luke 4:18-19). §§‡ sn: Good things refers not merely to material blessings, but blessings that come from knowing God. §§§ sn:

<sup>54</sup> He has helped his servant Israel, remembering<sup>18</sup> his mercy, <sup>19</sup> <sup>55</sup> as he promised<sup>20</sup> to our ancestors, <sup>21</sup> to Abraham and to his descendants<sup>22</sup> forever.” <sup>56</sup> So<sup>23</sup> Mary stayed with Elizabeth<sup>24</sup> about three months<sup>25</sup> and then returned to her home.

The Birth of John

 by, <sup>27</sup> and she gave birth to a son. <sup>58</sup> Her<sup>28</sup> neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown<sup>29</sup> great mercy to her, and they rejoiced<sup>30</sup> with her.
<sup>59</sup> On<sup>31</sup> the eighth day<sup>32</sup> they came to circumcise the child, and they wanted to name<sup>33</sup> him Zechariah after his father. <sup>60</sup> But<sup>34</sup> his mother replied, <sup>35</sup> “ No ! He must be named<sup>36</sup> John.” <sup>37</sup> <sup>61</sup> They<sup>38</sup> said to her, “But<sup>39</sup> none of your relatives bears this name.” <sup>40</sup> <sup>62</sup> So<sup>41</sup> they made signs to the baby’s<sup>42</sup> father, <sup>43</sup> inquiring what he wanted to name his son. <sup>44</sup> <sup>63</sup> He<sup>45</sup> asked for a writing

Another fundamental contrast of Luke’s is between the hungry and the rich ( Luke 6:20-26). <sup>18</sup> tn: Or “because he remembered mercy,” understanding the infinitive as causal. <sup>19</sup> tn: Or “his

Zechariah's Praise and Prediction

<sup>67</sup> Then his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit and prophesied, <sup>68</sup> "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, because he has come to help and has redeemed his people.
<sup>69</sup> For he has raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David,
<sup>70</sup> as he spoke through the mouth of his holy prophets from long ago, <sup>71</sup> that we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all who hate us.
<sup>72</sup> He has done this to show mercy to our ancestors, and to remember his holy covenant –
<sup>73</sup> the oath that he swore to our ancestor Abraham.
 This oath grants
<sup>74</sup> that we, being rescued from the hand of our enemies, may serve him without fear,
<sup>75</sup> in holiness and righteousness before him for as long as we live.

§§‡ sn: The traditional name of this psalm, the "Benedictus," comes from the Latin wording of the start of the hymn ("Blessed be..."). §§§ sn: The verb come to help can refer to a visit, but can also connote concern or assistance (L&N 85.11). <sup>18</sup> tn: Or "has delivered"; Grk "has accomplished redemption." sn: Has redeemed is a reference to redemption, but it anticipates the total release into salvation that the full work of Messiah will bring for Israel. This involves both spiritual and material benefits eventually. <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "and," but specifying the reason for the praise in the psalm. <sup>20</sup> sn: The phrase raised up means for God to bring someone significant onto the scene of history. <sup>21</sup> sn: The horn of salvation is a figure that refers to the power of Messiah and his ability to protect, as the horn refers to what an animal uses to attack and defend (Ps 75:4-5, 10; 148:14; 2 Sam 22:3). Thus the meaning of the figure is "a powerful savior." <sup>22</sup> sn: In the house of his servant David is a reference to Messiah's Davidic descent. Zechariah is more interested in Jesus than his own son John at this point. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "from the ages," "from eternity." <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "from long ago, salvation." <sup>25</sup> sn: The theme of being saved from our enemies is like the release Jesus preached in Luke 4:18-19. Luke's narrative shows that one of the enemies in view is Satan and his cohorts, with the grip they have on humanity.

The Shepherds' Visit

8 Now† there were shepherds†† nearby* living out in the field, keeping guard†† over their flock at night. 9 An‡ angel of the Lord‡‡† appeared to‡‡ them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were absolutely terrified. §10 But the angel said to them, “Do not be afraid ! Listen carefully, §† for I proclaim to you good news§†† that brings great joy to all the people: 11 Today§† your Savior is born in the city§†† of David. §† He is Christ§† the Lord. 12 This§§† will be a sign§§† for you : You will find a baby wrapped in strips of cloth and lying in a manger.” §§§13 Suddenly18 a vast, heavenly army19 appeared with the angel, praising God and saying,

14 “ Glory20 to God in the highest, and on earth peace among people21 with whom he is pleased!” 22

15 When23 the angels left them and went back to heaven, the shepherds said to one another, “Let us go over to Bethlehem24 and see this thing that has taken place, that the Lord25 has made known to us.” 16 So they hurried off and located Mary and Joseph, and found the baby lying in a manger. 2617 When27 they saw him,28 they related what they had been told29 about this child, 18 and all who heard it were astonished30 at what the shepherds said. 19 But Mary treasured up all these words, pondering in her heart what they might mean. 3120 So32 the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising33 God for all they had heard and seen; everything was just as they had been told. 34

Most read "light" and "glory" in parallelism, so Jesus is a light for revelation to the Gentiles and is glory to the people for Israel. Others see "light" ( 1:78-79) as a summary, while "revelation" and "glory" are parallel, so Jesus is light for all, but is revelation for the Gentiles and glory for Israel. Both readings make good sense and either could be correct, but Luke 1:78-79 and Acts 26:22-23 slightly favor this second option. †† sn: In other words, Jesus is a special cause for praise and honor (" glory") for the nation. ‡† tn: Here καί kai

Many modern English translations transpose this to make it the final clause in Simeon's utterance as above to make this clear.

‡ tn: “River” is not in the Greek text but is supplied for clarity. ‡† sn: A baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins was a call for preparation for the arrival of the Lord’s salvation. To participate in this baptism was a recognition of the need for God’s forgiveness with a sense that one needed to live differently as a response to it ( Luke 3:10-14). ‡‡ tn: Or “A voice.” ‡‡† tn: Or “desert.” The syntactic position of the phrase “in the wilderness” is unclear in both Luke and the LXX. The MT favors taking it with “Prepare a way,” while the LXX takes it with “a voice shouting.” If the former, the meaning would be that such preparation should be done “in the wilderness.” If the latter, the meaning would be that the place from where John’s ministry went forth was “in the wilderness.” There are Jewish materials that support both renderings: 1QS 8:14 and 9.19-20 support the MT while certain rabbinic texts favor the LXX (see D. L. Bock, Luke [BECNT], 1:290-91). While it is not absolutely necessary that a call in the wilderness led to a response in the wilderness, it is not unlikely that such would be the case. Thus, in the final analysis, the net effect between the two choices may be minimal. In any case, a majority of commentators and translations take “in the wilderness” with “The voice of one shouting” (D. L. Bock; R. H. Stein, Luke [NAC], 129; I. H. Marshall, Luke [NIGTC], 136; NIV, NRSV, NKJV, NLT, NASB, REB). ‡‡‡ tn: This call to “make paths straight” in this context is probably an allusion to preparation through repentance as the verb ποιέω ( poiew § sn: The figurative language of this verse speaks of the whole creation preparing for the arrival of a major figure, so all obstacles to his approach are removed. §† tn: Grk “all flesh.” §†† sn: A quotation from Isaiah 40:3-5. §§§ tn: In other words, “do not even begin to think this.” <sup>18</sup> sn: We have Abraham as our father. John’s warning to the crowds really assumes two things: (1) A number of John’s listeners apparently believed that simply by their physical descent from Abraham, they were certain heirs of the promises made to the patriarch, and (2) God would never judge his covenant people lest he inadvertently place the fulfillment of his promises in jeopardy. In light of this, John tells these people two things: (1) they need to repent and produce fruit in keeping with repentance, for only that saves from the coming wrath, and (2) God will raise up “children for Abraham from these stones” if he wants to. Their disobedience will not threaten the realization of God’s sovereign purposes. <sup>19</sup> sn: The point of the statement God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham is that ancestry or association with a tradition tied to the great founder of the Jewish nation is not an automatic source of salvation. <sup>20</sup> sn: Even now the ax is laid at the root of the trees. The imagery of an “ax already laid at the root of the trees” is vivid, connoting sudden and catastrophic judgment for the unrepentant and unfruitful. The image of “fire” serves to further heighten the intensity of the judgment referred to. It is John’s way of summoning all people to return to God with all their heart and avoid his unquenchable wrath soon to be poured out. John’s language and imagery is probably ultimately drawn from the OT where Israel is referred to as a fruitless vine ( Hos 10:1-2; Jer 2:21-22) and the image of an “ax” is used to indicate God’s judgment ( Ps 74:5-6; Jer 46:22). <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk “is”; the present tense ( ἐκκόπεται ekkoptetai

There are differing interpretations for this phrase regarding the number of baptisms and their nature. (1) Some see one baptism here, and this can be divided further into two options. (a) The baptism of the Holy Spirit and fire could refer to the cleansing, purifying work of the Spirit in the individual believer through salvation and sanctification, or (b) it could refer to two different results of Christ’s ministry: Some accept Christ and are baptized with the Holy Spirit, but some reject him and receive judgment. (2) Other interpreters see two baptisms here: The baptism of the Holy Spirit refers to the salvation Jesus brings at his first advent, in which believers receive the Holy Spirit, and the baptism of fire refers to the judgment Jesus will bring upon the world at his second coming. One must take into account both the image of fire and whether individual or corporate baptism is in view. A decision is not easy on either issue. The image of fire is used to refer to both eternal judgment (e.g., Matt 25:41) and the power of the Lord’s presence to purge and cleanse his people (e.g., Isa 4:4-5). The pouring out of the Spirit at Pentecost, a fulfillment of this prophecy no matter which interpretation is taken, had both individual and corporate dimensions. It is possible that since Holy Spirit and fire are governed by a single preposition in Greek, the one-baptism view may be more likely, but this is not certain. Simply put, there is no consensus view in scholarship at this time on the best interpretation of this passage. §† sn: A winnowing fork is a pitchfork-like tool used to

The walking of the man would be proof (so that you may know) that his sins were forgiven and that God had worked through Jesus (i.e., the Son of Man). §‡ sn: The term Son of Man, which is a title in Greek, comes from a pictorial description in Dan 7:13 of one "like a son of man" (i.e., a human being). He just used it. It also could be an idiom in Aramaic meaning either "some person" or "me." So there is a little ambiguity in its use here, since its origin is not clear at this point. §† sn: John’s disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees followed typical practices with regard to fasting and prayer. Many Jews fasted regularly (Lev 16:29-34; 23:26-32; Num 29:7-11). If he does, he will have torn<sup>25</sup> the new, and the piece from the new will not match the old.<sup>2637</sup> And no one pours new wine into old wineskins.<sup>27</sup> If he does, the new wine will burst the skins and will be spilled, and the skins will be destroyed.<sup>38</sup> Instead new wine must be poured into new wineskins.<sup>2839 29</sup> No<sup>30</sup> one after drinking old wine wants the new, for he says, ‘The old is good enough.’”<sup>31</sup>

<sup>21</sup> sn: The statement when the bridegroom is taken from them is a veiled allusion by Jesus to his death, which he did not make explicit until the incident at Caesarea Philippi in 9:18ff. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk “then in those days.” <sup>23</sup> sn: The term parable in a Semitic context can cover anything from a long story to a brief wisdom saying. Here it is the latter. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk “puts”; but since the means of attachment would normally be sewing, the translation “sews” has been used. <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk “he tears.” The point is that the new garment will be ruined to repair an older, less valuable one. <sup>26</sup> sn: The piece from the new will not match the old. The imagery in this saying looks at the fact that what Jesus brings is so new that it cannot simply be combined with the old. To do so would be to destroy what is new and to put together something that does not fit. <sup>27</sup> sn: Wineskins were bags made of skin or leather, used for storing wine in NT times. As the new wine fermented and expanded, it would stretch the new wineskins. Putting new (unfermented) wine in old wineskins, which had already been stretched, would result in the bursting of the wineskins. <sup>28</sup> tc: Most MSS Θ Ψ 13 καί ἀμφοτέροι συντηροῦνται kai amfoteroi sunthrountai

‡ sn: See the note on Pharisees in 5:17. ‡† tn: Note that the verb is second person plural (with an understood plural pronominal subject in Greek). The charge is again indirectly made against Jesus by charging the disciples. ‡† sn: The alleged violation expressed by the phrase what is against the law is performing work on the Sabbath. That the disciples ate from such a field is no problem given Deut 23:25, but Sabbath activity is another matter in the leaders’ view ( Exod 20:8-11 and Mishnah, m. Shabbat 7.2). The supposed violation involved reaping, threshing, winnowing, and preparing food. This probably explains why the clause describing the disciples “rubbing” the heads of grain in their hands is mentioned last, in emphatic position. This was preparation of food.

‡†† tn:
 Grk “Jesus, answering them, said.” This is redundant in contemporary English and has been simplified to “Jesus answered them.” § tn: Grk “and took.” §† tn: Grk “the bread of presentation.” sn: The sacred bread refers to the “bread of presentation,” “showbread,” or “bread of the Presence,” twelve loaves prepared weekly for the tabernacle and later, the temple. See Exod 25:30; 35:13; 39:36; Lev 24:5-9. Each loaf was made from 3 quarts (3.5 liters; Heb “two tenths of an ephah”) of fine flour. The loaves were placed on a table in the holy place of the tabernacle, on the north side opposite the lamp-stand ( Exod 26:35). It was the duty of the priest each Sabbath to place fresh bread on the table; the loaves from the previous week were then given to Aaron and his descendants, who ate them in the holy place, because they were considered sacred ( Lev 24:9). These were the loaves that David requested from Ahimelech for himself and his men ( 1 Sam 21:1-6; cf. also Matt 12:1-8; Mark 2:23-28).
 §†† sn: Jesus’ response to the charge that what his disciples were doing was not lawful is one of analogy: ‘If David did it for his troops in a time of need, then so can I with my disciples.’ Jesus is clear that on the surface there was a violation here. What is not as clear is whether he is arguing a “greater need” makes this permissible or that this was within the intention of the law all along. §†

ψ 1 §†† tc: The Western ms D adds here a full saying that reads, “On the same day, as he saw someone working on the Sabbath he said, ‘Man, if you know what you are doing, you are blessed, but if you do not know, you are cursed and a violator of the law.’” Though this is not well enough attested to be considered authentic, many commentators have debated whether this saying might go back to Jesus. Most reject it, though it does have wording that looks like Rom 2:25, 27 and Jas 2:11. sn: See 1 Sam 21:1-6.

Healing a Withered Hand

6 On‡†† another Sabbath, Jesus‡†† entered the synagogue‡†† and was teaching. Now‡†† a man was there whose right hand was withered. 197 The experts in the law‡†† and the Pharisees‡†† watched‡†† Jesus‡†† closely to see if‡†† he would heal on the Sabbath, 25 so that they could find a reason to accuse him. 8 But‡†† he knew‡†† their thoughts, 28 and said to the man who had the withered hand, “Get up and stand here.” 29 So‡†† he rose and stood there. 9 Then‡†† Jesus said to them, “I ask you, 32 is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath or to do evil, to save a life or to destroy it?” 10 After‡†† looking around 34 at them all, he said to the man, 35 “ Stretch clarity. 24 tn: This is a first class condition in the Greek text; Je-ground for this is the view that only if life was endangered should one attempt to heal on the Sabbath (see the Mishnah, m. Shabbat 6.3; 12.1; 18.3; 19.2; m. Yoma 8.6). 26 tn: Here the conjunction δε

He may not have been technically a member of the particular Jewish nationalistic party known as "Zealots" (since according to some scholars this party had not been organized at that time), but simply someone who was zealous for Jewish independence from Rome, in which case the descriptive term applied to Simon means something like "Simon the patriot" (see L&N 25.77 and especially 11.88). §§† sn: There is some debate about what the name Iscariot means. It probably alludes to a region in Judea and thus might make Judas the only non-Galilean in the group. Several explanations for the name Iscariot have been proposed, but it is probably transliterated Hebrew with the meaning "man of Kerioth" (there are at least two villages that had that name). For further discussion see D. L. Bock, Luke (BECNT), 1:546; also D. A. Carson, John, 304.

The Parable of the Sower

4 While a large crowd was gathering and people were coming to Jesus<sup>22</sup> from one town after another,<sup>23</sup> he spoke to them<sup>24</sup> in a parable: 5 " A sower went out to sow<sup>25</sup> his seed. 26 And as he sowed, some fell along the path and was trampled on, and the wild birds<sup>27</sup> devoured it. 6 Other seed fell on rock, 28 and when it came up, it withered because it had no moisture. 7 Other seed fell among the thorns, 29 and they grew up with it and choked<sup>30</sup> it. 8 But<sup>31</sup> other seed fell on good soil and grew, 32 and it produced a hundred times as much grain." 33 As he said this,<sup>34</sup> he called out, "The one who has ears to hear had better listen!" 35

The background for this well-known parable is a field through which a well-worn path runs in the Palestinian countryside. Sowing would occur in late fall or early winter (October to December) in the rainy season, looking for sprouting in April or May and a June harvest. The use of seed as a figure for God's giving life has OT roots: Isa 55:10-11. 26 tn: Luke's version of the parable, like Mark's (cf. Mark 4:1-9) uses the collective singular to refer to the seed throughout, so singular pronouns have been used consistently throughout this parable in the English translation. However, the parallel account in Matt 13:1-9 begins with plural pronouns in v. 4 but then switches to the collective singular in v. 5 ff. 27 tn: Grk "the birds of the sky" or "the birds of the heaven"; the Greek word οὐρανός ouranos

Showing the Light

16 “ No one lights<sup>21</sup> a lamp<sup>22</sup> and then covers it with a jar or puts it under a bed, but puts it on a lampstand so that those who come in can see the light. <sup>23</sup>17 For nothing is hidden<sup>24</sup> that will not be revealed, <sup>25</sup> and nothing concealed that will not be made known and brought to light. <sup>18</sup> So listen carefully, <sup>26</sup> for whoever has will be given more, but<sup>27</sup> whoever does not have, even what he thinks he has<sup>28</sup> will be taken from him.”

Jesus’ True Family

In other words, he has absolutely nothing at all. Jesus’ teaching must be taken seriously. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk “his”; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>30</sup> sn: The issue of whether Jesus had brothers (siblings) has had a long history in the church. 30 sn: No explanation for the command not to tell this to anyone is given, but the central section of Luke, chapters 9-19, appears to reveal a reason. The disciples needed to understand who the Messiah really was and exactly what he would do before they were ready to proclaim Jesus as such. But they and the people had an expectation that needed some instruction to be correct. 31 sn: The necessity that the Son of Man suffer is the particular point that needed emphasis, since for many 1st century Jews the Messiah was a glorious and powerful figure, not a suffering one. 32 sn: Rejection in Luke is especially by the Jewish leadership (here elders, chief priests, and experts in the law), though in Luke 23 almost all will join in. 33 tn: Or "and scribes." 36 sn: Here them all could be limited to the disciples, since Jesus was alone with them in v. 18. It could also be that by this time the crowd had followed and found him, and he addressed them, or this could be construed as a separate occasion from the discussion with the disciples in 9:18-22. The cost of discipleship is something Jesus was willing to tell both insiders and outsiders about. The rejection he felt would also fall on his followers. 37 tn: Grk "to come after me." 38 tn: This translation better expresses the force of the Greek third person imperative than the traditional "let him deny," which could be understood as merely permissive. 39 sn: Only Luke mentions taking up one's cross daily. To bear the cross means to accept the rejection of the world for turning to Jesus and following him. Discipleship involves a death that is like a crucifixion; see Gal 6:14. 40 sn: The point of the saying whoever wants to save his life will lose it is that if one comes to Jesus then rejection by many will certainly follow. If self-protection is a key motivation, then one will not respond to Jesus his life for my sake will save it. <sup>25</sup> For what does it benefit a person† if he gains the whole world but loses or forfeits himself? <sup>26</sup> For whoever is ashamed†† of me and my words, the Son of Man will be ashamed of that person‡ when he comes in his glory and in the glory‡† of the Father and of the holy angels. <sup>27</sup> But I tell you most certainly, ‡‡ there are some standing here who will not‡‡‡ experience‡‡‡ death before they see the kingdom of God.” §

He first teaches (vv. 17-20) that if he casts out demons by the ruler of the demons, then in reality Satan is fighting against himself, with the result that his kingdom has come to an end. He then teaches (v. 21-22) about defeating the strong man to prove that he does not need to align himself with the devil because he is more powerful. Jesus defeated Satan at his temptation ( 4:1-13) and by his exorcisms he clearly demonstrated himself to be stronger than the devil. Religious duties are not to be performed hypocritically, i.e., for the applause and esteem of people, but rather they are to be done out of a deep love for God and a sensitivity to and concern for the needs of others. Then, everything will be clean, both hearts and lives. †† tn: Grk "Woe to you...because you..." The causal particle ὅτι Joti

Considering the care these religious figures are said to have given to the law, the second option is more likely (see L&N 18.11). 23 sn: The effect of what the experts in the law were doing was to deny the message of the prophets and thus honor their death by supporting those who had sought their removal. Knowing what is coming should impact our behavior now. §§§ tn: Grk “spoken in the ear,” an idiom. The contemporary expression is “whispered.” <sup>18</sup> sn: The term translated private rooms refers to the inner room of a house, normally without any windows opening outside, the most private location possible (BDAG 988 s.v. ταμείον 2). <sup>19</sup> tn: The expression “proclaimed from the housetops” is an idiom for proclaiming something publicly (L&N 7.51). Roofs of many first century Jewish houses in Judea and Galilee were flat and had access either from outside or from within the house. Something shouted from atop a house would be heard by everyone in the street below. <sup>20</sup> tn: Here δέ (de) has not been translated. <sup>21</sup> sn: Judaism had a similar exhortation in 4 Macc 13:14-15. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk “will show,” but in this reflective context such a demonstration is a warning or exhortation. <sup>23</sup> sn: The ac*tual performer of the killing is not here specified. It could be understood to be God (so NASB, NRSV) but it could simply emphasize that, after a killing has taken place, it is God who casts the person into hell. <sup>24</sup> tn: The direct object (“you”) is understood. <sup>25</sup> sn: The word translated hell is “Gehenna” (γέεννα, geenna), a Greek transliteration of the Hebrew words ge hinnom (“Valley of Hinnom”). This was the valley along the south side of Jerusalem. In OT times it was used for human sacrifices to the pagan god Molech (cf. Jer 7:31; 19:5-6; 32:35), and it came to be used as a place where human excrement and rubbish were disposed of and burned. In the intertestamental period, it came to be used symbolically as the place of divine punishment (cf. 1 En. 27:2, 90:26; 4 Ezra 7:36). <sup>26</sup> sn: The pennies refer to the assarion, a small Roman copper coin. One of them was worth one sixteenth of a denarius or less than a half hour’s average wage. Sparrows were the cheapest thing sold in the market. God knows about even the most financially insignificant things; see Isa 49:15. <sup>27</sup> sn: Do not be afraid. One should respect and show reverence to God (v. 5), but need not fear his tender care. <sup>28</sup> tn: Here δέ (de) has not been translated. <sup>29</sup> tn: Or “confesses.” <sup>30</sup> tn: Although this is a generic reference and includes both males and females, in this context “men” has been retained because of the wordplay with the Son of Man and the contrast with the angels. The same is true of the occurrence of “men” in v. 9. <sup>31</sup> sn: This acknowledgment will take place at the judgment. Of course, the Son of Man is a reference to Jesus as it has been throughout the Gospel. On Jesus and judgment, see 22:69; Acts 10:42-43; 17:31. <sup>32</sup> sn: Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit probably refers to a total rejection of the testimony that the Spirit gives to Jesus and the plan of God. This is not so much a sin of the moment as of one’s entire life, an obstinate rejection of God’s message and testimony. Cf. Matt 12:31-32 and Mark 3:28-30. <sup>33</sup> tn: Grk “it will not be forgiven the person who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit.” <sup>34</sup> sn: The saying looks at persecution both from a Jewish context as the mention of synagogues suggests, and from a Gentile one as the reference to the rulers and the authorities suggests. sn: See the note on synagogues in 4:15. <sup>35</sup> tn: Grk “and the,” but καί (kai) has not been translated since English normally uses a coordinating conjunction only between the last two elements in a series of three or more. <sup>36</sup> tn: Grk “about how or what you should say in your defense,” but this is redundant with the following clause, “or what you should say.” <sup>37</sup> tn: Grk “in that very hour” (an idiom). <sup>38</sup> tn: Grk “what it is necessary to say.” <sup>39</sup> tn: Here δέ (de) has been translated as “then” to indicate the implied sequence of events within the narrative. <sup>40</sup> sn: Tell my brother. Here it is a rebuke. ‡ tn: The pronoun ὑμᾶς (Jumas) is plural, referring to both the man and his brother; thus the translation “you two.” ‡† tn: Here δέ (de) has been translated as “then” to indicate the implied sequence of events within the narrative. ‡‡ tn: See L&N 13.154 for this use of the middle voice of φυλάσσω (fulassw) in this verse. ‡‡‡ tn: Or “avarice,” “covetousness.” Note the warning covers more than money and gets at the root attitude – the strong desire to acquire more and more possessions and experiences. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk “And he.” Here δέ (de) has been translated as “then” to indicate the connection to the preceding statement. § tn: Grk “a parable, saying.” The participle λέγων (legwn) is redundant in contemporary English and has not been translated here. §† tn: Or “yielded a plentiful harvest.” §†† tn: Here καί (kai) has been translated as “so” to indicate that this is a result of the preceding statement. §‡ tn: Grk “to himself, saying.” The participle λέγων (legwn) is redundant in contemporary English and has not been translated here. §†† sn: I have nowhere to store my crops. The thinking here is prudent in terms of recognizing the problem. The issue in the parable will be the rich man’s solution, particularly the arrogance reflected in v. 19. §† tn: Here καί (kai) has been translated as “then” to indicate the implied sequence of events within the narrative. §‡ sn: Note how often the first person pronoun is present in these verses. It clearly has that meaning in this context. §§§ tn: Or “required back.” This term, ἀπαίτέω (apaitew), has an economic feel to it and is often used of a debt being called in for repayment (BDAG 96 s.v. 1). 18 tn: Grk “the things you have prepared, whose will they be?” The words “for yourself” are not in the Greek text, but are implied. 19 sn: It is selfishness that is rebuked here, in the accumulation of riches for himself. Recall the emphasis on the first person pronouns throughout the parable. 20 tn: Here δέ (de) has been translated as “then” to indicate the implied sequence of events within the narrative. The term ἡλικία (Jhlikia) is ambiguous in the same way as πῆχυς. Most scholars take the term to describe age or length of life here, although a few refer it to bodily stature (see BDAG 435-36 s.v. 1.a for discussion). Worry about length of life seems a more natural figure than worry about height. However, the point either way is clear: Worrying adds nothing to life span or height. 30 tn: This is a first class condition in the Greek text. 31 tn: Or “why are you anxious for.” 32 tn: Traditionally, “lilies.” According to L&N 3.32, “Though traditionally κρίνον has been regarded as a type of lily, scholars have suggested several other possible types of flowers, including an anemone, a poppy, a gladiolus, and a rather inconspicuous type of daisy.” In view of the uncertainty, the more generic “flowers” has been used in the translation. 33 tn: Traditionally, “toil.” Although it might be argued that “work hard” would be a more precise translation of κοπιᾶω (kopiaw) here, the line in English scans better in terms of cadence with a single syllable. 34 tn: This is a first class condition in the Greek text. 35 tn: Grk “grass in the field.” 36 tn: Grk “which is in the field today.” 37 tn: Grk “into the oven.” The expanded translation “into the fire to heat the oven” has been used to avoid misunderstanding; most items put into modern ovens are put there to be baked, not burned. sn: The oven was most likely a rounded clay oven used for baking bread, which was heated by burning wood and dried grass. 38 sn: The phrase how much more is a typical form of rabbinic argumentation, from the lesser to the greater. If God cares for the little things, surely he will care for the more important things. 39 tn: Here καί (kai) has been trans-*

The translation "do not be overly concerned" attempts to reflect the force of the original. † tn: The words "about such things" have been supplied to qualify the meaning; the phrase relates to obtaining food and drink mentioned in the previous clause. †† tn: Grk "seek." ‡ tn: Grk "seek," but in the sense of the previous verses. †† tc: Most mss (Ī45 A D1 Q W Θ 070 Ē1, 13 33 Ī lat sy) read τοῦ θεοῦ (tou theou, "of God") instead of αὐτοῦ (autou, "his"; found in κ B D* L Ψ 579 892 pc co). But such a clarifying reading is suspect. αὐτοῦ is superior on both internal and external grounds. Ī75 includes neither and as such would support the translation above since the article alone can often be translated as a possessive pronoun. ‡‡ sn: His (that is, God's) kingdom is a major theme of Jesus. It is specifically the larvae of moths that destroy clothing by eating holes in it (L&N 4.49; BDAG 922 s.v.). See Jas 5:2, which mentions "moth-eaten" clothing. §†† sn: Seeking heavenly treasure means serving others and honoring God by doing so; see Luke 6:35-36. §† tn: Grk "Let your loins be girded," an idiom referring to the practice of tucking the ends of the long cloak (outer garment) into the belt to shorten it in preparation for activities like running, etc. §‡ sn: Keep your lamps burning means to be ready at all times. §§† tn: That is, like slaves (who are mentioned later, vv. 37-38), although the term ἀνθρώπου (anqrwpoi) is used here. Since in this context it appears generic rather than gender-specific, the translation "people" is employed. §§‡ sn: An ancient wedding celebration could last for days (Tob 11:18). §§§ tn: See the note on the word "slave" in 7:2. <sup>18</sup> tn: Or "watching"; Grk "awake," but in context this is not just being awake but alert and looking out. <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "Truly (ἀμήν, amhn), I say to you." <sup>20</sup> tn: See v. 35 (same verb). <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "have them recline at table," as 1st century middle eastern meals were not eaten while sitting at a table, but while reclining on one's side on the floor with the head closest to the low table and the feet farthest away. <sup>22</sup> tn: The participle παρελθών (parelqwn) has and wait on them! <sup>2338</sup> Even if he comes in the second or third watch of the night <sup>24</sup> and finds them alert, <sup>25</sup> blessed are those slaves! <sup>2639</sup> But understand this: If the owner of the house had known at what hour the thief <sup>27</sup> was coming, he would not have let <sup>28</sup> his house be broken into. <sup>40</sup> You also must be ready, because the Son of Man will come at an hour when you do not expect him." <sup>29</sup>

been translated as a finite verb due to requirements of contemporary English style. <sup>23</sup> sn: He...will come and wait on them is a reversal of expectation, but shows that what Jesus asks for he is willing to do as well; see John 13:5 and 15:18-27, although those instances merely foreshadow what is in view here. <sup>24</sup> sn: The second or third watch of the night would be between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m. on a Roman schedule and 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. on a Jewish schedule. Luke uses the four-watch schedule of the Romans in Acts 12:4, so that is more probable here. Regardless of the precise times of the watches, however, it is clear that the late-night watches when a person is least alert are in view here. <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk "finds (them) thus"; but this has been clarified in the translation by referring to the status ("alert") mentioned in v. 37. <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "blessed are they"; the referent (the watchful slaves, v. 37) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>27</sup> sn: On Jesus pictured as a returning thief, see 1 Thess 5:2,4; 2 Pet 3:10; Rev 3:3; 16:15. <sup>28</sup> tc: Most mss (1κ A B L Q W Θ Ψ 070 Ē1, 13 33 Ī lat syp,h sams bo) read "he would have watched and not let" here, but this looks like an assimilation to Matt 24:43. The alliance of two important and early mss along with a few others (Ī75 κ* [D] e i sys,c samss), coupled with much stronger internal evidence, suggests that the shorter reading is authentic. <sup>29</sup> sn: Jesus made clear that his coming could not be timed, and suggested it might take some time – so long, in fact, that some would not be looking for him any longer (at an hour when you do not expect him). <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "And Peter." Here δέ (de) has been translated as "then" to indicate the connection to the preceding statement. <sup>31</sup> sn: Is the parable only for disciples (us) or for all humanity (everyone)? Or does Peter mean for disciples (us) or for the crowd (everyone)? The fact that unfaithful slaves are mentioned in v. 46 looks to a warning that includes a broad audience, though it is quality of service that is addressed. This means the parable focuses on those who are associated with Jesus. <sup>32</sup> tn: Grk "And the Lord said." Here καί (kai) has not been translated because of differences between Greek and English style. <sup>33</sup> tn: Or "administrator," "steward" (L&N 37.39). <sup>34</sup> tn: This term, θεραπεία (qerapeia), describes the group of servants working in a particular household (L&N 46.6). <sup>35</sup> tn: See the note on the word "slave" in 7:2. <sup>36</sup> tn: That is, doing his job, doing what he is supposed to be doing. <sup>37</sup> tn: Grk "Truly (ἀληθῶς, alhqw), I say to you." <sup>38</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (the master) has been specified in the translation for clarity. See also Luke 19:11-27. <sup>39</sup> tn: In the Greek text this is a third class condition that for all practical purposes is a hypothetical condition (note the translation of the following verb "should say"). <sup>40</sup> tn: The term "that" (ἐκεῖνος, ekeino) is used as a catchword to list out, in the form of a number of hypothetical circumstances, what the possible responses of "that" servant could be. He could be faithful (vv. 43-44) or totally unfaithful (vv. 45-46). He does not complete his master's will with knowledge (v. 47)

beat † the other †† slaves, both men and women, ‡ and to eat, drink, and get drunk, <sup>46</sup> then the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour he does not foresee, and will cut him in two, †† and assign him a place with the unfaithful. ††† That ††† servant who knew his master's will but did not get ready or do what his master asked ††† will receive a severe beating. <sup>48</sup> But the one who did not know his master's will † and did things worthy of punishment †† will receive a light beating. ††† From every-one who has been given much, much will be required, †† and from the one who has been entrusted with much, ††† even more will be asked. †

Not Peace, but Division

<sup>49</sup> "I have come †† to bring ††† fire on the earth – and how I wish it were already kindled! <sup>50</sup> I have a baptism ††† to undergo, ††† and how distressed I am until it is finished! <sup>51</sup> Do you think I have come to bring peace on or from ignorance (v 48). These differences are indicated by the different levels of punishment in vv. 46-48. <sup>41</sup> tn: Grk "should say in his heart." <sup>42</sup> tn: Or "is taking a long time." † sn: The slave's action in beginning to beat the other slaves was not only a failure to carry out what was commanded but involved doing the exact reverse. †† tn: The word "other" is not in the Greek text, but is implied. ‡ tn: Grk "the menservants and the maidservants." The term here, used in both masculine and feminine grammatical forms, is παῖς (pais), which can refer to a slave, but also to a slave who is a personal servant, and thus regarded kindly (L&N 87.77). †† tn: The verb διχοτομέω (dicotomew) means to cut an object into two parts (L&N 19.19). This is an extremely severe punishment compared to the other two later punishments. To translate it simply as "punish" is too mild. If taken literally this servant is dismembered, although it is possible to view the stated punishment as hyperbole (L&N 38.12). †† tn: Or "unbelieving." Here the translation employs the slightly more ambiguous "unfaithful," which creates a link with the point of the parable – faithfulness versus unfaithfulness in servants. The example of this verse must be taken together with the examples of vv. 47-48 as part of a scale of reactions with the most disobedient response coming here. The fact that this servant is placed in a distinct group, unlike the one in vv. 47-48, also suggests ultimate exclusion. This is the hypocrite of Matt 24:51. ††† tn: Here δέ (de) has not been translated. ††† tn: Grk "or do according to his will"; the referent (the master) has been specified in the translation for clarity. This example deals with the slave who knew what the command was and yet failed to complete it. † tn: Grk "did not know"; the phrase "his master's will" is not in the Greek text, but is implied. Direct objects were frequently omitted in Greek when clear from the context, but must be supplied for the contemporary English reader. †† tn: Grk "blows." ††† tn: Grk "will receive few (blows)." †† tn: Grk "required from him"; but the words "from him" are redundant in English and have not been translated. ††† sn: Entrusted with much. To be gifted with precious responsibility is something that requires faithfulness. †† tn: Grk "they will ask even more." †† sn: This mission statement, "I have come to bring fire on the earth," looks to the purging and division Jesus causes: See Luke 3:9, 17; 9:54; 17:29 for fire, 5:32; 7:34; 9:58; 12:51 for the topic of mission. ††† tn: Grk "cast." For βάλλω (ballw) in the sense of causing a state or condition, see L&N 13.14. ††† sn: The figure of the baptism is variously interpreted, as some see a reference (1) to martyrdom or (2) to inundation with God's judgment. The OT background, however, suggests the latter sense: Jesus is about to be uniquely inundated with God's judgment as he is rejected, persecuted, and killed (Ps 18:4, 16; 42:7; 69:1-2; Isa 8:7-8; 30:27-28; Jonah 2:3-6). ††† tn: Grk "to be baptized with."

earth? No, I tell you, but rather division! <sup>1852</sup> For from now on <sup>19</sup> there will be five in one household divided, three against two and two against three. <sup>53</sup> They will be divided, <sup>20</sup> father against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against mother-in-law."

Reading the Signs

Clear the Debts

<sup>57</sup> "And <sup>27</sup> why don't you judge for yourselves what is right? <sup>58</sup> As you are going with your accuser before the magistrate, <sup>28</sup> make an effort to settle with him on the way, so that he will not drag you before the judge, and the judge hand you over to the officer, <sup>29</sup> and the officer throw you into prison. <sup>59</sup> I tell you, you will never get out of there until you have paid the very last cent!" <sup>30 31</sup>

<sup>18</sup> tn: Or "hostility." This term pictures dissension and hostility (BDAG 234 s.v. διαμερισμός). <sup>19</sup> sn: From now on is a popular phrase in Luke: 1:48; 5:10; 22:18, 69; see Mic 7:6. <sup>20</sup> tn: There is dispute whether this phrase belongs to the end of v. 52 or begins v. 53. Given the shift of object, a connection to v. 53 is slightly preferred. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "He"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. Here καί (kai) has been translated as "also" and δέ (de) has not been translated. <sup>22</sup> sn: A cloud rising in the west refers to moisture coming from the Mediterranean Sea. <sup>23</sup> tn: The term ὄμβρος (ombros) refers to heavy rain, such as in a thunderstorm (L&N 14.12). <sup>24</sup> sn: The south wind comes from the desert, and thus brings scorching heat. <sup>25</sup> sn: In Luke, the term hypocrites occurs here, in 6:42+zrefend, and in 13:15+zrefend. <sup>26</sup> tc: Most mss (Ī45 A W Ψ Ē1, 13 Ī lat) have a syntax here that reflects a slightly different rhetorical question: "but how do you not interpret the present time?" The reading behind the translation, however, has overall superior support: Ἰ75 κ B L Θ 33 892 1241 pc. <sup>27</sup> tn: Jesus calls for some personal reflection. However, this unit probably does connect to the previous one – thus the translation of δέ (de) here as "And" – to make a good spiritual assessment, thus calling for application to the spiritual, rather than personal, realm. <sup>28</sup> sn: The term magistrate (ἀρχων, arcwn, arcwn) refers to an official who, under the authority of the government, serves as judge in legal cases (see L&N 56.29). <sup>29</sup> sn: The officer (πράκτωρ, praktwr) was a civil official who functioned like a bailiff and was in charge of debtor's prison. The use of the term, however, does not automatically demand a Hellenistic setting (BDAG 859 s.v.; K. H. Rengstorf, TDNT 8:539; C. Maurer, TDNT 6:642). <sup>30</sup> tn: Here the English word "cent" is used as opposed to the parallel in Matt 5:26 where "penny" appears, since the Greek word there is different and refers to a different but similar coin. <sup>31</sup> This cent was a lepton, the smallest coin available. It was copper or bronze, worth one-half of a quadrans or 1/128 of a denarius. The parallel in Matt 5:26 mentions the quadrans instead of the lepton. The illustration refers to the debt one owes God and being sure to settle with him in the right time, before it is too late. Some inter-

13 Now† there were some present on that occasion who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mixed with their sacrifices. †† He‡ answered them, "Do you think these Galileans were worse sinners‡† than all the other Galileans, because they suffered these things? <sup>3</sup> No, I tell you ! But unless you repent, ‡† you will all perish as well! <sup>†††4</sup> Or those eighteen who were killed‡†† when the tower in Siloam fell on them, § do you think they were worse offenders than all the others who live in Jerusalem? <sup>§†5</sup> No, I tell you ! Warning to Israel to Bear Fruit

6 Then§†† Jesus§† told this parable : "A man had a fig tree§† planted in his vineyard, and he came looking for fruit on it and found none. <sup>7</sup> So§§† he said to the worker who tended the vineyard, 'For§§† three years§§§ now, I have come looking for fruit on this fig tree, and each time I inspect it<sup>†8</sup> I find none. Cut<sup>†9</sup> it down ! Why<sup>†20</sup> should it continue to deplete<sup>†21</sup> the soil?' <sup>8</sup> But the

preters, however, consider it to be like Matt 5:26, which has similar imagery but a completely different context. † tn: Here καί kai

†† sn: This is an event that otherwise is unattested, though several events similar to it are noted in Josephus (J. W. 2.9.2-4 [2.169-177]; Ant. 13.13.5 [13.372-73], 18.3.1-2 [18.55-62]; 18.4.1 [18.85-87]). It would have caused a major furor. ‡ tn: Grk "And he." Here καί kai

†† sn: Jesus did not want his hearers to think that tragedy was necessarily a judgment on these people because they were worse sinners. ‡† sn: Jesus was stressing that all stand at risk of death, if they do not repent and receive life. ‡†† tn: Or "you will all likewise perish," but this could be misunderstood to mean that they would perish by the same means as the Galileans. Jesus' point is that apart from repentance all will perish. ‡††† tn: Grk "on whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them." This relative clause embedded in a prepositional phrase is complex in English and has been simplified to an adjectival and a temporal clause in the translation. § sn: Unlike the previous event, when the tower in Siloam fell on them, it was an accident of fate. It raised the question, however, "Was this a judgment?" §† map: For location see . §†† sn: Jesus' point repeats v. 3. The circumstances make no difference. All must deal with the reality of what death means. §† tn: Grk "similarly." §†† tn: Here δέ de

§§† tn: Grk "Behold, for." §§§ sn: The elapsed time could be six years total since planting, since often a fig was given three years before one even started to look for fruit. The point in any case is that enough time had been given to expect fruit. 18 tn: The phrase "each time I inspect it" is not in the Greek text but has been supplied to indicate the customary nature of the man's search for fruit. 19 tc: ‡ Several witnesses (Ī 75 Θ Ψ 13 οὖν oun

Healing on the Sabbath

10 Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues<sup>28</sup> on the Sabbath, <sup>11</sup> and a woman was there<sup>29</sup> who had been disabled by a spirit<sup>30</sup> for eighteen years. She<sup>31</sup> was bent over and could not straighten herself up completely. <sup>32</sup>12 When<sup>33</sup> Jesus saw her, he called her to him<sup>34</sup> and said, "Woman, <sup>35</sup> you are freed<sup>36</sup> from your infirmity." <sup>37</sup>13 Then<sup>38</sup> he placed his hands on her, and immediately<sup>39</sup> she straightened up and praised God. <sup>14</sup> But the president of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus had healed on the Sabbath, said to the crowd, "There are six days on which work<sup>40</sup> should be done!<sup>41</sup> So come<sup>42</sup> and be healed on those days, and not on the Sabbath day." <sup>15</sup> Then the Lord answered

This is a reference to manure used as fertilizer. 24 tn: This is a third class condition in the Greek text. The conjunction καί kai κάν kan

On the Kingdom of God

18 Thus Jesus †† asked, ††† “ What is the kingdom of God ††† like? ††† To 18 what should I compare it? 19 It is like a mustard seed 19 that a man took and sowed 20 in his garden. It 21 grew and became a tree, 22 and the wild birds 23 nested in its branches.” 24

† †† tn: Grk “answered him and said.” This is redundant in contemporary English and has been shortened to “answered him.” ††† tn: Grk “from the manger [feeding trough],” but by metonymy of part for whole this can be rendered “stall.” †† sn: The charge here is hypocrisy, but it is only part one of the response. Various ancient laws detail what was allowed with cattle; see Mishnah, m. Shabbat 5; CD 11:5-6. ††† tn: Here δέ de

††† tn: Grk “is it not necessary that.” Jesus argues that no other day is more appropriate to heal a descendant of Abraham than the Sabbath, the exact opposite view of the synagogue leader.

††† sn: Note that this is again a battle between Satan and God; see 11:18-23. ††† tn: The word “long” reflects the emphasis added in the Greek text by ἰδοῦ idou ††† tn: Or “bondage”; Grk “bond.” ††† tn: Grk “And when.” Here καί kai

It is a realm in which Jesus rules and to which those who trust him belong. See Luke 6:20; 11:20; 17:20-21. ††† sn: What is the kingdom of God like? Unlike Mark 4 or Matt 13, where the kingdom parables tend to be all in one location in the narrative, Luke scatters his examples throughout the Gospel. 18 ††† tn: Grk “And to.” Here καί kai

19 ††† sn: The mustard seed was noted for its tiny size. 20 ††† tn: Grk “threw.” 21 ††† tn: Grk “garden, and it.” Here καί kai

22 ††† sn: Calling the mustard plant a tree is rhetorical hyperbole, since technically it is not one. This plant could be one of two types of mustard popular in Palestine and would be either 10 or 25 ft (3 or 7.5 m) tall. 23 ††† tn: Grk “the birds of the sky” or “the birds of the heaven”; the Greek word οὐρανός ouranos

πετελνόν

24 ††† sn: The point of the parable seems to be that while the kingdom of God may appear to have insignificant and unnoticeable beginnings (i.e., in the ministry of Jesus), it will someday (i.e., at the second advent) be great and quite expansive. The kingdom, however, is not to be equated with the church, but rather the church is an expression of the kingdom. Also, there is important OT background

20 Again 25 he said, “To what should I compare the kingdom of God? 26 21 It is like yeast that a woman took and mixed with 27 three measures 28 of flour until all the dough had risen.” 29

The Narrow Door

22 Then 30 Jesus 31 traveled throughout 32 towns 33 and villages, teaching and making his way toward 34 Jerusalem. 35 23 Someone 36 asked 37 him, “Lord, will only a few 38 be saved?” So 39 he said to them, 24 “ Exert every effort 40 to enter through the narrow door, because many, I tell you, will try to enter and will not be able to. 25 Once 41 the head of the house 42 gets up 43 and shuts the door, then you will stand outside and start to knock on the door and beg him, ‘Lord, 44 let us in !’ 45 But he will answer you, 46 ‘ I don’t know where you come from.’ 47 26 Then you will begin to say, ‘We ate in the image of the mustard seed that grew and became a tree: Ezek 17:22-24 pictures the reemergence of the Davidic house where people can find calm and shelter. Like the mustard seed, it would start out small but grow to significant size. 25 ††† tn: Grk “And again.” Here καί kai

26 ††† sn: The kingdom of God is a major theme of Jesus. It is a realm in which Jesus rules and to which those who trust him belong. See Luke 6:20; 11:20; 17:20-21. 27 ††† tn: Grk “hid in.” 28 ††† sn: This measure was a saton, the Greek name for the Hebrew term “seah.” Three of these was a very large quantity of flour, since a saton is a little over 16 lbs (7 kg) of dry measure (or 13.13 liters). So this was over 47 lbs (21 kg) of flour total, enough to feed over a hundred people. 29 ††† tn: Grk “it was all leavened.” ††† sn: The parable of the yeast and the dough teaches that the kingdom of God will start small but eventually grow to permeate everything. Jesus’ point was not to be deceived by its seemingly small start, the same point made in the parable of the mustard seed, which preceded this one. 30 ††† tn: Here καί kai

31 ††† tn: Grk “he”; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 32 ††† tn: This is a distributive use of κατά kata ††† tn: Or “cities.” 34 ††† tn: Grk “making his journey toward.” This is the first of several travel notes in Luke’s Jerusalem journey section of Luke 9-19; other notes appear at 17:11; 18:31; 19:28, 41. 35 ††† map: For location see . 36 ††† tn: Here δέ de ††† tn: Grk “said to.” 38 ††† sn: The warnings earlier in Jesus’ teaching have led to the question whether only a few will be saved. 39 ††† tn: Here δέ de

40 ††† tn: Or “Make every effort” (L&N 68.74; cf. NIV); “Do your best” (TEV); “Work hard” (NLT); Grk “Struggle.” The idea is to exert one’s maximum effort (cf. BDAG 17 s.v. ἀγωνίζομαι

41 ††† tn: The syntactical relationship between vv. 24-25 is disputed. The question turns on whether v. 25 is connected to v. 24 or not. A lack of a clear connective makes an independent idea more likely. However, one must then determine what the beginning of the sentence connects to. Though it makes for slightly awkward English, the translation has opted to connect it to “he will answer” so that this functions, in effect, as an apodosis. One could end the sentence after “us” and begin a new sentence with “He will answer” to make simpler sentences, although the connection between the two sentences is thereby less clear. The point of the passage, however, is clear. Once the door is shut, because one failed to come in through the narrow way, it is closed permanently. The moral: Do not be too late in deciding to respond. 42 ††† tn: Or “the master of the household.” 43 ††† tn: Or “rises,” or “stands up.” 44 ††† tn: Or “Sir.” 45 ††† tn: Grk “Open to us.” 46 ††† tn: Grk “and answering, he will say to Luke's emphasis seems to be on destructiveness, since Herod killed John the Baptist, whom Luke calls "the greatest born of women" ( Luke 7:28) and later stands op- posed to Jesus ( Acts 4:26-28). In addition, "a person who is designat- ed a fox is an insignificant or base person. He lacks real power and dignity, using cunning deceit to achieve his aims" (H. W. Notice that Jesus sees himself in the role of a prophet here. Jesus' statement, it is impossible that a prophet should be killed outside Jerusalem, is filled with irony; Jesus, traveling about in Galilee (most likely), has nothing to fear from Herod; it is his own people living in the very center of Jewish religion and worship who present the greatest danger to his life. The underlying idea is that Jerusalem, though she stands at the very heart of the worship of God, often kills the prophets God sends to her (v. 34). Others have suggested the background of the saying is the use of salt blocks by Arab bakers to line the floor of their ovens: Under the intense heat these blocks would eventually crystallize and undergo a change in chemical composition, finally being thrown out as unserviceable. It occurs before "neighbors" as well ("his friends and his neighbors") but has not been translated the second time because of English style. § sn: There will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents. The younger son’s consumption had been like a glutton. He had both figuratively and literally devoured the assets which were given to him. 35 sn: The charge concerning the prostitutes is unproven, but essentially the older brother accuses the father of committing an injustice by rewarding his younger son’s unrighteous behavior. 36 sn: See note on the phrase “fattened calf” in v. 23. 37 tn: Here καί kai

More Warnings about the Pharisees

14 The Pharisees37 (who loved money) heard all this and ridiculed38 him. 15 But39 Jesus40 said to them, "You are the ones who justify yourselves in men's eyes, 41 those same actions. It would also be unusual for Jesus to make that point of the story the example. Thus it is more likely the reference to dishonesty goes back to the earliest events, while the commendation is for the cleverness of the former manager reflected in vv. 5-7. 20 sn: Where this parable ends is debated: Does it conclude with v. 7, after v. 8a, after v. 8b, or after v. 9? Verse 8a looks as if it is still part of the story, with its clear reference to the manager, while 8b looks like Jesus' application, since its remarks are more general. So it is most likely the parable stops after v. 8a. 21 tn: Grk "sons" (an idiom). 22 tn: Grk "with their own generation." 23 tn: Grk "sons." Here the phrase "sons of light" is a reference to the righteous. The point is that those of the world often think ahead about consequences better than the righteous do. 24 tn: Grk "unrighteous mammon." Mammon is the Aramaic term for wealth or possessions. The point is not that money is inherently evil, but that it is often misused so that it is a means of evil; see 1 Tim 6:6-10, 17-19. The call is to be generous and kind in its use. Zacchaeus becomes the example of this in Luke's Gospel (19:1-10). 25 sn: The passive refers to the welcome of heaven. 26 tn: Grk "eternal tents" (as dwelling places). 27 sn: The point of the statement faithful in a very little is that character is shown in how little things are treated. 28 tn: Or "faithful." 29 tn: Grk "the unrighteous mammon." See the note on the phrase "worldly wealth" in v. 9. 30 sn: Entrust you with the true riches is a reference to future service for God. The idea is like 1 Cor 9:11, except there the imagery is reversed. 31 tn: Or "faithful." 32 tn: Grk "have not been faithful with what is another's." 33 tn: Grk "what is your own." 34 sn: The contrast between hate and love here is rhetorical. hearts"). Here the Greek term ἀνθρώπος ἀναρωπο

† tn: Or "exalted."
 †† tn: Or "is an abomination," "is abhorrent" (L&N 25.187).
 ‡ tn: There is no verb in the Greek text; one must be supplied. Some translations (NASB, NIV) supply "proclaimed" based on the parallelism with the proclamation of the kingdom. The transitional nature of this verse, however, seems to call for something more like "in effect" (NRSV) or, as used here, "in force." Further, Greek generally can omit one of two kinds of verbs – either the equative verb or one that is already mentioned in the preceding context ( ExSyn 39).
 ‡† sn: John refers to John the Baptist. ‡‡ sn: Until John; since then. This verse indicates a shift in era, from law to kingdom. ‡‡† sn: The kingdom of God is a major theme of Jesus. It is a realm in which Jesus rules and to which those who trust him belong. See Luke 6:20; 11:20; 17:20-21. ‡‡‡ tn: Many translations have "entereth violently into it" (ASV) or "is forcing his way into it" (NASB, NIV). This is not true of everyone. It is better to read the verb here as passive rather than middle, and in a softened sense of "be urged." See Gen 33:11; Judg 13:15-16; 19:7; 2 Sam 3:25, 27 in the LXX. This fits the context well because it agrees with Jesus' attempt to persuade his opponents to respond morally. For further discussion and details, see D. L. Bock, Luke (BECNT), 2:1352-53. § tn: Or "one small part of a letter" (L&N 33.37). §† tn: Grk "to fall"; that is, "to drop out of the text." Jesus' point may be that the law is going to reach its goal without fail, in that the era of the promised kingdom comes. §†† sn: The examples of marriage and divorce show that the ethical standards of the new era are still faithful to promises made in the presence of God. To contribute to the breakup of a marriage, which involved a vow before God, is to commit adultery. This works whether one gets a divorce or marries a person who is divorced, thus finalizing the breakup of the marriage. Jesus' point concerns the need for fidelity and ethical integrity in the new era. §‡ sn: Purple describes a fine, expensive dye used on luxurious clothing, and by metonymy, refers to clothing colored with that dye. Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, the relative pronoun was replaced with a personal pronoun and a new sentence started at this point in the translation. §† sn: "Have mercy on us" is a request to heal them ( Luke 18:38-39; 16:24; Matt 9:27; 15:22; 17:15; 20:31-32; Mark 10:47-49). §†† tn: Καί kai

The Coming of the Kingdom

20 Now at one point<sup>28</sup> the Pharisees 29 asked Jesus<sup>30</sup> when the kingdom of God<sup>31</sup> was coming, so he answered, "The kingdom of God is not coming with signs<sup>32</sup> to be observed, 21 nor will they say, 'Look, here it is!' or 'There !' For indeed, the kingdom of God is<sup>33</sup> in your midst." 34

The Coming of the Son of Man

22 Then<sup>35</sup> he said to the disciples, "The days are coming when you will desire to see one of the days<sup>36</sup> of the Son of Man, and you will not see it. 23 Then people<sup>37</sup> will say to you, 'Look, there he is!<sup>38</sup> or 'Look, here he is!' Do not go out or chase after them. 39<sup>24</sup> For just like the lightning flashes<sup>40</sup> and lights up the sky from one side to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day. 41<sup>25</sup>

26 tn: Grk "to him"; the referent has been specified in the translation for clarity. 27 tn: Or "has delivered you"; Grk "has saved you." The remark about faith suggests the benefit of trusting in Jesus' ability to deliver. Apparently the Samaritan benefited from the healing in a way the other nine did not. 28 tn: The words "at one point" are supplied to indicate that the following incident is not necessarily in chronological sequence with the preceding event. 29 sn: See the note on Pharisees in 5:17. 30 tn: Grk "having been asked by the Pharisees." The passive construction has been translated as an active one in keeping with contemporary English style, and the direct object, Jesus, has been supplied from the context. 31 sn: The kingdom of God is a major theme of Jesus. It is a realm in which Jesus rules and to which those who trust him belong. See Luke 6:20; 11:20; 17:20-21. 32 tn: Or "is not coming in a way that it can be closely watched" (L&N 24.48). Although there are differing interpretations of what this means, it probably refers to the cosmic signs of ten associated with the kingdom's coming in the Jewish view ( 1 En. 91, 93; 2 Bar. 53—74). See D. L. Bock, Luke (BECNT), 2:1412-14, also H. Riesenfeld, TDNT 8:150. 33 tn: This is a present tense in the Greek text. In contrast to waiting and looking for the kingdom, it is now available. 34 tn: This is a far better translation than "in you." Jesus would never tell the hostile Pharisees that the kingdom was inside them. The reference is to Jesus present in their midst. He brings the kingdom. Another possible translation would be "in your grasp." For further discussion and options, see D. L. Bock, Luke (BECNT), 2:1414-19. 35 tn: Here δέ de

36 sn: This is a reference to the days of the full manifestation of Jesus' power in a fully established kingdom. The reference to "days" instead of "day" is unusual, appearing only here and in v. 26, but it may be motivated merely by parallelism with the "days" of Noah there and the "days of Lot" in v. 28. 37 tn: Grk "And they will say." The plural in Greek is indefinite, referring to people in general. Here καί kai

38 tn: The words "he is" here and in the following clause are understood and have been supplied from the context. 39 sn: Do not go out or chase after them.  19 sn: For the rich it is hard for wealth not to be the point of focus, as the contrast in vv. 28-30 will show, and for rich people to trust God. Wealth was not an automatic sign of blessing as far as Jesus was concerned. 20 sn: The kingdom of God is a major theme of Jesus. It is a realm in which Jesus rules and to which those who trust him belong. See Luke 6:20; 11:20; 17:20-21. 21 sn: The eye of a needle refers to a sewing needle, one of the smallest items one might deal with on a regular basis, in contrast to the biggest animal of the region. (The gate in Jerusalem known as “The Needle’s Eye” was built during the middle ages and was not in existence in Jesus’ day.) Jesus is saying rhetorically that this is impossible, unless God (v. 27) intervenes. 22 tn: Here καί kai

34 sn: Note that Luke (see also Matt 19:29; Mark 10:30; Luke 10:25) portrays eternal life as something one receives in the age to come, unlike John, who emphasizes the possibility of receiving eternal life in the present ( John 5:24).

Another Prediction of Jesus' Passion

31 Then† Jesus†† took the twelve aside and said to them, "Look, we are going up to Jerusalem, ‡ and everything that is written about the Son of Man by the prophets will be accomplished. ††32 For he will be handed over‡‡ to the Gentiles; he will be mocked, ††† mistreated, ††† and spat on. §33 They will flog him severely§† and kill him. There was a tradition in Judaism that the Son of David (Solomon) had great powers of healing (Josephus, Ant. 8.2.5 [8.42-49]). 24 sn: Have mercy on me is a request for healing (cf. 17:13). ### The Parable of the Ten Minas

<sup>11</sup> While the people were listening to these things, Jesus<sup>20</sup> proceeded to tell a parable, because he was near to Jerusalem, <sup>21</sup> and because they thought<sup>22</sup> that the kingdom of God<sup>23</sup> was going to<sup>24</sup> appear immediately. <sup>12</sup> Therefore he said, "A nobleman<sup>25</sup> went to a distant country to receive<sup>26</sup> for himself a kingdom and then return. <sup>27</sup>13 And he summoned ten of his slaves, <sup>28</sup> gave them ten minas, <sup>29</sup> and said to them, 'Do business with these until I come back.' <sup>14</sup> But his citizens<sup>30</sup> hated<sup>31</sup> him and sent a delegation after him, saying, 'We do not want this man<sup>32</sup> to be king<sup>33</sup> over us!' <sup>15</sup> When<sup>34</sup> he returned after receiving the kingdom, he summoned<sup>35</sup> these slaves to whom he had given the money. ### The Triumphal Entry

Again, faithful-ness yields great reward (see Luke 8:18; also Matt 13:12; Mark 4:25).<sup>24</sup> sn: The one who has nothing has even what he seems to have taken away from him, ending up with no reward at all (see also Luke 8:18). The exact force of this is left ambiguous, but there is no comfort here for those who are pictured by the third slave as being totally unmoved by the master. Though not an outright enemy, there is no relationship to the master either. Three groups are represented in the parable: the faithful of various sorts (vv. 16, 18); the unfaithful who associate with Jesus but do not trust him (v. 21); and the enemies (v. 27).<sup>25</sup> tn: Grk “to rule over them.”<sup>26</sup> tn: This term, when used of people rather than animals, has some connota-tions of violence and mercilessness (L&N 20.72).<sup>27</sup> sn: Slaugh-ter them. The Mount of Olives is really a ridge running north to south about 1.8 mi (3 km) long, east of Jerusalem across the Kidron Valley. Its central elevation is about 100 ft (30 m) higher than Jerusalem. On this point the Pharisees agreed and were correct. But their understanding was nonetheless incomplete, for Messiah is also David's Lord. With this statement Jesus was affirming that, as the Messiah, he is both God and man. <sup>27</sup> sn: The Lord said to my Lord. With David being the speaker, this indicates his respect for his descendant (referred to as my Lord). Jesus was arguing, as the ancient exposition assumed, that the passage is about the Lord's anointed. The passage looks at an enthronement of this figure and a declaration of honor for him as he takes his place at the side of God. In Jerusalem, the king's palace was located to the right of the temple to indicate this kind of relationship. Jesus was pressing the language here to get his opponents to reflect on how great Messiah is. <sup>28</sup> sn: A quotation from Ps 110:1. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "David thus calls him 'Lord.' So how is he his son?" The conditional nuance, implicit in Greek, has been made explicit in the translation (cf. chief priests and the experts in the law<sup>18</sup> were trying to find some way<sup>19</sup> to execute<sup>20</sup> Jesus, <sup>21</sup> for they were afraid of the people. <sup>22</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Then<sup>23</sup> Satan<sup>24</sup> entered Judas, the one called Iscariot, who was one of the twelve. <sup>254</sup> He went away and discussed with the chief priests and officers of the temple guard<sup>26</sup> how he might<sup>27</sup> betray Jesus,<sup>28</sup> handing him over to them. <sup>295</sup> They<sup>30</sup> were delighted <sup>31</sup> and arranged to give him money. <sup>326</sup> So<sup>33</sup> Judas<sup>34</sup> agreed and began looking for an opportunity to betray Jesus<sup>35</sup> when no crowd was present. <sup>36</sup>

<sup>37</sup> tn: The words "for the feast" are not in the Greek text, but have been supplied for clarity. <sup>38</sup> sn: Generally the feast of Unleavened Bread would refer to Nisan 15 (Friday), but the following reference to the sacrifice of the Passover lamb indicates that Nisan 14 (Thursday) was what Luke had in mind (Nisan = March 27 to April 25). The celebration of the Feast of Unleavened Bread lasted eight days, beginning with the Passover meal. The celebrations were so close together that at times the names of both were used interchangeably. <sup>39</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>40</sup> sn: This required getting a suitable lamb and finding lodging in Jerusalem where the meal could be eaten. The population of the city swelled during the feast, so lodging could be difficult to find. The Passover was celebrated each year in commemoration of the Israelites' deliverance from Egypt; thus it was a feast celebrating redemption (see Exod 12). The Passover lamb was roasted and eaten after sunset in a family group of at least ten people ( m. Pesahim 7.13). People ate the meal while reclining (see the note on table in 22:14). It included, besides the lamb, unleavened bread and bitter herbs as a reminder of Israel's bitter affliction at the hands of the Egyptians. Four cups of wine mixed with water were also used for the meal. For a further description of the meal and the significance of the wine cups, see E. Ferguson, Backgrounds of Early Christianity, 523-24. <sup>41</sup> tn: Grk "for us, so that we may eat." <sup>42</sup> tn: Here δέ de

§†† tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §‡ tn: Grk "reclined at table," as 1st century middle eastern meals were not eaten while sitting at a table, but while reclining on one's side on the floor with the head closest to the low table and the feet farthest away. §†† tn: Grk "the apostles with him." §† tn: This phrase parallels a Hebrew infinitive absolute and serves to underline Jesus' enthusiasm for holding this meal (BDF §198.6). §‡ tn: Although the word "again" is not in the Greek text, it is supplied to indicate that Jesus did indeed partake of this Passover meal, as statements in v. 18 suggest ("from now on"). For more complete discussion see D. L. Bock, Luke (BECNT), 2:1720. §§† sn: Jesus looked to a celebration in the kingdom to come when the Passover is fulfilled. This reference could well suggest that some type of commemorative sacrifice and meal will be celebrated then, as the antecedent is the Passover sacrifice. The reference is not to the Lord's supper as some argue, but the Passover. §§‡ sn: The kingdom of God here refers to the kingdom in all its power. A Final Discourse

<sup>24</sup> A dispute also started<sup>31</sup> among them over which of them was to be regarded as the greatest. <sup>3225</sup> So<sup>33</sup> Jesus<sup>34</sup> said to them, "The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those in authority over them are called 'benefactors.' <sup>3526</sup> Not so with you; <sup>36</sup> instead the one

The major options are either (1) that reflected in the translation or (2) that those who have a money bag and traveler's bag should get a sword, just as those who do not have these items should sell their cloak to buy a sword. The point of all the options is that things have changed and one now needs full provisions. Opposition will come. But "sword" is a figure for preparing to fight. See Luke 22:50-51. <sup>33</sup> tn: Or possibly "beggar's bag" (L&N 6.145). <sup>34</sup> sn: This scripture must be fulfilled in me. The statement again reflects the divine necessity of God's plan. This was indeed a bold move on the part of Joseph of Arimathea, for it clearly and openly identified him with a man who had just been condemned and executed, namely, Jesus. Although this addition is certainly not part of the original text of Luke, it does show how interested the early scribes were in the details of the burial and may even reflect a very primitive tradition. 18 sn: While he was still in Galilee looks back to the beginning of Jesus’ ministry. So the point is that this was announced long ago, and should come as no surprise. 19 tn: Grk “saying that,” but this would be redundant in English. Although the translation represents this sentence as indirect discourse, the Greek could equally be taken as direct discourse: “Remember how he told you, while he was still in Galilee: ‘the Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again.’” 20 tn: See Luke 9:22, 44; 13:33. 21 tn: Because in the historical context the individuals who were primarily responsible for the death of Jesus (the Jewish leadership in Jerusalem in Luke’s view [see Luke 9:22]) would have been men, the translation “sinful men” for ἀνθρώπων ἀμαρτωλῶν anqrwrwn Jamartwlwn 22 sn: See the note on crucify in 23:21. 23 tn: Here the infinitive ἀναστῆναι anasthnai 24 tn: Here καί kai

It is unusual that the first appearance would involve women as in this culture their role as witnesses would not be well accepted. It is a sign of the veracity of the account, because if an ancient were to create such a story he would never have it start with women. 28 sn: On Joanna see Luke 8:1-3. 29 sn: The term pure nonsense can describe idle talk or a tale. The point is important, since the disciples reacted with disbelief that a resurrection was possible. Sometimes it is thought the ancients were gullible enough to believe anything. But these disciples needed convincing about the resurrection. 30 sn: While the others dismissed the report of the women, Peter got up and ran to the tomb, for he had learned to believe in what the Lord had said. 31 sn: In most instances the entrance to such tombs was less than 3 ft (1 m) high, so that an adult would have to bend down and practically crawl inside. 32 tn: In the NT this term is used only for strips of cloth used to wrap a body for burial (LN 6.154; BDAG 693 s.v. ὀθόλιον 33 tn: Or “went away, wondering to himself.” The prepositional phrase πρὸς ἑαυτὸν pros Jeauton ἀπῆλθεν aphlqen θαυμάζων qaumazwn

Jesus Walks the Road to Emmaus

13 Now† that very day two of them†† were on their way to a village called Emmaus, about seven miles‡ from Jerusalem. ††† They‡‡ were talking to each other about all the things that had happened. 15 While‡‡‡ they were talking and debating‡‡‡ these things,§ Jesus himself approached and began to accompany them<sup>16</sup> (but their eyes were kept§† from recognizing§†† him). <sup>§†††</sup> Then§†† he said to them, "What are these matters§† you are discussing so intently§† as you walk along?" And they stood still, looking sad. 18 Then one of them, named Cleopas, answered him, §§† "Are you the only visitor to Jerusalem who doesn't know§§† the things that have happened there§§§ in these days?" 19 He<sup>18</sup> said to them, "What things?" "The things concerning Jesus the Nazarene," they replied, "a man<sup>19</sup> who, with his powerful deeds and words, proved to be a prophet<sup>20</sup> before God and all the people; <sup>20</sup> and how our chief priests and rulers handed him over<sup>21</sup> to be condemned to death, and crucified<sup>22</sup> him. <sup>21</sup> But we had hoped<sup>23</sup> that he was the one who was going to redeem<sup>24</sup> Israel. Not only this, but it is now the third day since these things happened. <sup>22</sup> Furthermore, some women of our group amazed us. <sup>25</sup> They<sup>26</sup> were at the tomb early this morning, <sup>23</sup> and when they did not find his body, they came back and said they had seen a vision of angels, <sup>27</sup> who said he was alive. <sup>24</sup> Then<sup>28</sup> some of those who were with us went to the tomb, and found it just as the women had said, but they did not see him." <sup>29</sup> So<sup>30</sup> he said to them, "You<sup>31</sup> foolish people <sup>32</sup> – how slow of heart<sup>33</sup> to believe<sup>34</sup> all that the prophets have spoken! <sup>26</sup> Wasn't<sup>35</sup> it necessary<sup>26</sup> for the Christ<sup>37</sup> to suffer these things and enter into his glory?" <sup>27</sup> Then<sup>38</sup> beginning with Moses and all the prophets, <sup>39</sup> he interpreted to them the things written about<sup>40</sup> himself in all the scriptures.

<sup>28</sup> So they approached the village where they were going. He acted as though he wanted to go farther, <sup>41</sup> but they urged him, <sup>42</sup> "Stay with us, because it is getting toward evening and the day is almost done." So<sup>43</sup> he went in to stay with them.

† tn: To this point the author has used past tenses (imperfects, aorists); now he switches to a present. The light continually shines (thus the translation, "shines on"). Even as the author writes, it is shining. The present here most likely has gnomic force (though it is possible to take it as a historical present); it expresses the timeless truth that the light of the world (cf. 8:12, 9:5, 12:46) never ceases to shine. sn: The light shines on. The question of whether John has in mind here the preincarnate Christ or the incarnate Christ is probably too specific. The incarnation is not really introduced until v. 9, but here the point is more general: It is of the very nature of light, that it shines. †† sn: The author now introduces what will become a major theme of John's Gospel: the opposition of light and darkness. The antithesis is a natural one, widespread in antiquity. Gen 1 gives considerable emphasis to it in the account of the creation, and so do the writings of Qumran. It is the major theme of one of the most important extra-biblical documents found at Qumran, the so-called War Scroll, properly titled The War of the Sons of Light with the Sons of Darkness. Connections between John and Qumran are still an area of scholarly debate and a consensus has not yet emerged. See T. A. Hoffman, "1 John and the Qumran Scrolls," BTB 8 (1978): 117-25. ‡ tn: Grk "and," but the context clearly indicates a contrast, so this has been translated as an adversative use of καί kai ‡† tn: Or "comprehended it," or "overcome it." From here it passes easily to a description of Isaac ( Heb 11:17 and Josephus, Ant., 1.13.1 [1.222]) who was not Abraham's only son, but was one-of-a-kind because he was the child of the promise. Thus the word means "one-of-a-kind" and is reserved for Jesus in the Johannine literature of the NT. While all Christians are children of God, Jesus is God's Son in a unique, one-of-a-kind sense. The word is used in this way in all its uses in the Gospel of John ( 1:14, 1:18, 3:16, and 3:18). §‡ sn: John refers to John the Baptist. §‡† tn: Or "bore witness." §† tn: Grk "and shouted out saying." But some pseudepigraphic books describe God's intervention without mentioning the anointed Davidic king; in parts of 1 Enoch, for example, the figure of the Son of Man, not the Messiah, embodies the expectations of the author. Essenes at Qumran seem to have expected three figures: a prophet, a priestly messiah, and a royal messiah. In baptizing, John the Baptist was performing an eschatological action. It also seems to have been part of his proclamation (John 1:23, 26-27). Crowds were beginning to follow him. He was operating in an area not too far from the Essene center on the Dead Sea. No wonder the authorities were curious about who he was. §†† tn: Or "the Messiah" (Both Greek "Christ" and Hebrew and Aramaic "Messiah" mean "one who has been anointed"). sn: "I am not the Christ." A 3rd century work, the pseudo-Clementine Recognitions (1.54 and 1.60 in the Latin text; the statement is not as clear in the Syriac version) records that John's followers proclaimed him to be the Messiah. There is no clear evidence that they did so in the 1st century, however – but Luke 3:15 indicates some wondered. Concerning the Christ, the term χριστός cristos

st tn: Grk "What then?" (an idiom). §† sn: According to the 1st century rabbinic interpretation of 2 Kgs 2:11, Elijah was still alive. In Mal 4:5 it is said that Elijah would be the precursor of Messiah. How does one reconcile John the Baptist's denial here ("I am not") with Jesus' statements in Matt 11:14 (see also Mark 9:13 and Matt 17:12) that John the Baptist was Elijah? Some have attempted to remove the difficulty by a reconstruction of the text in the Gospel of John which makes the Baptist say that he was Elijah. However, external support for such emendations is lacking. According to Gregory the Great, John was not Elijah, but exercised toward Jesus the function of Elijah by preparing his way. But this avoids the real difficulty, since in John's Gospel the question of the Jewish authorities to the Baptist concerns precisely his function. It has also been suggested that the author of the Gospel here preserves a historically correct reminiscence – that John the Baptist did not think of himself as Elijah, although Jesus said otherwise. Mark 6:14-16 and Mark 8:28 indicate the people and Herod both distinguished between John and Elijah – probably because he did not see himself as Elijah. But Jesus' remarks in Matt 11:14, Mark 9:13, and Matt 17:12 indicate that John did perform the function of Elijah – John did for Jesus what Elijah was to have done for the coming of the Lord. C. F. D. Moule pointed out that it is too simple to see a straight contradiction between John's account and that of the synoptic gospels: "We have to ask by whom the identification is made, and by whom refused. The synoptic gospels represent Jesus as identifying, or comparing, the Baptist with Elijah, while John represents the Baptist as rejecting the identification when it is offered him by his interviewers. Now these two, so far from being incompatible, are psychologically complementary. The Baptist humbly rejects the exalted title, but Jesus, on the contrary, bestows it on him. Why should not the two both be correct?" (The Phenomenon of the New Testament [SBT], 70). §†† sn: The Prophet is a reference to the "prophet like Moses" of Deut 18:15, by him, "Who are you? Tell us† so that we can give an answer to those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?"

<sup>29</sup> On the next day John§†† saw Jesus coming toward him and said, "Look, the Lamb of God§§‡ who takes away the sin of the world! <sup>30</sup> This is the one about whom I said, 'After me comes a man who is greater than I am,§§§ because he existed before me.'<sup>31</sup> I did not recognize<sup>18</sup> him, but I came baptizing with water so that he could be revealed to Israel."<sup>19</sup>

Meditating on the Messiah who was to come? A good possibility, since the fig tree was used as shade for teaching or studying by the later rabbis ( Ecclesiastes Rabbah 5:11). Also, the fig tree was symbolic for messianic peace and plenty ( Mic 4:4, Zech 3:10.)

20 sn: Nathanael's confession – You are the Son of God; you are the King of Israel – is best understood as a confession of Jesus' messiahship. It has strong allusions to Ps 2:6-7, a well-known messianic psalm. What Nathanael's exact understanding was at this point is hard to determine, but "son of God" was a designation for the Davidic king in the OT, and Nathanael parallels it with King of Israel here. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "answered and said to him." This has been simplified in the translation to "said to him." <sup>22</sup> sn: What are the greater things Jesus had in mind? In the narrative this forms an excellent foreshadowing of the miraculous signs which began at Cana of Galilee. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "and he said to him." <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." <sup>25</sup> sn: The title Son of Man appears 13 times in John's Gospel. It is associated especially with the themes of crucifixion ( 3:14; 8:28), revelation ( 6:27; 6:53), and eschatological authority ( 5:27; 9:35). The title as used in John's Gospel has for its background the son of man figure who appears in Dan 7:13-14 and is granted universal regal authority. Thus for the author, the emphasis in this title is not on Jesus' humanity, but on his heavenly origin and divine authority. <sup>26</sup> map: For location see . <sup>27</sup> sn: Cana in Galilee was not a very well-known place. It is mentioned only here, in 4:46, and 21:2, and nowhere else in the NT. Josephus ( Life 16 [86]) says he once had his quarters there. The probable location is present day Khirbet Cana, 8 mi (14 km) north of Nazareth, or Khirbet Kenna, 4 mi (7 km) northeast of Nazareth. <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "in Galilee, and Jesus' mother." <sup>29</sup> sn: There is no clue to the identity of the bride and groom, but in all probability either relatives or friends of Jesus' family were involved, since Jesus' mother and both Jesus and his disciples were invited to the celebration. The attitude of Mary in approaching Jesus and asking him to do something when the wine ran out also suggests that familial obligations were involved. <sup>30</sup> tn: The word "left" is not in the Greek text but is implied. sn: They have no wine left. On the backgrounds of this miracle J. D. M. Derrett pointed out among other things the strong element of reciprocity about weddings in the Ancient Near East. It was possible in certain circumstances to take legal action against the man who failed to provide an appropriate wedding gift. The bridegroom and family here might have been involved in a financial liability for failing to provide adequately for their guests ("Water into Wine," BZ 7 [1963]: 80-97). Was Mary asking for a miracle? There is no evidence that Jesus had worked any miracles prior to this (although this is an argument from silence). Some think Mary was only reporting the situation, or (as Calvin thought) asking Jesus to give some godly exhortations to the guests and thus relieve the bridegroom's embarrassment. But the words, and the reply of Jesus in v. 4, seem to imply more. It is not inconceivable that Mary, who had probably been witness to the events of the preceding days, or at least was aware of them, knew that her son's public career was beginning. She also knew the supernatural events surrounding his birth, and the prophetic words of the angel, and of Simeon and Anna in the temple at Jesus' dedication. In short, she had good reason to believe Jesus to be the Messiah, and now his public ministry had begun. In this

But it is unusual for a son to address his mother with this term. The custom in both Hebrew (or Aramaic) and Greek would be for a son to use a qualifying adjective or title. Is there significance in Jesus' use here? It probably indicates that a new relationship existed between Jesus and his mother once he had embarked on his public ministry. He was no longer or primarily only her son, but the "Son of Man." This is also suggested by the use of the same term in 19:26 in the scene at the cross, where the beloved disciple is "given" to Mary as her "new" son. <sup>33</sup> tn: Grk "Woman, what to me and to you?" Nothing is mentioned in John's Gospel at this point about anything Jesus said or did there (although later his teaching is mentioned, see 6:59). From the synoptics it is clear that Capernaum was a center of Jesus' Galilean ministry and might even be called "his own town" ( Matt 9:1). The royal official whose son Jesus healed ( John 4:46-54) was from Capernaum. He may have heard Jesus speak there, or picked up the story about the miracle at Cana from one of Jesus' disciples. <sup>map:</sup> For location see . <sup>18</sup> sn: With respect to Jesus' brothers, the so-called Helvidian view is to be preferred (named after Helvidius, a 4th-century theologian). This view holds that the most natural way to understand the phrase is as a reference to children of Joseph and Mary after the birth of Jesus. Other views are that of Epiphanius (they were children of Joseph by a former marriage) or Jerome (they were cousins). The tradition of Mary's perpetual virginity appeared in the 2nd century and is difficult to explain (as J. H. Bernard, St. John [ICC], 1:85, points out) if some of her other children were prominent members of the early church (e.g., James of Jerusalem). But this is outweighed by the natural sense of the words.

Jesus at the Passover Feast

<sup>23</sup> Now while Jesus§§† was in Jerusalem§§† at the feast of the Passover, many people believed in his name because they saw the miraculous signs he was doing. <sup>§§§24</sup> But Jesus would not entrust himself to them, because he knew all people. <sup>1825</sup> He did not need anyone to testify about man, <sup>19</sup> for he knew what was in man. <sup>20</sup>

3 Now a certain man, a Pharisee<sup>21</sup> named Nicodemus, who was a member of the Jewish ruling council, <sup>22</sup> came to Jesus<sup>23</sup> at night<sup>24</sup> and said to him, "Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God. For no one could perform the miraculous signs<sup>25</sup> that you do unless God is with him." <sup>3</sup> Jesus replied, <sup>26</sup> "I tell you the solemn truth, <sup>27</sup> unless a person is born from above, <sup>28</sup> he cannot see the kingdom

§† sn: They believed the scripture is probably an anaphoric reference to Ps 69:9 (69:10 LXX), quoted in John 2:17 above. But the timing is significant for John in terms of the light-darkness motif – compare John 9:4, 11:10, 13:30 (especially), 19:39, and 21:3. Out of the darkness of his life and religiosity Nicodemus came to the Light of the world. §‡ sn: "How can these things be?" is Nicodemus' answer. It is clear that at this time he has still not grasped what Jesus is saying. Note also that this is the last appearance of Nicodemus in the dialogue. Having served the purpose of the author, at this point he disappears from the scene. As a character in the narrative, he has served to illustrate the prevailing Jewish misunderstanding of Jesus' teaching about the necessity of a new, spiritual birth from above. Whatever parting words Nicodemus might have had with Jesus, the author does not record them. §†† tn: Grk "Jesus answered and said to him." §† sn: Jesus' question "Are you the teacher of Israel and yet you don't understand these things?" implies that Nicodemus had enough information at his disposal from the OT scriptures to have understood Jesus' statements about the necessity of being born from above by the regenerating work of the Spirit. Isa 44:3-5 and Ezek 37:9-10 are passages Nicodemus might have known which would have given him insight into Jesus' words. Another significant passage which contains many of these concepts is Prov 30:4-5.

§§‡ tn: The word "people" is not in the Greek text, but is supplied in the translation to indicate that the verb is second person plural (referring to more than Nicodemus alone). §§§ sn: Note the remarkable similarity of Jesus' testimony to the later testimony of the Apostle John himself in 1 John 1:2: "And we have seen and testify and report to you the eternal life which was with the Father and was revealed to us." This is only one example of how thoroughly the author's own thoughts were saturated with the words of Jesus (and also how difficult it is to distinguish the words of Jesus from the words of the author in the Fourth Gospel). <sup>18</sup> tn: The word "people" is not in the Greek text, but is supplied to indicate that the verb is second person plural (referring to more than Nicodemus alone). <sup>19</sup> sn: Obviously earthly things and heavenly things are in contrast, but what is the contrast? What are earthly things which Jesus has just spoken to Nicodemus? And through him to others – this is not the first instance of the plural pronoun, see v. 7, you must all. Since Nicodemus began with a plural ( we know, v. 2) Jesus continues it, and through Nicodemus addresses a broader audience. It makes most sense to take this as a reference to the things Jesus has just said (and the things he is about to say, vv. 13-15). If this is the case (and it seems the most natural explanation) then earthly things are not necessarily strictly physical things, but are so called because they take place on earth, in contrast to things like v. 16, which take place in heaven. Some have added the suggestion that the things are called earthly because physical analogies (birth, wind, water) are used to describe them. This is possible, but it seems more probable that Jesus calls these things earthly because they happen on earth (even though they are spiritual things). In the context, taking earthly things as referring to the words Jesus has just spoken fits with the fact that Nicodemus did not believe. And he would not after hearing heavenly things either, unless he first believed in the earthly things

In John, being lifted up refers to one continuous action of ascent, beginning with the cross but ending at the right hand of the Father. Step 1 is Jesus' death; step 2 is his resurrection; and step 3 is the ascension back to heaven. It is the upward swing of the "pendulum" which began with the incarnation, the descent of the Word become flesh from heaven to earth (cf. Paul in Phil 2:5-11). The word in Greek was used of an only child (a son [ Luke 7:12, 9:38] or a daughter [ Luke 8:42]). It was also used of something unique (only one of its kind) such as the mythological Phoenix (1 Clement 25:2). From here it passes easily to a description of Isaac ( Heb 11:17 and Josephus, Ant. 1.13.1 [1.222]) who was not Abraham's only son, but was one-of-a-kind because he was the child of the promise. Thus the word means "one-of-a-kind" and is reserved for Jesus in the Johannine literature of the NT. While all Christians are children of God ( τέκνα θεοῦ tekna qeou

Dodd, but is now characteristically used to describe Dodd's own formulation. See L. Goppelt, Theology of the New Testament, 1:54, note 10, and R. E. Brown ( John [ABJ], 1:cxvii-cxviii) for fur-

Further Testimony About Jesus by John the Baptist

If there is a twofold reaction to Jesus in John's Gospel, it should be emphasized that that reaction is very much dependent on a person's choice, a choice that is influenced by his way of life, whether his deeds are wicked or are done in God ( John 3:20-21). For John there is virtually no trace of determinism at the surface. Only when one looks beneath the surface does one find statements like "no one can come to me, unless the Father who sent me draws him" ( John 6:44). §†† tn: This section is related loosely to the preceding by μετὰ ταῦτα meta tauta

Some have suggested that it was over the relative merits of the baptism of Jesus and John. But what about the ceremonial nature of the washing? There are so many unanswered questions here that even R. E. (Why else the puzzled hostility of the disciples over the crowds coming to Jesus?) Also, the synoptics imply John was imprisoned before Jesus began his Galilean ministry. At any rate, there is no reason to rearrange the material here - it occurs in this place for a very good reason. As far as the author is concerned, it serves as a further continuation of the point made to Nicodemus, that is, the necessity of being born "from

See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. 20 tn: Grk "Jesus"; the repetition of the proper name is somewhat redundant in English (see the beginning of the verse) and so the pronoun ("he") has been substituted here. 21 tn: Grk "was making." 22 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 23 sn: The author doesn't tell why Jesus chose to set out once more for Galilee. Some have suggested that the Pharisees turned their attention to Jesus because John the Baptist had now been thrown into prison. But the text gives no hint of this. In any case, perhaps Jesus simply did not want to provoke a confrontation at this time (knowing that his "hour" had not yet come).

The Disciples Return

27 Now at that very moment his disciples came back. 28 They were shocked29 because he was speaking30 with a woman. ### Onward to Galilee

<sup>43</sup> After the two days he departed from there to Galilee. <sup>44</sup> (For Jesus himself had testified that a prophet has no honor in his own country.) <sup>1845</sup> So when he came to Galilee, the Galileans welcomed him because they had seen all the things he had done in Jerusalem<sup>19</sup> at the feast<sup>20</sup> (for they themselves had gone to the feast). <sup>21</sup>

Healing the Royal Official's Son

<sup>46</sup> Now he came again to Cana<sup>22</sup> there was a certain royal official<sup>23</sup> whose son was sick. <sup>47</sup> When he heard that Jesus had come back from Judea to Galilee, he went to him and begged him<sup>24</sup> to come down and heal his son, who was about to die. <sup>48</sup> So Jesus said to him, "Unless you people<sup>25</sup> see signs and wonders you will never believe!" <sup>2649</sup> "Sir," the official said to him, "come down before my child dies." <sup>50</sup> Jesus told him, "Go home; <sup>27</sup> your son will live." The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and set off for home. <sup>28</sup>

18 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 19 sn: All the things he had done in Jerusalem probably refers to the signs mentioned in John 2:23. map: For location see . 20 sn: See John 2:23-25. 21 sn: John 4:44-45. The last part of v. 45 is a parenthetical note by the author. The major problem in these verses concerns the contradiction between the proverb stated by Jesus in v. 44 and the reception of the Galileans in v. 45. Origen solved the problem by referring his own country to Judea (which Jesus had just left) and not Galilee. But this runs counter to the thrust of John's Gospel, which takes pains to identify Jesus with Galilee (cf. 1:46) and does not even mention his Judean birth. R. E. Brown typifies the contemporary approach: He regards v. 44 as an addition by a later redactor who wanted to emphasize Jesus' unsatisfactory reception in Galilee. Neither expedient is necessary, though, if honor is understood in its sense of attributing true worth to someone. The Galileans did welcome him, but their welcome was to prove a superficial response based on what they had seen him do at the feast. There is no indication that the signs they saw brought them to place their faith in Jesus any more than Nicodemus did on the basis of the signs. But a superficial welcome based on enthusiasm for miracles is no real honor at all. 22 map: For location see . 23 tn: Although βασιλικός basiliko"

<sup>10</sup> So the Jewish leaders§† said to the man who had been healed, "It is the Sabbath, and you are not permitted to carry your mat."<sup>§†††</sup> But he answered them, "The man who made me well said to me, 'Pick up your mat§† and walk.'" <sup>12</sup> They asked him, "Who is the man who said to you, 'Pick up your mat§†† and walk?'" <sup>§††3</sup> But the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had slipped out, since there was a crowd in that place.

Responding to Jewish Leaders

A preliminary understanding can be obtained from John 5:18, noting the Jewish authorities' response and the author's comment. They sought to kill Jesus, because not only was he breaking the Sabbath, but he was also calling God his own Father, thus making himself equal with God. This must be seen in the context of the relation of God to the Sabbath rest. In the commandment (Exod 20:11) it is explained that "In six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth...and rested on the seventh day; therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy." Philo, based on the LXX translation of Exod 20:11, denied outright that God had ever ceased his creative activity. And when Rabban Gamaliel II, R. Joshua, R. Eleazar ben Azariah, and R. Father loves the Son and shows him everything he does, and will show him greater deeds than these, so that you will be amazed. <sup>21</sup> For just as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, † so also the Son gives life to whomever he wishes. <sup>††22</sup> Furthermore, the Father does not judge‡ anyone, but has assigned‡‡ all judgment to the Son, <sup>23</sup> so that all people‡‡ will honor the Son just as they honor the Father. The one who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him.

<sup>28</sup> " Do not be amazed at this, because a time§† is coming when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice<sup>29</sup> and will come out – the ones who have done what is good to the resurrection resulting in life, and the ones who have done what is evil to the resurrection resulting in condemnation. <sup>§§†30</sup> I can do nothing on my own initiative. §§† Just as I hear, I judge, and my judgment is just, §§§ because I do not seek my own will, but the will of the one who sent me. <sup>18</sup>

bath (see note on working in v. 17). (1) Jesus grants life (just as the Father grants life) on the Sabbath. But as the Father gives physical life on the Sabbath, so the Son grants spiritual life (John 5:21; note the "greater things" mentioned in v. 20). (2) Jesus judges (determines the destiny of people) on the Sabbath, just as the Father judges those who die on the Sabbath, because the Father has granted authority to the Son to judge (John 5:22-23). But this is not all. Not only has this power been granted to Jesus in the present; it will be his in the future as well. In v. 28 there is a reference not to spiritually dead (only) but also physically dead. At their resurrection they respond to the Son as well. † tn: Grk "and makes them live." †† tn: Grk "the Son makes whomever he wants to live." ‡ tn: Or "condemn." ‡† tn: Or "given," or "handed over." ‡‡ tn: Grk "all." The word "people" is not in the Greek text but is supplied for stylistic reasons and for clarity (cf. KJV "all men"). ‡‡† tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." ‡‡‡ tn: Or "obeys." § tn: Or "word." §† tn: Grk "and does not come into judgment." §†† tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." §‡ tn: Grk "an hour." §†† tn: Grk "him." §† tn: Grk "authority to judge." §‡ tn: Grk "an hour." §§† tn: Or "a resurrection resulting in judgment." §§‡ tn: Grk "nothing from myself." §§§ tn: Or "righteous," or "proper." <sup>18</sup> tn: That is, "the will of the Father who sent me." <sup>19</sup> sn: To whom does another refer? To John the Baptist or to the Father? In the nearer context, v. 33, it would seem to be John the Baptist. But v. 34 seems to indicate that Jesus does not receive testimony from men. Probably it is better to view v. 32 as identical to v. 37, with the comments about the Baptist as a parenthetical digression.

You have sent to John, <sup>20</sup> and he has testified to the truth. <sup>34</sup> (I do not accept<sup>21</sup> human testimony, but I say this so that you may be saved.) <sup>35</sup> He was a lamp that was burning and shining, <sup>22</sup> and you wanted to rejoice greatly for a short time<sup>23</sup> in his light.

<sup>36</sup> " But I have a testimony greater than that from John. For the deeds<sup>24</sup> that the Father has assigned me to complete – the deeds<sup>25</sup> I am now doing – testify about me that the Father has sent me. <sup>37</sup> And the Father who sent me has himself testified about me. You people<sup>26</sup> have never heard his voice nor seen his form at any time, <sup>2738</sup> nor do you have his word residing in you, because you do not believe the one whom he sent. <sup>39</sup> You study the scriptures thoroughly<sup>28</sup> because you think in them you possess eternal life, <sup>29</sup> and it is these same scriptures<sup>30</sup> that testify about me, <sup>40</sup> but you are not willing to come to me so that you may have life.

†† sn: The final condemnation will come from Moses himself – again ironic, since Moses is the very one the Jewish authorities have trusted in (placed your hope). This is again ironic if it is occurring at Pentecost, which at this time was being celebrated as the occasion of the giving of the Torah to Moses on Mt. Sinai. There is evidence that some Jews of the 1st century looked on Moses as their intercessor at the final judgment (see W. A. Meeks, The Prophet King [NovTSup], 161). This would mean the statement Moses, in whom you have placed your hope should be taken literally and relates directly to Jesus' statements about the final judgment in John 5:28-29. ††† tn: Grk "For if." †††† tn: Grk "that one" ("he"); the referent (Moses) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ††††† tn: Again, μετὰ ταῦτα meta tauta

§ sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. Only John in the New Testament refers to the Sea of Galilee by the name Sea of Tiberias (see also John 21:1), but this is correct local usage. In the mid-20's Herod completed the building of the town of Tiberias on the southwestern shore of the lake; after this time the name came into use for the lake itself. §† sn: Up on the mountainside does not necessarily refer to a particular mountain or hillside, but may simply mean "the hill country" or "the high ground," referring to the high country east of the Sea of Galilee (known today as the Golan Heights). §†† sn: Passover.
