<sup>10</sup> Jesus said, "Have<sup>19</sup> the people sit down." (Now there was a lot of grass in that place.) <sup>20</sup> So the men<sup>21</sup> sat down, about five thousand in number. <sup>11</sup> Then Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed the bread to those who were seated. He then did the same with the fish, <sup>22</sup> as much as they wanted. <sup>12</sup> When they were all satisfied, Jesus<sup>23</sup> said to his disciples, "Gather up the broken pieces that are left over, so that nothing is wasted." <sup>13</sup> So they gathered them up and filled twelve baskets with broken pieces from the five barley loaves<sup>24</sup> left over by the people who had eaten.

<sup>14</sup> Now when the people saw the miraculous sign that Jesus<sup>25</sup> performed, they began to say to one another, "This is certainly the Prophet<sup>26</sup> who is to come into the world." <sup>27</sup> Then Jesus, because he knew they were going to come and seize him by force to make him king, withdrew again up the mountainside alone. <sup>28</sup>

16 Now when evening came, his disciples went down to the lake, †17 got into a boat, and started to cross the lake†† to Capernaum. ‡ (It had already become dark, and Jesus had not yet come to them.) ††18 By now a strong wind was blowing and the sea was getting rough. 19 Then, when they had rowed about three or four miles, ‡ they caught sight of Jesus walking on the lake, †† approaching the boat, and they were frightened. 20 But he said to them, "It is I. Do not be afraid." 21 Then they wanted to take him into the boat, and immediately the boat came to the land where they had been heading.

Jesus' Discourse About the Bread of Life

25 When they found him on the other side of the lake, §††††† they said to him, "Rabbi, when did you get here?" §†††††26 Jesus replied, §††††† " I tell you the solemn truth, 18 you are looking for me not because you saw miraculous signs, but because you ate all the loaves of bread you wanted. 1927 Do not work for the food that disappears, 20 but for the food that remains to eternal life – the food21 which the Son of Man will give to you. For God the Father has put his seal of approval on him." 22

28 So then they said to him, "What must we do to accomplish the deeds23 God requires?" 2429 Jesus replied, 25 " This is the deed26 God requires 27 – to believe in the one whom he 28 sent." 30 So they said to him, "Then what miraculous sign will you perform, so that we may see it and believe you ? What will you do? 31 Our ancestors29 ate the manna in the wilderness, just as it is written, ' He gave them bread from heaven to eat.'" 30

32 Then Jesus told them, "I tell you the solemn truth, 31 it is not Moses who has given you the bread from heaven, but my Father is giving you the true bread from heaven. 33 For the bread of God is the one who32 comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

§††††† tn: Or "embarked in the boats." §††††† map: For location see

. §††††† tn: Or "sea." See the note on "lake" in v. 16. §††††† sn: John 6:25-31. The previous miracle of the multiplication of the bread had taken place near the town of Tiberias (cf. John 6:23). Jesus' disciples set sail for Capernaum ( 6:17) and were joined by the Lord in the middle of the sea. The next day boats from Tiberias picked up a few of those who had seen the multiplication (certainly not the whole 5,000) and brought them to Capernaum. It was to this group that Jesus spoke in 6:26-27. But there were also people from Capernaum who had gathered to see Jesus, who had not witnessed the multiplication, and it was this group that asked Jesus for a miraculous sign like the manna ( 6:30-31). This would have seemed superfluous if it were the same crowd that had already seen the multiplication of the bread. But some from Capernaum had heard about it and wanted to see a similar miracle repeated. §††††† tn: Grk "answered and said to them." 18 tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." 19 tn: Grk "because you ate of the loaves of bread and were filled." 20 tn: Or "perishes" (this might refer to spoiling, but is more focused on the temporary nature of this kind of food). sn: Do not work for the food that disappears. Note the wordplay on "work" here. This does not imply "working" for salvation, since the "work" is later explained (in John 6:29) as "to believe in the one whom he (the Father) sent."

21 tn: The referent (the food) has been specified for clarity by repeating the word "food" from the previous clause. 22 tn: Grk "on this one." 23 tn: Grk "the works." 24 tn: Grk "What must we do to work the works of God?" 25 tn: Grk "answered and said to them." 26 tn: Grk "the work." 27 tn: Grk "This is the work of God." 28 tn: Grk "that one" (i.e., God). 29 tn: Or "forefathers"; Grk "fathers." 30 sn: A quotation from Ps 78:24 (referring to the events of Exod 16:4-36). 31 tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." 32 tn: Or "he who."

35 Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. The one who comes to me will never go hungry, and the one who believes in me will never be thirsty. ††36 But I told you‡ that you have seen me‡† and still do not believe. 37 Everyone whom the Father gives me will come to me, and the one who comes to me I will never send away. ††38 For I have come down from heaven not to do my own will but the will of the one who sent me. 39 Now this is the will of the one who sent me – that I should not lose one person of every one he has given me, but raise them all up‡†† at the last day. 40 For this is the will of my Father – for everyone who looks on the Son and believes in him to have eternal life, and I will raise him up‡†† at the last day." §

The word is used of pulling or dragging, often by force. It is even used once of magnetic attraction (A. Oepke, TDNT 2:503). sn: The Father who sent me draws him. The author never specifically explains what this "drawing" consists of. It is evidently some kind of attraction; whether it is binding and irresistible or not is not mentioned. But there does seem to be a parallel with 6:65, where Jesus says that no one is able to come to him unless the Father has allowed it. This apparently parallels the use of Isaiah by John to reflect the spiritual blindness of the Jewish leaders (see the quotations from Isaiah in John 9:41 and 12:39-40). §† sn: A quotation from Isa 54:13. §†††† tn: Or "listens to the Father and learns." §§†††† tn: Grk "this one." §§††††† sn: This is best taken as a parenthetical note by the author. † sn: Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood. These words are at the heart of the discourse on the Bread of Life, and have created great misunderstanding among interpreters. Anyone who is inclined toward a sacramental viewpoint will almost certainly want to take these words as a reference to the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, or the Eucharist, because of the reference to eating and drinking. But this does not automatically follow: By anyone's definition there must be a symbolic element to the eating which Jesus speaks of in the discourse, and once this is admitted, it is better to understand it here, as in the previous references in the passage, to a personal receiving of (or appropriation of) Christ and his work. †† tn: That is, "no eternal life" (as opposed to physical life). ‡ tn: Or "who chews"; Grk ὁ τρώγων Jo trwgnw ἑσθίω esqiw τρώγω trwgnw

Jesus asked, in effect, "Has what I just taught caused you to stumble? What will you do, then, if you see the Son of Man ascending where he was before?" ### Teaching in the Temple could also be translated ingressively (“began to be astonished”), but for English stylistic reasons it is rendered as a simple past. §§§ tn: Grk “How does this man know learning since he has not been taught?” The implication here is not that Jesus never went to school (in all probability he did attend a local synagogue school while a youth), but that he was not the disciple of a particular rabbi and had not had formal or advanced instruction under a recognized rabbi (compare Acts 4:13 where a similar charge is made against Peter and John; see also Paul’s comment in Acts 22:3). sn: He has never had formal instruction. Ironically when the Jewish leaders came face to face with the Word become flesh – the preexistent Logos, creator of the universe and divine Wisdom personified – they treated him as an untaught, unlearned person, without the formal qualifications to be a teacher. <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk “So Jesus answered and said to them.” <sup>19</sup> tn: The phrase “the one who sent me” refers to God. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk “his will.” <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk “or whether I speak from myself.” <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk “who speaks from himself.” <sup>23</sup> tn: Or “seeks.” <sup>24</sup> tn: Or “praise”; Grk “glory.” <sup>25</sup> tn: Or “seeks.” <sup>26</sup> tn: Or “praise”; Grk “glory.” <sup>27</sup> tn: Or “is truthful”; Grk “is true.” <sup>28</sup> tn: Or “accomplishes”; Grk “does.” <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk “seek.” <sup>30</sup> tn: Or “The common people” (as opposed to the religious authorities mentioned in 7:15). <sup>31</sup> tn: Grk “You have a demon!” <sup>32</sup> tn: Grk “Who is seeking to kill you?” sn: Who is trying to kill you? Many of the crowd (if they had come in from surrounding regions for the feast) probably were ignorant of any plot. The plot was on the part of the Jewish leaders. Note how carefully John distinguishes between the leadership and the general populace in their respective responses to Jesus. <sup>33</sup> tn: Grk “Jesus answered and said to them.” <sup>34</sup> tn: Grk “I did one deed.” <sup>35</sup> sn: The “one miracle” that caused them all to be amazed was the last previous public miracle in Jerusalem recorded by the author, the healing of the paralyzed man in John 5:1-9 on the Sabbath. (The synoptic gospels record other Sabbath healings, but John does not mention them.) <sup>36</sup> tn: Grk “gave you circumcision.” <sup>37</sup> tn: Grk “a man.” While the text literally reads “circumcise a man” in actual fact the practice of circumcising male infants on the eighth day after birth (see Phil 3:5) is primarily what is in view here. <sup>38</sup> tn: Grk “a man.” See the note on “male child” in the previous verse. <sup>39</sup> tn: Grk “receives circumcision.” <sup>40</sup> sn: If a male child is circumcised on the Sabbath so that the law of Moses is not broken. ### Questions About Jesus' Identity

The reason for the idiom is that Jerusalem was identified with Mount Zion in the OT, so that altitude was the issue. †† tc: Most MSS 66,75

Some people who had heard Jesus were so impressed with his teaching that they began to infer from the inactivity of the opposing Jewish leaders a tacit acknowledgment of Jesus' claims. §† tn: Grk "this one." §†† tn: Or "the Messiah" (Both Greek "Christ" and Hebrew and Aramaic "Messiah" mean "one who has been anointed"). sn: See the note on Christ in 1:20. §‡ tn: Grk "this one." §†† sn: We know where this man comes from. The author apparently did not consider this objection worth answering. The true facts about Jesus' origins were readily available for any reader who didn't know already. Here is an instance where the author assumes knowledge about Jesus that is independent from the material he records. §† tn: Or "the Messiah" (Both Greek "Christ" and Hebrew and Aramaic "Messiah" mean "one who has been anointed"). sn: See the note on Christ in 1:20. §‡ sn: The view of these people regarding the Messiah that no one will know where he comes from reflects the idea that the origin of the Messiah is a mystery. In the Talmud ( b. Sanhedrin 97a) Rabbi Zera taught: "Three come unawares: Messiah, a found article, and a scorpion." Apparently OT prophetic passages like Mal 3:1 and Dan 9:25 were interpreted by some as indicating a sudden appearance of Messiah. It appears that this was not a universal view: The scribes summoned by Herod at the coming of the Magi in Matt 2 knew that the Messiah was to be born in Bethlehem. It is important to remember that Jewish messianic expectations in the early 1st century were not monolithic. §§† tn: Grk "the temple." §§‡ tn: Grk "Then Jesus cried out in the temple, teaching and saying." §§§ sn: You both know me and know where I come from! Jesus' response while teaching in the temple is difficult - it appears to concede too much understanding to his opponents. It is best to take the words as irony: "So you know me and know where I am from, do you?" On the physical, literal level, they did know where he was from: Nazareth of Galilee (at least they thought they knew). But on another deeper (spiritual) level, they did not: He came from heaven, from the Father. Jesus insisted that he has not come on his own initiative (cf. 5:37), but at the bidding of the Father who sent him. 18 tn: Grk "And I have not come from myself." 19 tn: The phrase "the one who sent me" refers to God.

know him, <sup>2029</sup> but<sup>21</sup> I know him, because I have come from him<sup>22</sup> and he<sup>23</sup> sent me."

<sup>31</sup> Yet many of the crowd<sup>26</sup> believed in him and said, "Whenever the Christ<sup>27</sup> comes, he won't perform more miraculous signs than this man did, will he?" <sup>28</sup>

<sup>35</sup> Then the Jewish leaders<sup>37</sup> said to one another, "Where is he<sup>38</sup> going to go that we cannot find him? <sup>39</sup> He is not going to go to the Jewish people dispersed<sup>40</sup> among the Greeks and teach the Greeks, is he? <sup>4136</sup>

The "chief priests and Pharisees" is a comprehensive term for the groups represented in the ruling council (the Sanhedrin) as in John 7:45; 18:3; Acts 5:22, 26. As "servants" or "officers" of the Sanhedrin their representatives should be distinguished from the Levites serving as temple police (perhaps John 7:30 and 44; also John 8:20; 10:39; 19:6; Acts 4:3). Even when performing "police" duties such as here, their "officers" are doing so only as part of their general tasks (see K. H. Rengstorf, TDNT 8:540). 33 tn: Grk "to seize him." In the context of a deliberate attempt by the servants of the chief priests and Pharisees to detain Jesus, the English verb "arrest" conveys the point more effectively. 34 tn: Grk "Yet a little I am with you." 35 tn: The word "then" is not in the Greek text, but is implied. 36 tn: Grk "seek me." 37 tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." ### Teaching About the Spirit

Differing Opinions About Jesus

† tn: Grk "What is this word that he said."†† tn: Grk "seek me."
‡ sn: There is a problem with the identification of this reference to the last day of the feast, the greatest day: It appears from Deut 16:13 that the feast went for seven days. Lev 23:36, however, makes it plain that there was an eighth day, though it was mentioned separately from the seven. It is not completely clear whether the seventh or eighth day was the climax of the feast, called here by the author the "last great day of the feast." Since according to the Mishnah ( m. Sukkah 4.1) the ceremonies with water and lights did not continue after the seventh day, it seems more probable that this is the day the author mentions. ‡† tn: Grk "Jesus stood up and cried out, saying."‡‡ tn: An alternate way of punctuating the Greek text of vv. 37-38 results in this translation: "If anyone is thirsty, let him come to me and drink. The one who believes in me, just as the scripture says, 'From within him will flow rivers of living water.'" John 7:37-38 has been the subject of considerable scholarly debate. Certainly Jesus picks up on the literal water used in the ceremony and uses it figuratively. But what does the figure mean? According to popular understanding, it refers to the coming of the Holy Spirit to dwell in the believer. There is some difficulty in locating an OT text which speaks of rivers of water flowing from within such a person, but Isa 58:11 is often suggested: "The LORD

In this context there is an implied predicate nominative ("he") following the "I am" phrase. What Jesus' hearers had to acknowledge is that he was who he claimed to be, i.e., the Messiah (cf. 20:31). This view is also reflected in English translations like NIV ("if you do not believe that I am the one I claim to be"), NLT ("unless you believe that I am who I say I am"), and CEV ("if you don't have faith in me for who I am"). For a different view that takes this "I am" and the one in 8:28 as nonpredicated (i.e., absolute), see R. E. Brown, John (AB), 1:533-38. Such a view refers sees the nonpredicated "I am" as a reference to the divine Name revealed in Exod 3:14, and is reflected in English translations like NAB ("if you do not believe that I AM, you will die in your sins") and TEV ("you will die in your sins if you do not believe that I Am Who I Am"). sn: See the note on Christ in 1:20. §† tn: Grk "Jesus said to them." §†† tn: Or "I have many things to pronounce in judgment about you." tn: Grk "If you continue in my word." <sup>25</sup> tn: Or "truly." <sup>26</sup> tn: Or "the truth will release you." The translation "set you free" or "release you" (unlike the more traditional "make you free") conveys more the idea that the hearers were currently in a state of slavery from which they needed to be freed. The following context supports precisely this idea. sn: The statement the truth will set you free is often taken as referring to truth in the philosophical (or absolute) sense, or in the intellectual sense, or even (as the Jews apparently took it) in the political sense. In the context of John's Gospel (particularly in light of the prologue) this must refer to truth about the person and work of Jesus. It is saving truth. As L. Morris says, "it is the truth which saves men from the darkness of sin, not that which saves them from the darkness of error (though there is a sense in which men in Christ are delivered from gross error)" (John [NICNT], 457). <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk "We are the seed" (an idiom). <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "They answered to him." <sup>29</sup> tn: Or "How is it that you say." <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." <sup>31</sup> tn: Or "who commits." This could simply be translated, "everyone who sins," but the Greek is more emphatic, using the participle ποιῶν poiwn

Then<sup>22</sup> they said to Jesus, <sup>23</sup> "We were not born as a result of immorality!<sup>24</sup> We have only one Father, God himself." <sup>42</sup> Jesus replied, <sup>25</sup> "If God were your Father, you would love me, for I have come from God and am now here.<sup>26</sup> I <sup>27</sup> have not come on my own initiative, <sup>28</sup> but he<sup>29</sup> sent me. <sup>43</sup> Why don't you understand what I am saying? The use of past tenses would seem to refer to something that occurred during the patriarch's lifetime. Genesis Rabbah 44:25ff, (cf. 59:6) states that Rabbi Akiba, in a debate with Rabbi Johanan ben Zakkai, held that Abraham had been shown not this world only but the world to come (this would include the days of the Messiah). More realistically, it is likely that Gen 22:13-15 lies behind Jesus' words. This passage, known to rabbis as the Akedah ("Binding"), tells of Abraham finding the ram which will replace his son Isaac on the altar of sacrifice – an occasion of certain rejoicing. 43 tn: Grk "Then the Jews." Although each occurrence of the phrase "I am" in the Fourth Gospel needs to be examined individually in context to see if an association with Exod 3:14 is present, it seems clear that this is the case here (as the response of the Jewish authorities in the following verse shows). 50 tn: Grk "they took up." 51 sn: Jesus' Jewish listeners understood his claim to deity, rejected it, and picked up stones to throw at him for what they considered blasphemy. 52 tc: Most later witnesses (A Θ c 1,13

†† tn: Grk "asked him, saying." †† tn: Grk "this one." ††† tn: Grk "in order that he should be born blind." sn: The disciples assumed that sin (regardless of who committed it) was the cause of the man's blindness. This was a common belief in Judaism; the rabbis used Ezek 18:20 to prove there was no death without sin, and Ps 89:33 to prove there was no punishment without guilt (the Babylonian Talmud, b. Shabbat 55a, although later than the NT, illustrates this). Thus in this case the sin must have been on the part of the man's parents, or during his own prenatal existence. Song Rabbah 1:41 (another later rabbinic work) stated that when a pregnant woman worshiped in a heathen temple the unborn child also committed idolatry. This is only one example of how, in rabbinic Jewish thought, an unborn child was capable of sinning. ††† tn: Grk "this one." †††† tn: Grk "but so that." There is an ellipsis that must be supplied: "but [he was born blind] so that" or "but [it happened to him] so that." ††††† tn: Or "deeds"; Grk "works." § tn: Or "manifested," "brought to light." §† tn: Grk "in him." §†† tn: Grk "We must work the works." §†† tn: Or "of him who sent me" (God). §††† tn: Or "while." §† sn: Jesus' statement I am the light of the world connects the present account with 8:12. Here (seen more clearly than at 8:12) it is obvious what the author sees as the significance of Jesus' statement. "Light" is not a metaphorical definition of the person of Jesus but a description of his effect on the world, forcing everyone in the world to 'choose up sides' for or against him (cf. 3:19-21). §†† tn: Grk "said these things." §††† tn: Or "clay" (moistened earth of a clay-like consistency). The textual variant preserved in the Syriac text of Ephraem's commentary on the Diatessaron ("he made eyes from his clay") probably arose from the interpretation given by Irenaeus

He§§† smeared the mud on the blind man's§§§ eyes<sup>7</sup> and said to him, "Go wash in the pool of Siloam" 18 (which is translated "sent" ).<sup>19</sup> So the blind man<sup>20</sup> went away and washed, and came back seeing.

8 Then the neighbors and the people who had seen him previously<sup>21</sup> as a beggar began saying, 22 " Is this not the man<sup>23</sup> who used to sit and beg?" 9 Some people said, 24 " This is the man!"<sup>25</sup> while others said, "No, but he looks like him." 26 The man himself<sup>27</sup> kept insisting, "I am the one!" 28<sup>10</sup> So they asked him, 29 " How then were you made to see?" 30<sup>11</sup> He replied, 31 " The man called Jesus made mud, 32 smeared it<sup>33</sup> on my eyes and told me, 34 ' Go to Siloam and wash.' So I went and washed, and was able to see." 35<sup>12</sup> They said<sup>36</sup> to him, "Where is that man ?"<sup>37</sup> He replied, 38 " I don't know."

The Pharisees' Reaction to the Healing

13 They brought the man who used to be blind<sup>39</sup> to the Pharisees. 40<sup>14</sup> (Now the day on which Jesus made the mud<sup>41</sup> and caused him to see<sup>42</sup> was a Sabbath.) 43<sup>15</sup> So the Pharisees asked him again how he had gained in Against Heresies: "that which the Artificer, the Word, had omitted to form in the womb, he then supplied in public." This involves taking the clay as an allusion to Gen 2:7, which is very unlikely. §§† tn: Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, the conjunction καὶ kai §§§ tn: Grk "on his." 18 tn: The pool's name in Hebrew is shiloah from the Hebrew verb "to send." In Gen 49:10 the somewhat obscure shiloh was interpreted messianically by later Jewish tradition, and some have seen a lexical connection between the two names (although this is somewhat dubious). It is known, however, that it was from the pool of Siloam that the water which was poured out at the altar during the feast of Tabernacles was drawn. 19 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. Why does he comment on the meaning of the name of the pool? Here, the significance is that the Father sent the Son, and the Son sent the man born blind. The name of the pool is applicable to the man, but also to Jesus himself, who was sent from heaven. 20 tn: Grk "So he"; the referent (the blind man) is specified in the translation for clarity. 21 tn: Or "formerly." 22 tn: An ingressive force ("began saying") is present here because the change in status of the blind person provokes this new response from those who knew him. 23 tn: Grk "the one." 24 tn: Grk "Others were saying." 25 tn: Grk "This is the one." 26 tn: Grk "No, but he is like him." 27 tn: Grk "That one"; the referent (the man himself) is specified in the translation for clarity. 28 tn: Grk "I am he." 29 tn: Grk "So they were saying to him." 30 tn: Grk "How then were your eyes opened" (an idiom referring to restoration of sight). 31 tn: Grk "That one answered." 32 tn: Or "clay" (moistened earth of a clay-like consistency). 33 tn: Grk "and smeared." Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when obvious from the context. 34 tn: Grk "said to me." 35 tn: Or "and I gained my sight." 36 tn: Grk "And they said." 37 tn: Grk "that one." "Man" is more normal English style for the referent. 38 tn: Grk "He said." 39 tn: Grk "who was formerly blind." 40 sn: See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. 41 tn: Or "clay" (moistened earth of a clay-like consistency). 42 tn: Grk "and opened his eyes" (an idiom referring to restoration of sight). 43 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author.

his sight. † He replied, †† “He put mud‡ on my eyes and I washed, and now†† I am able to see.”

<sup>18</sup> Now the Jewish religious leaders§† refused to believe§† that he had really been blind and had gained his sight until at last they summoned§§† the parents of the man who had become able to see. §§†<sup>19</sup> They asked the parents, §§§ “Is this your son, whom you say<sup>18</sup> was born blind? Then how does he now see?” <sup>20</sup> So his parents replied, <sup>19</sup> “We know that this is our son and that he was born blind. <sup>21</sup> But we do not know how he is now able to see, nor do we know who caused him to see. <sup>20</sup>

† tn: Or “how he had become able to see.” sn: So the Pharisees asked him. Note the subtlety here: On the surface, the man is being judged. But through him, Jesus is being judged. Yet in reality (as the discerning reader will realize) it is ironically the Pharisees themselves who are being judged by their response to Jesus who is the light of the world (cf. 3:17-21). †† tn: Grk “And he said to them.”

‡ tn: Or “clay” (moistened earth of a clay-like consistency). †† tn: The word “now” is not in the Greek text, but is supplied to indicate the contrast between the man’s former state (blind) and his present state (able to see). ††† tn: As a response to the answers of the man who used to be blind, the use of the imperfect tense in the reply of the Pharisees is best translated as an ingressive imperfect (“began to say” or “started saying”). †††† tn: Grk “he does not keep.” †††† sn: The Jewish religious leaders considered the work involved in making the mud to be a violation of the Sabbath. § tn: Grk “do.” §† tn: Or “So there was discord.” §†† tn: Grk “the blind man.” §†† tn: Grk “since he opened your eyes” (an idiom referring to restoration of sight). §††† tn: Grk “And he said, ‘He is a prophet.’” sn: At this point the man, pressed by the Pharisees, admitted there was something special about Jesus. But here, since prophet is anarthrous (is not accompanied by the Greek article) and since in his initial reply in 9:11-12 the man showed no particular insight into the true identity of Jesus, this probably does not refer to the prophet of Deut 18:15, but merely to an unusual person who is capable of working miracles. The Pharisees had put this man on the spot, and he felt compelled to say something about Jesus, but he still didn’t have a clear conception of who Jesus was, so he labeled him a “prophet.” §† tn: Or “the Jewish religious authorities”; Grk “the Jews.” In NT usage the term Ἰουδαῖοι Ioudaioi

Ask him, he is a mature adult. <sup>21</sup> He will speak for himself.” <sup>22</sup> (His parents said these things because they were afraid of the Jewish religious leaders.<sup>22</sup> For the Jewish leaders had already agreed that anyone who confessed Jesus<sup>23</sup> to be the Christ<sup>24</sup> would be put out<sup>25</sup> of the synagogue. <sup>26,23</sup> For this reason his parents said, “He is a mature adult, <sup>27</sup> ask him.”) <sup>28</sup>

word of God came were called 'gods' (and the scripture cannot be broken), <sup>†36</sup> do you say about the one whom the Father set apart†† and sent into the world, 'You are blaspheming,' because I said, 'I am the Son of God?' <sup>37</sup> If I do not perform‡ the deeds†† of my Father, do not believe me. <sup>38</sup> But if I do them, even if you do not believe me, believe the deeds, ‡‡ so that you may come to know‡‡ and understand that I am in the Father and the Father is in me." <sup>39</sup> Then‡‡‡ they attempted§ again to seize him, but he escaped their clutches. §†

† sn: The parenthetical note And the scripture cannot be broken belongs to Jesus' words rather than the author's. Not only does Jesus appeal to the OT to defend himself against the charge of blasphemy, but he also adds that the scripture cannot be "broken." In this context he does not explain precisely what is meant by "broken," but it is not too hard to determine. Jesus' argument depended on the exact word used in the context of Ps 82:6. If any other word for "judge" had been used in the psalm, his argument would have been meaningless. Since the scriptures do use this word in Ps 82:6, the argument is binding, because they cannot be "broken" in the sense of being shown to be in error. †† tn: Or "dedicated." ‡ tn: Or "do." ‡† tn: Or "works." ‡‡ tn: Or "works." sn: Jesus says that in the final analysis, the deeds he did should indicate whether he was truly from the Father. It is a bit surprising that the author here identifies Mary as the one who anointed the Lord with perfumed oil and wiped his feet dry with her hair, since this event is not mentioned until later, in 12:3. Many see this "proleptic" reference as an indication that the author expected his readers to be familiar with the story already, and go on to assume that in general the author in writing the Fourth Gospel assumed his readers were familiar with the other three gospels. Whether the author assumed actual familiarity with the synoptic gospels or not, it is probable that he did assume some familiarity with Mary's anointing activity. <sup>22</sup> tn: The phrase "a message" is not in the Greek text but is implied. Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from context. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "to him, saying"; the referent (Jesus) is specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "This sickness is not to death." sn: Jesus plainly stated the purpose of Lazarus' sickness in the plan of God: The end of the matter would not be death, but the glorification of the Son. Johannine double-meanings abound here: Even though death would not be the end of the matter, Lazarus is going to die; and ultimately his death and resurrection would lead to the death and resurrection of the Son of God ( 11:45-53). Furthermore, the glorification of the Son is not praise that comes to him for the miracle, but his death, resurrection, and return to the Father which the miracle precipitates (note the response of the Jewish authorities in 11:47-53). <sup>25</sup> tn: Or "to God's praise." <sup>26</sup> sn: So that the Son of God may be glorified through it. These statements are highly ironic: For Lazarus, the sickness did not end in his death, because he was restored to life. But for Jesus himself, the miraculous sign he performed led to his own death, because it confirmed the authorities in their plan to kill Jesus ( 11:47-53). In the Gospel of John, Jesus' death is consistently portrayed as his 'glorification' through which he accomplishes his return to the Father. <sup>27</sup> sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. It was necessary for the author to reaffirm Jesus' love for Martha and her sister and Lazarus here because Jesus' actions in the following verse appear to be contradictory. <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "that he"; the referent (Lazarus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>29</sup> sn: The village of Bethany, where Lazarus was, lies in Judea, less than 2 mi (3 km) from Jerusalem (see 11:18). <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "The disciples said to him." <sup>31</sup> tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." In NT usage the term Ἰουδαῖοι Ioudaioi

"Are there not twelve hours in a day? If anyone walks around in the daytime, he does not stumble, † because he sees the light of this world. ††<sup>10</sup> But if anyone walks around at night, ‡ he stumbles, †† because the light is not in him."

<sup>11</sup> After he said this, he added, †† "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep. ††† But I am going there to awaken him." <sup>12</sup> Then the disciples replied, ††† "Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will recover." <sup>13</sup> (Now Jesus had been talking about§ his death, but they§† thought he had been talking about real sleep.) §††

<sup>14</sup> Then Jesus told them plainly, "Lazarus has died, <sup>15</sup> and I am glad§† for your sake that I was not there, so that you may believe. §†† But let us go to him." <sup>16</sup> So Thomas (called Didymus§†)§† said to his fellow disciples, "Let us go too, so that we may die with him." §††

On one level, of course, it refers to the sun, but the reader of John's Gospel would recall 8:12 and understand Jesus' symbolic reference to himself as the light of the world. There is only a limited time left (Are there not twelve hours in a day?) until the Light will be withdrawn (until Jesus returns to the Father) and the one who walks around in the dark will trip and fall (compare the departure of Judas by night in 13:30). ‡ tn: Grk "in the night." †† tn: Or "he trips." ††† tn: Grk "He said these things, and after this he said to them." †††† tn: The verb κοιμάω koimaw

Why does Jesus make this statement? It seems necessary to understand the disciples' belief here in a developmental sense, because there are numerous references to the disciples' faith previous to this in John's Gospel, notably 2:11. Their concept of who Jesus really was is continually being expanded and challenged; they are undergoing spiritual growth; the climax is reached in the confession of Thomas in John 20:28. §† sn: Didymus means "the twin" in Greek. §‡ sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. §§† sn: One gets the impression from Thomas' statement "Let us go too, so that we may die with him" that he was something of a pessimist resigned to his fate. And yet his dedicated loyalty to Jesus and his determination to accompany him at all costs was truly commendable. Nor is the contrast between this statement and the confession of Thomas in 20:28, which forms the climax of the entire Fourth Gospel, to be overlooked; certainly Thomas' concept of who Jesus is has changed drastically between 11:16 and 20:28. §§‡ tn: Grk "Then when." §§§ tn: Grk "came." <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Lazarus) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

<sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "he had already had four days in the tomb" (an idiom). sn: There is no description of the journey itself. The author simply states that when Jesus arrived, he found that Lazarus had been in the tomb four days already. He had died some time before this but probably not very long (cf. Ananias and Sapphira in Acts 5:6,10 who were buried immediately after they died, as was the common practice of the time). There is some later evidence (early 3rd century) of a rabbinic belief that the soul hovered near the body of the deceased for three days, hoping to be able to return to the body. But on the fourth day it saw the beginning of decomposition and finally departed (Leviticus Rabbah 18.1). If this belief is as old as the 1st century, it might suggest the significance of the four days: After this time, resurrection would be a first-order miracle, an unequivocal demonstration of the power of God. It is not certain if the tradition is this early, but it is suggestive. Certainly the author does not appear to attach any symbolic significance to the four days in the narrative. <sup>20</sup> tn: Or "three kilometers"; Grk "fifteen stades" (a stade as a unit of linear measure is about 607 feet or 187 meters). <sup>21</sup> map: For location see . <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "many of the Judeans" (cf. It is similar to the incident in Luke 10:38-42. Here again one finds Martha occupied with the responsibilities of hospitality; she is the one who greets Jesus. <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "Then Martha." Here οὖν oun <sup>27</sup> tn: Or "give." <sup>28</sup> sn: The statement "whatever you ask from God, God will grant you" by Martha presents something of a dilemma, because she seems to be suggesting here (implicitly at least) the possibility of a resurrection for her brother. However, Martha's statement in 11:39 makes it clear that she had no idea that a resurrection was still possible. How then are her words in 11:22 to be understood? It seems best to take them as a confession of Martha's continuing faith in Jesus even though he was not there in time to help her brother. She means, in effect, "Even though you weren't here in time to help, I still believe that God grants your requests." <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "Jesus said to her." <sup>30</sup> tn: Or "Your brother will rise again." sn: Jesus' remark to Martha that Lazarus would come back to life again is another example of the misunderstood statement. Martha apparently took it as a customary statement of consolation and joined Jesus in professing belief in the general resurrection of the body at the end of the age. However, as Jesus went on to point out in 11:25-26, Martha's general understanding of the resurrection at the last day was inadequate for the present situation, for the gift of life that conquers death was a present reality to Jesus. This is consistent with the author's perspective on eternal life in the Fourth Gospel: It is not only a future reality, but something to be experienced in the come back to life again† in the resurrection at the last day." 25 Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life. 28 And when she had said this, Martha<sup>s</sup> went and called her sister Mary, saying privately, <sup>s†</sup> "The Teacher is here and is asking for you." <sup>s††29</sup> So when Mary<sup>s†</sup> heard this, she got up quickly and went to him. 30 (Now Jesus had not yet entered the village, but was still in the place where Martha had come out to meet him.) 31 Then the people<sup>s††</sup> who were with Mary<sup>s†</sup> in the house consoling her saw her<sup>s†</sup> get up quickly and go out. They followed her, because they thought she was going to the tomb to weep<sup>s††</sup> there.

32 Now when Mary came to the place where Jesus was and saw him, she fell at his feet and said to him, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died." 33 When Jesus saw her weeping, and the people<sup>s††</sup> who had come with her weeping, he was intensely moved<sup>s†††</sup> in spirit and greatly distressed. 1834

Here the phrase refers to the friends, acquaintances, and relatives of Lazarus or his sisters who had come to mourn, since the Jewish religious authorities are specifically mentioned as a separate group in John 11:46-47. See also the notes on the phrase "the Jewish leaders" in v. 8 and "the Jewish people of the region" in v. 19, as well as the notes on the word "people" in vv. 31, 33. 24 tn: Grk "who opened the eyes of the blind man" ("opening the eyes" is an idiom referring to restoration of sight). 25 tn: Grk "this one"; the second half of 11:37 reads Grk "Could not this one who opened the eyes of the blind have done something to keep this one from dying?" In the Greek text the repetition of "this one" in 11:37b referring to two different persons (first Jesus, second Lazarus) could confuse a modern reader. Thus the first reference, to Jesus, has been translated as "he" to refer back to the beginning of v. 37, where the reference to "the man who caused the blind man to see" is clearly a reference to Jesus. The second reference, to Lazarus, has been specified ("Lazarus") in the translation for clarity. 26 tn: Or (perhaps) "Jesus was deeply indignant." 27 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 28 tn: Or "Remove the stone." 29 tn: Grk "the sister of the one who had

Although all the details of the miracle itself are not given, those details which are mentioned are important. The statement made by Martha is extremely significant for understanding what actually took place. There is no doubt that Lazarus had really died, because the decomposition of his body had already begun to take place, since he had been dead for four days.<sup>33</sup> tn: Grk "Jesus said to her."† tn: Or "they removed."†† tn: Grk "lifted up his eyes above."‡ tn: Or "that you have heard me."‡† tn: Grk "that you always hear me."‡‡ tn: The word "this" is not in the Greek text. Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from the context. ††† tn: Grk "And when." ††† sn: The purpose of the loud voice was probably to ensure that all in the crowd could hear (compare the purpose of the prayer of thanksgiving in vv. 41-42). § sn: Many have wondered how Lazarus got out of the tomb if his hands and feet were still tied up with strips of cloth. The author does not tell, and with a miracle of this magnitude, this is not an important fact to know. If Lazarus' decomposing body was brought back to life by the power of God, then it could certainly have been moved out of the tomb by that same power. Others have suggested that the legs were bound separately, which would remove the difficulty, but the account gives no indication of this. What may be of more significance for the author is the comparison which this picture naturally evokes with the resurrection of Jesus, where the graveclothes stayed in the tomb neatly folded (20:6-7). Jesus, unlike Lazarus, would never need graveclothes again. §† tn: Grk "and his face tied around with cloth." §†† tn: Grk "Loose him." §‡ tn: Or "the Judeans"; Grk "the Jews." Here the phrase refers to the friends, acquaintances, and relatives of Lazarus or his sisters who had come to mourn, since the Jewish religious authorities are specifically mentioned as a separate group in John 11:46-47. See also the notes on the phrase "the Jewish leaders" in v. 8 and "the Jewish people of the region" in v. 19, as well as the notes on the word "people" in vv. 31, 33 and the phrase "people who had come to mourn" in v. 36. §†† tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §† sn: See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. §‡ tn: Grk "told them." §§† tn: The phrase "chief priests and Pharisees" is a comprehensive name for the group represented in the ruling council (the Sanhedrin) as in John 7:45; 18:3; Acts 5:22, 26. §§‡ tn: Or "Sanhedrin" (the Sanhedrin was the highest legal, legislative, and judicial body among the Jews). <sup>49</sup> Then one of them, Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, said,<sup>19</sup> "You know nothing at all!"<sup>50</sup> You do not realize<sup>20</sup> that it is more to your advantage to have one man<sup>21</sup> die for the people than for the whole nation to perish."<sup>2251</sup> (Now he did not say this on his own,<sup>23</sup> but because he was high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus was going to die for the Jewish nation,<sup>2452</sup> and not for the Jewish nation<sup>25</sup> only,<sup>26</sup> but to gather together<sup>27</sup> into one the children of God who are scattered.)<sup>2853</sup> So from that day they planned together to kill him.

22 sn: In his own mind Caiaphas was no doubt giving voice to a common-sense statement of political expediency. Yet he was unconsciously echoing a saying of Jesus himself (cf. Mark 10:45). Caiaphas was right; the death of Jesus would save the nation from destruction. Yet Caiaphas could not suspect that Jesus would die, not in place of the political nation Israel, but on behalf of the true people of God; and he would save them, not from physical destruction, but from eternal destruction (cf. 3:16-17). The understanding of Caiaphas' words in a sense that Caiaphas could not possibly have imagined at the time he uttered them serves as a clear example of the way in which the author understood that words and actions could be invested retrospectively with a meaning not consciously intended or understood by those present at the time.

23 tn: Grk "say this from himself." 24 tn: The word "Jewish" is not in the Greek text, but is clearly implied by the context (so also NIV; TEV "the Jewish people"). 25 tn: See the note on the word "nation" in the previous verse. 26 sn: The author in his comment expands the prophecy to include the Gentiles (not for the Jewish nation only), a confirmation that the Fourth Gospel was directed, at least partly, to a Gentile audience. There are echoes of Pauline concepts here (particularly Eph 2:11-22) in the stress on the unity of Jew and Gentile. 27 tn: Grk "that he might gather together."

28 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 29 tn: Grk "walked." 30 tn: Or "openly." 31 tn: Grk "among the Jews." With a note characteristic of someone who was there and remembered, the author adds that the house was filled with the fragrance of the perfumed oil. In the later rabbinic literature, Ecclesiastes Rabbah 7.1.1 states “The fragrance of good oil is diffused from the bedroom to the dining hall, but a good name is diffused from one end of the world to the other.” If such a saying was known in the 1st century, this might be the au-

As keeper of the money box, <sup>21</sup> he used to steal what was put into it.) <sup>227</sup> So Jesus said, “Leave her alone. She has kept it for the day of my burial. <sup>238</sup> For you will always have the poor with you, but you will not always have me!” <sup>24</sup> 9 Now a large crowd of Judeans<sup>25</sup> learned<sup>26</sup> that Jesus<sup>27</sup> was there, and so they came not only because of him<sup>28</sup> but also to see Lazarus whom he had raised

This is one of the indications in the gospels that Judas was of bad character before the betrayal of Jesus. John states that he was a thief and had responsibility for the finances of the group. More than being simply a derogatory note about Judas’ character, the inclusion of the note at this particular point in the narrative may be intended to link the frustrated greed of Judas here with his subsequent decision to betray Jesus for money. The parallel accounts in Matthew and Mark seem to indicate that after this incident Judas went away immediately and made his deal with the Jewish authorities to deliver up Jesus. Losing out on one source of sordid gain, he immediately went out and set up another. 23 tn: Grk “Leave her alone, that for the day of my burial she may keep it.” The construction with ἵνα hina

††† sn: A quotation from Ps 118:25-26. § tn: Grk "Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord, even the King of Israel." The words "Blessed is" are not repeated in the Greek text, but are repeated in the translation to avoid the awkwardness in English of the ascensive καί kai §† sn: The author does not repeat the detailed accounts of the finding of the donkey recorded in the synoptic gospels. He does, however, see the event as a fulfillment of scripture, which he indicates by quoting Zech 9:9. §†† tn: Grk "Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion" (the phrase "daughter of Zion" is an idiom for the inhabitants of Jerusalem: "people of Zion"). The idiom "daughter of Zion" has been translated as "people of Zion" because the original idiom, while firmly embedded in the Christian tradition, is not understandable to most modern English readers. §† sn: A quotation from Zech 9:9. §†† tn: Or "did not understand these things at first"; Grk "formerly." §† sn: When Jesus was glorified, membered that these things were written about him and that these things had happened<sup>26</sup> to him.)<sup>27</sup>

<sup>17</sup> So the crowd who had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead were continuing to testify about it.<sup>18</sup> Because they had heard that Jesus<sup>19</sup> had performed this miraculous sign, the crowd went out to meet him.<sup>19</sup> Thus the Pharisees<sup>18</sup> said to one another, "You see that you can do nothing. Look, the world has run off after him!"

Seekers

that is, glorified through his resurrection, exaltation, and return to the Father. Jesus' glorification is consistently portrayed this way in the Gospel of John. §† tn: Grk "and that they had done these things," though the referent is probably indefinite and not referring to the disciples; as such, the best rendering is as a passive (see ExSyn 402-3; R. E. Brown, John [AB], 1:458). §§† sn: The comment His disciples did not understand these things when they first happened (a parenthetical note by the author) informs the reader that Jesus' disciples did not at first associate the prophecy from Zechariah with the events as they happened. This came with the later (postresurrection) insight which the Holy Spirit would provide after Jesus' resurrection and return to the Father. Note the similarity with John 2:22, which follows another allusion to a prophecy in Zechariah ( 14:21). §§† tn: The word "it" is not included in the Greek text. Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from the context. §§§ tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 18 sn: See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. 19 sn: These Greeks ( "Ελληνές τινες {ellhne" tine"

<sup>20</sup> sn: These Greeks approached Philip, although it is not clear why they did so. Perhaps they identified with his Greek name (although a number of Jews from border areas had Hellenistic names at this period). By see it is clear they meant "speak with," since anyone could "see" Jesus moving through the crowd. The author does not mention what they wanted to speak with Jesus about. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "and were asking him, saying." The participle λέγοντες legontes

<sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "Andrew and Philip"; because a repetition of the proper names would be redundant in contemporary English style, the phrase "they both" has been substituted in the translation. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "Jesus answered them, saying." The participle λέγων legwn

<sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "the hour." <sup>25</sup> sn: Jesus' reply, the time has come for the Son of Man to be glorified, is a bit puzzling. As far as the author's account is concerned, Jesus totally ignores these Greeks and makes no further reference to them whatsoever. It appears that his words are addressed to Andrew and Philip, but in fact they must have had a wider audience, including possibly the Greeks who had wished to see him in the first place. The words the time has come recall all the previous references to "the hour" throughout the Fourth Gospel (see the note on time in

It is now clear that Jesus' hour has come – the hour of his return to the Father through crucifixion, death, resurrection, and ascension (see 12:23). This will be reiterated in 13:1 and 17:1. Jesus states (employing words similar to those of Ps 6:4) that his soul is troubled. What shall his response to his imminent death be? A prayer to the Father to deliver him from that hour? No, because it is on account of this very hour that Jesus has come. His sacrificial death has always remained the primary purpose of his mission into the world. Now, faced with the completion of that mission, shall he ask the Father to spare him from it? The expected answer is no. ‡††† tn: Or "this occasion." ‡††† tn: Or "from the sky" (see note on 1:32). ‡††† tn: "It" is not in the Greek text. The direct discourse in the second half of v. 29 was converted to indirect discourse in the translation to maintain the parallelism with the first half of the verse, which is better in keeping with English style. 18 tn: Grk "Jesus answered and said." 19 tn: Or "for my sake." 20 sn: The ruler of this world is a reference to Satan. 21 tn: Or "will be thrown out." 34 Then the crowd responded, 24 " We have heard from the law that the Christ‡25 will remain forever. 26 How 27 can you say, 'The Son of Man must be lifted up'? Who is this Son of Man?" 35 Jesus replied, 28 " The light is with you for a little while longer. 29 Walk while you have the light, so that the darkness may not overtake you. 30 The one who walks in the darkness does not know where he is going. 36 While you have the light, believe in the light, so that you may become sons of light." 31 When Jesus had said these things, he went away and hid himself from them.

The Outcome of Jesus' Public Ministry Foretold

37 Although Jesus‡32 had performed‡33 so many miraculous signs before them, they still refused to believe in him, 38 so that the word‡34 of Isaiah the prophet would be fulfilled. He said, 35 " Lord , who has believed our message, and to whom has the arm of the Lord, who has believed our message, and to whom has the arm

22 tn: Grk "all." The word "people" is not in the Greek text but is supplied for stylistic reasons and for clarity (cf. KJV "all men"). 23 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 24 tn: Grk "Then the crowd answered him." 25 tn: Or "the Messiah" (Both Greek "Christ" and Hebrew and Aramaic "Messiah" mean "one who has been anointed"). sn: See the note on Christ in 1:20. 26 tn: Probably an allusion to Ps 89:35-37. It is difficult to pinpoint the passage in the Mosaic law to which the crowd refers. The ones most often suggested are Ps 89:36-37, Ps 110:4, Isa 9:7, Ezek 37:25, and Dan 7:14. None of these passages are in the Pentateuch per se, but "law" could in common usage refer to the entire OT (compare Jesus' use in John 10:34). Of the passages mentioned, Ps 89:36-37 is the most likely candidate. This verse speaks of David's "seed" remaining forever. Later in the same psalm, v. 51 speaks of the "anointed" (Messiah), and the psalm was interpreted messianically in both the NT ( Acts 13:22, Rev 1:5, 3:14) and in the rabbinic literature ( Genesis Rabbah 97). 27 tn: Grk "And how"; the conjunction καί kai

28 tn: Grk "Then Jesus said to them." 29 tn: Grk "Yet a little while the light is with you." 30 sn: The warning Walk while you have the light, so that the darkness may not overtake you operates on at least two different levels: (1) To the Jewish people in Jerusalem to whom Jesus spoke, the warning was a reminder that there was only a little time left for them to accept him as their Messiah. (2) To those later individuals to whom the Fourth Gospel was written, and to every person since, the words of Jesus are also a warning: There is a finite, limited time in which each individual has opportunity to respond to the Light of the world (i.e., Jesus); after that comes darkness. One's response to the Light decisively determines one's judgment for eternity. 31 tn: The idiom "sons of light" means essentially "people characterized by light," that is, "people of God." sn: The expression sons of light refers to men and women to whom the truth of God has been revealed and who are therefore living according to that truth, thus, "people of God." 32 tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 33 tn: Or "done." 34 tn: Or "message." 35 tn: Grk "who said."

of the Lord† been revealed?" <sup>††39</sup> For this reason they could not believe, ‡ because again Isaiah said, <sup>40</sup> "He has blinded their eyes and hardened their heart, ‡ so that they would not see with their eyes and understand with their heart, ‡ and turn to me,‡‡ and I would heal them*." ‡‡‡

† tn: "The arm of the Lord" is an idiom for "God's great power" (as exemplified through Jesus' miraculous signs). This response of unbelief is interpreted by the author as a fulfillment of the prophetic words of Isaiah (Isa 53:1). The phrase ὁ βραχίων κυρίου Jo braciwn kuriou

‡ sn: The author explicitly states here that Jesus' Jewish opponents could not believe, and quotes Isa 6:10 to show that God had in fact blinded their eyes and hardened their heart. This OT passage was used elsewhere in the NT to explain Jewish unbelief: Paul's final words in Acts (28:26-27) are a quotation of this same passage, which he uses to explain why the Jewish people have not accepted the gospel he has preached. A similar passage (Isa 29:10) is quoted in a similar context in Rom 11:8. ‡† tn: Or "closed their mind." ‡‡ tn: Or "their mind." ‡‡† tn: One could also translate στραφῶσιν (strafwsin

‡‡‡ sn: A quotation from Isa 6:10. § tn: Grk "his"; the referent (Christ) has been specified in the translation for clarity. The referent supplied here is "Christ" rather than "Jesus" because it involves what Isaiah saw. It is clear that the author presents Isaiah as having seen the preincarnate glory of Christ, which was the very revelation of the Father (see John 1:18; John 14:9). sn: Because he saw Christ's glory. The glory which Isaiah saw in Isa 6:3 was the glory of Yahweh (typically rendered as "Lord" in the OT). Here John speaks of the prophet seeing the glory of Christ since in the next clause and spoke about him, "him" can hardly refer to Yahweh, but must refer to Christ. On the basis of statements like 1:14 in the prologue, the author probably put no great distinction between the two. Since the author presents Jesus as fully God (cf. John 1:1), it presents no problem to him to take words originally spoken by Isaiah of Yahweh himself and apply them to Jesus. §† sn: The term rulers here denotes members of the Sanhedrin, the highest legal, legislative, and judicial body among the Jews. Note the same word ("ruler") is used to describe Nicodemus in 3:1. §†† sn: See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. §‡ tn: The words "Jesus to be the Christ" are not in the Greek text, but are implied (see 9:22). As is often the case in Greek, the direct object is omitted for the verb ὡμολόγησαν Jwmologoun

§†† tn: Or "be expelled from." §† sn: Compare John 9:22. See the note on synagogue in 6:59. §‡ tn: Grk "the glory." §§† tn: Grk "the glory."

Jesus' Final Public Words

<sup>44</sup> But Jesus shouted out, §§† "The one who believes in me does not believe in me, but in the one who sent me, <sup>§§§45</sup> and the one who sees me sees the one who sent me. <sup>1846</sup> I have come as a light into the world, so that everyone who believes in me should not remain in darkness. <sup>47</sup> If anyone<sup>19</sup> hears my words and does not obey them,<sup>20</sup> I do not judge him. For I have not come to judge the world, but to save the world. <sup>2148</sup> The one who rejects me and does not accept<sup>22</sup> my words has a judge; <sup>23</sup> the word<sup>24</sup> I have spoken will judge him at the last day. <sup>49</sup> For I have not spoken from my own authority, <sup>25</sup> but the Father himself who sent me has commanded me<sup>26</sup> what I should say and what I should speak. <sup>50</sup> And I know that his commandment is eternal life. <sup>27</sup> Thus the things I say, I say just as the Father has told me." <sup>28</sup>

13 Just before the Passover feast, Jesus knew that his time<sup>29</sup> had come to depart<sup>30</sup> from this world to the Father. Having loved his own who were in the world, he now loved them to the very end. <sup>312</sup> The evening meal<sup>32</sup> was in progress, and the devil had already put into the heart<sup>33</sup> of Judas Iscariot, Simon's

<sup>31</sup> tn: Or "he now loved them completely," or "he now loved them to the uttermost" (see John 19:30). All of John 13:1 is a single sentence in Greek, although in English this would be unacceptably awkward. At the end of the verse the idiom εἰς τέλος eis telos

τετέλεσται tetelestai

<sup>32</sup> tn: Or "Supper." To avoid possible confusion because of different regional English usage regarding the distinction between "dinner" and "supper" as an evening meal, the translation simply refers to "the evening meal." <sup>33</sup> sn: At this point the devil had already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, that he should betray Jesus. C. K. Barrett (St. John, 365) thought this was a reference to the idea entering the devil's own heart, but this does not seem likely. It is more probable that Judas' heart is meant, since the use of the Greek article (rather than a possessive pronoun) is a typical idiom when a part of one's own body is indicated. Judas' name is withheld until the end of the son, that he should betray† Jesus. <sup>††3</sup> Because Jesus† knew that the Father had handed all things over to him, †† and that he had come from God and was going back to God, <sup>4</sup> he got up from the meal, removed‡‡ his outer clothes, ‡‡† took a towel and tied it around himself. <sup>‡‡‡5</sup> He poured water into the washbasin and began to wash the disciples' feet and to dry them with the towel he had wrapped around himself. <sup>5</sup>

<sup>6</sup> Then he came to Simon Peter. Peterst said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash <sup>st††</sup> my feet?" <sup>7</sup> Jesus replied, st "You do not understand<sup>st††</sup> what I am doing now, but you will understand<sup>st†</sup> after these things." <sup>8</sup> Peter said to him, "You will never wash my feet!" <sup>st†</sup> Jesus replied, <sup>st†</sup> "If I do not wash you, you have no share with me." <sup>st†9</sup> Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, wash<sup>stst</sup> not only my feet, but also my hands and my head!" <sup>10</sup> Jesus replied, <sup>18</sup> "The one who has bathed needs only to wash his feet, <sup>19</sup> but is completely<sup>20</sup> clean. <sup>21</sup> And you disciples<sup>22</sup> are clean, but not every

This action must be read in light of 13:27, and appears to refer to a preliminary idea or plan. † tn: Or "that he should hand over." †† tn: Grk "betray him"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡ tn: Grk "Because he knew"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡† tn: Grk "had given all things into his hands." ‡‡ tn: Grk "and removed"; the conjunction καί kai

‡‡‡ tn: Grk "taking a towel he girded himself." Jesus would have wrapped the towel (λέντιον lention) διέζωσεν εαυτὸν diezwsen Jeauton λέντιον

one of you." <sup>11</sup> (For Jesus<sup>23</sup> knew the one who was going to betray him. For this reason he said, "Not every one of you is<sup>24</sup> clean.") <sup>25</sup> <sup>12</sup> So when Jesus<sup>26</sup> had washed their feet and put his outer clothing back on, he took his place at the table<sup>27</sup> again and said to them, "Do you understand<sup>28</sup> what I have done for you? <sup>13</sup> You call me 'Teacher' and 'Lord,' and do so correctly, <sup>29</sup> for that is what I am. <sup>30†4</sup> If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you too ought to wash one another's feet. <sup>15</sup> For I have given you an example<sup>31</sup> – you should do just as I have done for you. <sup>16</sup> I tell you the solemn truth, <sup>32</sup> the slave<sup>33</sup> is not greater than his master, nor is the one who is sent as a messenger<sup>34</sup> greater than the one who sent him. <sup>17</sup> If you understand<sup>35</sup> these things, you will be blessed if you do them.

The Announcement of Jesus' Betrayal

<sup>18</sup> "What I am saying does not refer to all of you. I know the ones I have chosen. But this is to fulfill the scripture, <sup>36</sup> 'The one who eats my bread my bread<sup>37</sup> has turned against me.' <sup>38†9</sup> I am telling you this now, <sup>39</sup> before it happens, so that when it happens you may believe<sup>40</sup> that I am he. <sup>41†20</sup> I tell you the solemn truth, initial abhorrence of the act of humiliation by his master all the more significant in context; it also explains Jesus' seemingly harsh reply to Peter (above, v. 8; compare Matt 16:21-23 where Jesus says to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan"). <sup>22</sup> tn: The word "disciples" is supplied in English to clarify the plural Greek pronoun and verb. Peter is not the only one Jesus is addressing here. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "Not all of you are." <sup>25</sup> sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk "he reclined at the table." The phrase reflects the normal 1st century Near Eastern practice of eating a meal in a semi-reclining position. <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "Do you know." <sup>29</sup> tn: Or "rightly." <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "and I am these things." <sup>31</sup> sn: I have given you an example. Jesus tells his disciples after he has finished washing their feet that what he has done is to set an example for them. In the previous verse he told them they were to wash one another's feet. What is the point of the example? If it is simply an act of humble service, as most interpret the significance, then Jesus is really telling his disciples to serve one another in humility rather than seeking preeminence over one another. If, however, the example is one of self-sacrifice up to the point of death, then Jesus is telling them to lay down their lives for one another (cf. 15:13). <sup>32</sup> tn: Grk "Truly, truly, I say to you." <sup>33</sup> tn: See the note on the word "slaves" in 4:51. <sup>34</sup> tn: Or "nor is the apostle" ("apostle" means "one who is sent" in Greek). <sup>35</sup> tn: Grk "If you know." <sup>36</sup> tn: Grk "But so that the scripture may be fulfilled." <sup>37</sup> tn: Or "The one who shares my food." <sup>38</sup> tn: Or "has become my enemy"; Grk "has lifted up his heel against me." The phrase "to lift up one's heel against someone" reads literally in the Hebrew of Ps 41 "has made his heel great against me." There have been numerous interpretations of this phrase, but most likely it is an idiom meaning "has given me a great fall," "has taken cruel advantage of me," or "has walked out on me." Whatever the exact meaning of the idiom, it clearly speaks of betrayal by a close associate. See E. F. F. Bishop, "He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me" – Jn xiii.18 (Ps xli.9), ExpTim 70 (1958-59): 331-33. sn: A quotation from Ps 41:9. <sup>39</sup> tn: Or (perhaps) "I am certainly telling you this." This individual also is mentioned in 19:26, 20:2, 21:7, and 21:20. Some have suggested that this disciple is to be identified with Lazarus, since the Fourth Gospel specifically states that Jesus loved him ( 11:3, 5, 36). From the terminology alone this is a possibility; the author is certainly capable of using language in this way to indicate connections. But there is nothing else to indicate that Lazarus was present at the last supper; Mark 14:17 seems to indicate it was only the twelve who were with Jesus at this time, and there is no indication in the Fourth Gospel to the contrary. Nor does it appear that Lazarus ever stood so close to Jesus as the later references in chaps. 19, 20 and 21 seem to indicate. When this is coupled with the omission of all references to John son of Zebedee from the Fourth Gospel, it seems far more likely that the references to the beloved disciple should be understood as references to him. §†† tn: Grk “was reclining.” This reflects the normal 1st century practice of eating a meal in a semi-reclining position. §† tn: Grk “was reclining in the bosom (or “lap”) of Jesus” (according to both L&N 17.25 and BDAG 65 s.v. ἀνάκειμαι

The Prediction of Peter’s Denial

Judas is evidently in a position where Jesus can hand him the morsel of food ( 13:26). §† tn: Grk “to this one”; the referent (the beloved disciple) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §† tn: Grk “him”; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §§† sn: That is, who would betray him (v. 21). §§† tn: Grk “he”; the referent (the disciple Jesus loved) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §§§ tn: Grk “Jesus answered.” 18 sn: The piece of bread was a broken-off piece of bread (not merely a crumb). 19 tn: Grk “after I have dipped it.” The words “in the dish” are not in the Greek text, but the presence of a bowl or dish is implied. 20 tn: The words “in the dish” are not in the Greek text, but the presence of a bowl or dish is implied. 21 tn: Grk “he”; the referent (Judas) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 22 tn: Grk “into that one”; the pronoun “he” is more natural English style here. sn: This is the only time in the Fourth Gospel that Satan is mentioned by name. Luke 22:3 uses the same terminology of Satan “entering into” Judas but indicates it happened before the last supper at the time Judas made his deal with the authorities. This is not necessarily irreconcilable with John’s account, however, because John 13:2 makes it clear that Judas had already come under satanic influence prior to the meal itself. The statement here is probably meant to indicate that Judas at this point came under the influence of Satan even more completely and finally. It marks the end of a process which, as Luke indicates, had begun earlier. 23 tn: Grk “Then Jesus said to him.” 24 tn: Grk “reclining at the table.” The phrase reclining at the table reflects the normal practice in 1st century Near Eastern culture of eating a meal in a semi-reclining position. 25 tn: Or “knew.” 26 tn: Grk “he”; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 27 tn: Grk “to him”; the referent (Judas) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 28 tn: Grk “telling him, ‘Buy whatever we need for the feast.’” The first clause is direct discourse and the second clause indirect discourse. For smoothness of English style, the first clause has been converted to indirect discourse to parallel the second (the meaning is left unchanged). 29 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 30 tn: Grk “That one”; the referent (Judas) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 31 sn: Now it was night is a parenthetical note by the author. The comment is more than just a time indicator, however. With the departure of Judas to set in motion the betrayal, arrest, trials, crucifixion, and death of Jesus, daytime is over and night has come (see John 9:5; 11:9-10; 12:35-36). Judas had become one of those who walked by night and stumbled, because the light was not in him ( 11:10). 32 tn: Grk “Then when.” 33 tn: Grk “he”; the referent (Judas) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 34 tc: A number of early MSS

It would also have been difficult to beckon to the beloved disciple, on Jesus’ right, from such a position. So apparently Peter was seated somewhere else. It is entirely possible that Judas was seated to Jesus’ left. Matt 26:25 seems to indicate that Jesus could speak to him without being overheard by the rest of himself, and he will glorify him right away. <sup>†33</sup> Children, I am still with you for a little while. ‡‡‡ sn: The idea that love is a commandment is interesting. In the OT the ten commandments have a setting in the covenant between God and Israel at Sinai; they were the stipulations that Israel had to observe if the nation were to be God's chosen people. In speaking of love as the new commandment for those whom Jesus had chosen as his own (John 13:1, 15:16) and as a mark by which they could be distinguished from others (13:35), John shows that he is thinking of this scene in covenant terminology. But note that the disciples are to love "just as I have loved you" (13:34). The love Jesus has for his followers cannot be duplicated by them in one sense, because it effects their salvation, since he lays down his life for them: It is an act of love that gives life to people. But in another sense, they can follow his example (recall to the end, 13:1; also 1 John 3:16, 4:16 and the interpretation of Jesus' washing of the disciples' feet). In this way Jesus' disciples are to love one another: They are to follow his example of sacrificial service to one another, to death if necessary. § tn: Grk "All people," although many modern translations have rendered πάντες pantes

†† tn: Grk “I do not speak from myself.” ‡ tn: Or “does.” ‡† tn: Or “his mighty acts”; Grk “his works.” sn: Miraculous deeds is most likely a reference to the miraculous signs Jesus had performed, which he viewed as a manifestation of the mighty acts of God. Those he performed in the presence of the disciples served as a basis for faith (although a secondary basis to their personal relationship to him; see the following verse). ‡‡ tn: The phrase “but if you do not believe me” contains an ellipsis; the Greek text reads Grk “but if not.” The ellipsis has been filled out (“but if [you do] not [believe me]...”) for the benefit of the modern English reader. ‡‡† tn: Grk “because of the works.” sn: In the context of a proof or basis for belief, Jesus is referring to the miraculous deeds (signs) he has performed in the presence of the disciples. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk “Truly, truly, I say to you.” § tn: Or “will do.” §† tn: Grk “the works.” §†† tn: Or “that I do.” sn: See the note on miraculous deeds in v. 11. §‡ tn: Or “will do.” §‡† tn: Grk “greater works.” sn: What are the greater deeds that Jesus speaks of, and how is this related to his going to the Father? It is clear from both John 7:39 and 16:7 that the Holy Spirit will not come until Jesus has departed. After Pentecost and the coming of the Spirit to indwell believers in a permanent relationship, believers would be empowered to perform even greater deeds than those Jesus did during his earthly ministry. When the early chapters of Acts are examined, it is clear that, from a numerical standpoint, the deeds of Peter and the other Apostles surpassed those of Jesus in a single day (the day of Pentecost). On that day more were added to the church than had become followers of Jesus during the entire three years of his earthly ministry. And the message went forth not just in Judea, Samaria, and Galilee, but to the farthest parts of the known world. This understanding of what Jesus meant by “greater deeds” is more probable than a reference to “more spectacular miracles.” Certainly miraculous deeds were performed by the apostles as recounted in Acts, but these do not appear to have surpassed the works of Jesus himself in either degree or number. §† tn: Grk “And whatever you ask in my name, I will do it.” §‡ tn: Or “may be praised” or “may be honored.”

22 tn: Or “leave.” 23 tn: The entire phrase “abandon you as orphans” could be understood as an idiom meaning, “leave you helpless.” 24 sn: I will come to you. Jesus had spoken in 14:3 of going away and coming again to his disciples. There the reference was both to the parousia (the second coming of Christ) and to the postresurrection appearances of Jesus to the disciples. Here the postresurrection appearances are primarily in view, since Jesus speaks of the disciples “seeing” him after the world can “see” him no longer in the following verse. But many commentators have taken v. 18 as a reference to the coming of the Spirit, since this has been the topic of the preceding verses. Still, vv. 19-20 appear to contain references to Jesus’ appearances to the disciples after his resurrection. It may well be that another Johannine double meaning

But the statement in 14:19, that the world will not see Jesus, does not fit. It is better to take this as the postresurrection appearances of Jesus to his disciples (which has the advantage of taking in a little while in v. 19 literally). †† tn: Or "keeps." ‡ tn: Grk "obeys them, that one is the one who loves me." ‡† tn: Grk "And the one." Here the conjunction καί kai

‡‡ tn: Or "will disclose." ‡‡† tn: Grk "(not Iscariot)." The proper noun (Judas) has been repeated for clarity and smoothness in English style. sn: This is a parenthetical comment by the author. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "said to him." § tn: Or "disclose." sn: The disciples still expected at this point that Jesus, as Messiah, was going to reveal his identity as such to the world (cf. 7:4). §† tn: Grk "answered and said to him." §†† tn: Or "will keep." §‡ tn: Grk "we will come to him and will make our dwelling place with him." The context here is individual rather than corporate indwelling, so the masculine singular pronoun has been retained throughout v. 23. It is important to note, however, that the pronoun is used generically here and refers equally to men, women, and children. §†† tn: Or "does not keep." §† tn: Or "the message." §‡ tn: Or "while remaining" or "while residing." §§† tn: Or "Helper" or "Counselor"; Grk "Paraclete," from the Greek word παράκλητος paraklhto

§§‡ tn: Grk "that one will teach you." The words "that one" have been omitted from the translation since they are redundant in English. §§§ tn: Grk "all things." <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "all things." <sup>19</sup> sn: Peace I leave with you. In spite of appearances, this verse does not introduce a new subject (peace). Jesus will use the phrase as a greeting to his disciples after his resurrection ( 20:19, 21, 26). It is here a reflection of the Hebrew shalom as a farewell. But Jesus says he leaves peace with his disciples. This should probably be understood ultimately in terms of the indwelling of the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit, who has been the topic of the preceding verses. It is his presence, after Jesus has left the disciples and finally returned to the Father, which will remain with them and comfort them. <sup>20</sup> tn: The pronoun "it" is not in the Greek text, but has been supplied. Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from the context. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "not as the world gives do I give to you."

<sup>22</sup> tn: Or "distressed or fearful and cowardly." <sup>23</sup> tn: Or "You have heard that I said to you." <sup>24</sup> tn: Or "you would rejoice." <sup>25</sup> sn: Jesus' statement the Father is greater than I am has caused much christological and trinitarian debate. Although the Arians appealed to this text to justify their subordinationist Christology, it seems evident that by the fact Jesus compares himself to the Father, his divine nature is taken for granted. There have been two orthodox interpretations: (1) The Son is eternally generated while the Father is not: Origen, Tertullian, Athanasius, Hilary, etc. (2) As man the incarnate Son was less than the Father: Cyril of Alexandria, Ambrose, Augustine. In the context of the Fourth Gospel the second explanation seems more plausible. But why should the disciples have rejoiced? Because Jesus was on the way to the Father who would glorify him (cf. 17:4-5); his departure now signifies that the work the Father has given him is completed (cf. 19:30). Now Jesus will be glorified with that glory that he had with the Father before the world was (cf. 17:5). This should be a cause of rejoicing to the disciples because when Jesus is glorified he will glorify his disciples as well ( 17:22). <sup>26</sup> sn: Jesus tells the disciples that he has told them all these things before they happen, so that when they do happen the disciples may believe. This does not mean they had not believed prior to this time; over and over the author has affirmed that they have (cf. 2:11). But when they see these things happen, their level of trust in Jesus will increase and their concept of who he is will expand. The confession of Thomas in 20:28 is representative of this increased understanding of who Jesus is. Cf. John 13:19. <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk "I will no longer speak many things with you." <sup>28</sup> sn: The ruler of this world is a reference to Satan. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "in me he has nothing." <sup>30</sup> tn: Or "may learn." <sup>31</sup> tn: Grk "But so that the world may know that I love the Father, and just as the Father commanded me, thus I do." The order of the clauses has been rearranged in the translation to conform to contemporary English style. <sup>32</sup> sn: Some have understood Jesus' statement Get up, let us go from here to mean that at this point Jesus and the disciples got up and left the room where the meal was served and began the journey to the garden of Gethsemane. If so, the rest of the Farewell Discourse took place en route. Others have pointed to this statement as one of the "seams" in the discourse, indicating that the author used preexisting sources. Both explanations are possible, but not really necessary. Jesus could simply have stood up at this point (the disciples may or may not have stood with him) to finish the discourse before finally departing (in 18:1). In any case it may be argued that Jesus refers not to a literal departure at this point, but to preparing to meet the enemy who is on the way already in the person of Judas and the soldiers with him. <sup>33</sup> sn: I am the true vine. There are numerous OT passages which refer to Israel as a vine: Ps 80:8-16, Isa 5:1-7, Jer 2:21, Ezek 15:1-8, 17:5-10, 19:10-14, and Hos 10:1. The vine became symbolic of Israel, and even appeared on some coins issued by the Maccabees. The OT passages which use this symbol appear to regard Israel as faithless to Yahweh (typically rendered as "Lord" in the OT) and/or the object of severe punishment. Ezek 15:1-8 in particular talks about the worthlessness of wood from a vine (in relation to disobedient Judah). A branch cut from a vine is worthless except to be burned as fuel. This fits more with the statements about the disciples (John 15:6) than with Jesus' description of himself as the vine. Ezek 17:5-10 contains vine imagery which refers to a king of the house of David, Zedekiah, who was set up as king in Judah by Nebuchadnezzar. Zedekiah allied himself to Egypt and broke his covenant with Nebuchadnezzar (and therefore also with God), which would ultimately result in his downfall (17:20-21). Ezek 17:22-24 then describes the planting of a cedar sprig which grows into a lofty tree, a figurative description of Messiah. But it is significant that Messiah himself is not described in Ezek 17 as a vine, but as a cedar tree. The vine imagery here applies to Zedekiah's disobedience. Jesus' description of himself as the true vine in John 15:1 ff. is to be seen against this background, but it differs significantly from the imagery surveyed above. It represents new imagery which differs significantly from OT concepts; it appears to be original with Jesus. The imagery of the vine underscores the importance of fruitfulness in the Christian life and the truth that this results not from human achievement, but from one's position in Christ. Jesus is not just giving some comforting advice, but portraying to the disciples the difficult path of faithful service. To some degree the figure is similar to the head-body metaphor used by Paul, with Christ as head and believers as members of the body. Both metaphors bring out the vital and necessary connection which exists between Christ and believers. 34 tn: Or "the farmer." 35 tn: Or "He cuts off." sn: The Greek verb ἀῖρω airw tn: Or "that yields." ‡† sn: The phrase you are clean already occurs elsewhere in the Gospel of John only at the washing of the disciples' feet in 13:10, where Jesus had used it of the disciples being cleansed from sin. This further confirms the proposed understanding of John 15:2 and 15:6 since Judas was specifically excluded from this statement ( but not all of you). ‡†† tn: Or "Reside." ‡††† tn: Grk "and I in you." The verb has been repeated for clarity and to conform to contemporary English style, which typically allows fewer ellipses (omitted or understood words) than Greek. § sn: The branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it remains connected to the vine, from which its life and sustenance flows. As far as the disciples were concerned, they would produce no fruit from themselves if they did not remain in their relationship to Jesus, because the eternal life which a disciple must possess in order to bear fruit originates with Jesus; he is the source of all life and productivity for the disciple.

§† tn: Or "resides." §†† tn: While it would be more natural to say "on the vine" (so NAB), the English preposition "in" has been retained here to emphasize the parallelism with the following clause "unless you remain in me." To speak of remaining "in" a person is not natural English either, but is nevertheless a biblical concept (cf. "in Christ" in Eph 1:3, 4, 6, 7, 11). §† tn: Or "you reside." §†† tn: Or "resides." §† tn: Or "yields." §† tn: Grk "in him, this one bears much fruit." The pronoun "this one" has been omitted from the translation because it is redundant according to contemporary English style. sn: Many interpret the imagery of fruit here and in 15:2, 4 in terms of good deeds or character qualities, relating it to passages elsewhere in the NT like Matt 3:8 and 7:20, Rom 6:22, Gal 5:22, etc. This is not necessarily inaccurate, but one must remember that for John, to have life at all is to bear fruit, while one who does not bear fruit shows that he does not have the life (once again, conduct is the clue to paternity, as in John 8:41; compare also 1 John 4:20). §§† tn: Or "do." §§†† tn: Or "reside." §§§ sn: Such branches are gathered up and thrown into the fire. The author does not tell who it is who does the gathering and throwing into the fire. Although some claim that realized eschatology is so prevalent in the Fourth Gospel that no references to final eschatology appear at all, the fate of these branches seems to point to the opposite. The imagery is almost certainly that of eschatological judgment, and recalls some of the OT vine imagery which involves divine rejection and judgment of disobedient Israel ( Ezek 15:4-6, 19:12). † tn: Grk “they gather them up and throw them into the fire, and they are burned.” †† tn: Or “reside.” ‡ tn: Or “reside.” ‡† sn: Once again Jesus promises the disciples ask whatever you want, and it will be done for you. This recalls 14:13-14, where the disciples were promised that if they asked anything in Jesus’ name it would be done for them. The two thoughts are really quite similar, since here it is conditioned on the disciples’ remaining in Jesus and his words remaining in them. The first phrase relates to the genuineness of their relationship with Jesus. The second phrase relates to their obedience. When both of these qualifications are met, the disciples would in fact be asking in Jesus’ name and therefore according to his will. ‡† tn: Grk “glorified.” ‡†† tn: The ἵνα Jina ἐν τούτῳ en toutw

§§† sn: Now the reference to the commandments (plural) in 15:10 have been reduced to a singular commandment: The disciples are to love one another, just as Jesus has loved them. This is the ‘new commandment’ of John 13:34, and it is repeated in 15:17. The disciples’ love for one another is compared to Jesus’ love for them. How has Jesus shown his love for the disciples? This was illustrated in 13:1-20 in the washing of the disciples’ feet, introduced by the statement in 13:1 that Jesus loved them “to the end.” In context this constitutes a reference to Jesus’ self-sacrificial death on the cross on their behalf; the love they are to have for one another is so great that it must include a self-sacrificial willingness to die for one another if necessary. This is exactly what Jesus is discussing here, because he introduces the theme of his sacrificial death in the following verse. In John 10:18 and 14:31 Jesus spoke of his death on the cross as a commandment he had received from his Father, which also links the idea of commandment and love as they are linked here. One final note: It is not just the degree or intensity of the disciples’ love for one another that Jesus is referring to when he introduces by comparison his own death on the cross (that they must love one another enough to die for one another) but the very means of expressing that love: It is to express itself in self-sacrifice for one another, sacrifice up to the point of death, which is what Jesus himself did on the cross (cf. 1 John 3:16). §§† tn: Or “one dies willingly.” §§§ sn: This verse really explains John 15:10 in another way. Those who keep Jesus’ commandments are called his friends, those friends for whom he lays down his life (v. 13). It is possible to understand this verse as referring to a smaller group within Christianity as a whole, perhaps only the apostles who were present when Jesus spoke these words. Some have supported this by comparing it to the small group of associates and advisers to the Roman Emperor who were called “Friends of the Emperor.” Others would see these words as addressed only to those Christians who as disciples were obedient to Jesus. In either case the result would be to create a sort of “inner circle” of Christians who are more privileged than mere “believers” or average Christians. In context, it seems clear that Jesus’ words must be addressed to all true Christians, not just some narrower category of believers, because Jesus’ sacrificial death, which is his act of love toward his friends (v. 13) applies to all Christians equally (cf. John 13:1). <sup>18</sup> tn: See the note on the word “slaves” in 4:51. <sup>19</sup> tn: Or “does not know.” <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk “all things.” <sup>21</sup> tn: Or “learned.” <sup>22</sup> sn: You did not choose me, but I chose you. If the disciples are now elevated in status from slaves to friends, they are friends who have been chosen by Jesus, rather than the opposite way round. Again this is true of all Christians, not just the twelve, and the theme that Christians are “chosen” by God appears frequently in other NT texts (e.g., Rom 8:33; Eph 1:4ff.; Col 3:12; and 1 Pet 2:4). Putting this together with the comments on 15:14 one may ask whether the author sees any special significance at all for the twelve. Jesus said in John 6:70 and 13:18 that he chose them, and 15:27 makes clear that Jesus in the immediate context is addressing those who have been with him from the beginning. In the Fourth Gospel the twelve, as the most intimate and most committed followers of Jesus, are presented as the models for all Christians, both in terms of their election and in terms of their mission. <sup>23</sup> tn: Or “and yield.” <sup>24</sup> sn: The purpose for which the disciples were appointed (“commissioned”) is to go and bear fruit, fruit that you ask the Father in my name he will give you.<sup>17</sup>

This† I command you – to love one another.

The World's Hatred

remains. The introduction of the idea of “going” at this point suggests that the fruit is something more than just character qualities in the disciples’ own lives, but rather involves fruit in the lives of others, i.e., Christian converts. There is a mission involved (cf. John 4:36). The idea that their fruit is permanent, however, relates back to vv. 7-8, as does the reference to asking the Father in Jesus’ name. It appears that as the imagery of the vine and the branches develops, the “fruit” which the branches produce shifts in emphasis from qualities in the disciples’ own lives in John 15:2, 4, 5 to the idea of a mission which affects the lives of others in John 15:16. The point of transition would be the reference to fruit in 15:8. † tn: Grk “These things.” †† tn: Grk “know.” ‡ tn: Grk “it hated me before you.” ‡† tn: Grk “if you were of the world.” ‡‡ tn: The words “you as” are not in the original but are supplied for clarity. ‡‡† tn: Grk “because you are not of the world.” ‡‡‡ tn: Or “world, therefore.” § sn: I chose you out of the world...the world hates you. Two themes are brought together here. In 8:23 Jesus had distinguished himself from the world in addressing his Jewish opponents: “You are from below, I am from above; you are of this world, I am not of this world.” In 15:16 Jesus told the disciples “You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you.” Now Jesus has united these two ideas as he informs the disciples that he has chosen them out of the world. While the disciples will still be “in” the world after Jesus has departed, they will not belong to it, and Jesus prays later in John 17:15-16 to the Father, “I do not ask you to take them out of the world, but to keep them from the evil one. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.” The same theme also occurs in 1 John 4:5-6: “They are from the world; therefore they speak as from the world, and the world listens to them. We are from God; he who knows God listens to us; he who is not from God does not listen to us.” Thus the basic reason why the world hates the disciples (as it hated Jesus before them) is because they are not of the world. They are born from above, and are not of the world. For this reason the world hates them. §† tn: Grk “Remember the word that I said to you.” §†† tn: See the note on the word “slaves” in 4:51. §‡ sn: A slave is not greater than his master. Jesus now recalled a statement he had made to the disciples before, in John 13:16. As the master has been treated, so will the slaves be treated also. If the world had persecuted Jesus, then it would also persecute the disciples. If the world had kept Jesus’ word, it would likewise keep the word of the disciples. In this statement there is the implication that the disciples would carry on the ministry of Jesus after his departure; they would in their preaching and teaching continue to spread the message which Jesus himself had taught while he was with them. And they would meet with the same response, by and large, that he encountered. §‡† tn: Or “if they kept.” §† tn: Or “they will keep.” §‡ tn: Or “because of.” §§† tn: Jesus is referring to God as “the one who sent me.” §§‡ tn: Grk “they would not have sin” (an idiom). sn: Jesus now describes the guilt of the world. He came to these people with both words ( 15:22) and sign-miracles ( longer have any excuse for their sin.<sup>23</sup> The one who hates me hates my Father too.<sup>24</sup> If I had not performed§§§ among them the miraculous deeds<sup>18</sup> that no one else did, they would not be guilty of sin.<sup>19</sup> But now they have seen the deeds<sup>20</sup> and have hated both me and my Father.<sup>2125</sup> Now this happened<sup>22</sup> to fulfill the word that is written in their law, ‘ They hated me without reason.’<sup>2326</sup> When the Advocate<sup>24</sup> comes, whom I will send you from the Father – the Spirit of truth who goes out from the Father – he<sup>25</sup> will testify about me,<sup>27</sup> and you also will testify, because you have been with me from the beginning.

16 “ I have told you all these things so that you will not fall away.<sup>262</sup> They will put you out of<sup>27</sup> the 15:24), yet they remained obstinate in their unbelief, and this sin of unbelief was without excuse. Jesus was not saying that if he had not come and spoken to these people they would be sinless; rather he was saying that if he had not come and spoken to them, they would not be guilty of the sin of rejecting him and the Father he came to reveal. Rejecting Jesus is the one ultimate sin for which there can be no forgiveness, because the one who has committed this sin has at the same time rejected the only cure that exists. Jesus spoke similarly to the Pharisees in 9:41: “If you were blind, you would have no sin (same phrase as here), but now you say ‘We see’ your sin remains.” §§§ tn: Or “If I had not done.” <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk “the works.” <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk “they would not have sin” (an idiom). <sup>20</sup> tn: The words “the deeds” are supplied to clarify from context what was seen. Direct objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from the context. <sup>21</sup> tn: Or “But now they have both seen and hated both me and my Father.” It is possible to understand both the “seeing” and the “hating” to refer to both Jesus and the Father, but this has the world “seeing” the Father, which seems alien to the Johannine Jesus. (Some point out John 14:9 as an example, but this is addressed to the disciples, not to the world.) It is more likely that the “seeing” refers to the miraculous deeds mentioned in the first half of the verse. Such an understanding of the first “both – and” construction is apparently supported by BDF §444.3. <sup>22</sup> tn: The words “this happened” are not in the Greek text but are supplied to complete an ellipsis. <sup>23</sup> sn: A quotation from Ps 35:19 and Ps 69:4.  ‡ sn: Jesus now refers not to the time of his return to the Father, as he has frequently done up to this point, but to the disciples’ time of persecution. They will be excommunicated from Jewish synagogues. There will even be a time when those who kill Jesus’ disciples will think that they are offering service to God by putting the disciples to death. Because of the reference to service offered to God, it is almost certain that Jewish opposition is intended here in both cases rather than Jewish opposition in the first instance (putting the disciples out of synagogues) and Roman opposition in the second (putting the disciples to death). Such opposition materializes later and is recorded in Acts: The stoning of Stephen in 7:58-60 and the slaying of James the brother of John by Herod Agrippa I in Acts 12:2-3 are notable examples. †† tn: Grk “And they.” Because of the difference between Greek style, which often begins sentences or clauses with “and,” and English style, which generally does not, καί kai †‡ sn: Ignorance of Jesus and ignorance of the Father are also linked in 8:19; to know Jesus would be to know the Father also, but since the world does not know Jesus, neither does it know his Father. Jesus had not told the disciples these things from the beginning because he was with them. §†† sn: Now the theme of Jesus’ impending departure is resumed (I am going to the one who sent me). It will also be mentioned in 16:10, 17, and 28. Jesus had said to his opponents in 7:33 that he was going to the one who sent him; in 13:33 he had spoken of going where the disciples could not come. At that point Peter had inquired where he was going, but it appears that Peter did not understand Jesus’ reply at that time and did not persist in further questioning. In 14:5 Thomas had asked Jesus where he was going. §† sn: Now none of the disciples asks Jesus where he is going, and the reason is given in the following verse: They have been overcome with sadness as a result of the predictions of coming persecution that Jesus has just spoken to them in 15:18-25 and 16:1-4a. Their shock at Jesus’ revelation of coming persecution is so great that none of them thinks to ask him where it is that he is going. §†† tn: Or “distress” or “grief.” §† tn: Or “Helper” or “Counselor”; Grk “Paraclete,” from the Greek word παράκλητος paraklhto

19 sn: Here (v. 9) the world is proven guilty concerning sin, and the reason given is their refusal to believe in Jesus. In 3:19 the effect of Jesus coming into the world as the Light of the world was to provoke judgment, by forcing people to choose up sides for or against him, and they chose darkness rather than light. In 12:37, at the very end of Jesus’ public ministry in John’s Gospel, people were still refusing to believe in him. 20 tn: There are two questions that need to be answered: (1) what is the meaning of δικαιοσύνη dikaiosunh

† tn: Or "that."

†† sn: The world is proven wrong concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world has been judged. Jesus' righteousness before the Father, as proven by his return to the Father, his glorification, constitutes a judgment against Satan. This is parallel to the judgment of the world which Jesus provokes in 3:19-21: Jesus' presence in the world as the Light of the world provokes the judgment of those in the world, because as they respond to the light (either coming to Jesus or rejecting him) so are they judged. That judgment is in a sense already realized. So it is here, where the judgment of Satan is already realized in Jesus' glorification. This does not mean that Satan does not continue to be active in the world, and to exercise some power over it, just as in 3:19-21 the people in the world who have rejected Jesus and thus incurred judgment continue on in their opposition to Jesus for a time. In both cases the judgment is not immediately executed. But it is certain. ‡ tn: Or "that." ‡‡ sn: The ruler of this world is a reference to Satan. ‡‡‡ tn: Or "judged."

‡‡† sn: In what sense does Jesus have many more things to say to the disciples? Does this imply the continuation of revelation after his departure? This is probably the case, especially in light of v. 13 and following, which describe the work of the Holy Spirit in guiding the disciples into all truth. Thus Jesus was saying that he would continue to speak (to the twelve, at least) after his return to the Father. He would do this through the Holy Spirit whom he was going to send. It is possible that an audience broader than the twelve is addressed, and in the Johannine tradition there is evidence that later other Christians (or perhaps, professed Christians) claimed to be recipients of revelation through the Spirit-Paraclete (1 John 4:1-6).

‡‡‡ tn: Or (perhaps) "you cannot accept." § tn: Grk "that one." §† tn: Or "will lead." §†† sn: Three important points must be noted here. (1) When the Holy Spirit comes, he will guide the disciples into all truth. What Jesus had said in 8:31-32, "If you continue to follow my teaching you are really my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free," will ultimately be realized in the ongoing ministry of the Holy Spirit to the disciples after Jesus' departure. (2) The things the Holy Spirit speaks to them will not be things which originate from himself (he will not speak on his own authority), but things he has heard. This could be taken to mean that no new revelation is involved, as R. E. Brown does (John [AB], 2:714-15). This is a possible but not a necessary inference. The point here concerns the source of the things the Spirit will say to the disciples and does not specifically exclude originality of content. (3) Part at least of what the Holy Spirit will reveal to the disciples will concern what is to come, not just fuller implications of previous sayings of Jesus and the like. This does seem to indicate that at least some new revelation is involved. But the Spirit is not the source or originator of these things – Jesus is the source, and he will continue to speak to his disciples through the Spirit who has come to indwell he will not speak on his own authority,§† but will speak whatever he hears, and will tell you§†† what is to come.

§†<sup>14</sup> He§† will glorify me,§§† because he will receive§§† from me what is mine§§§ and will tell it to you.<sup>1815</sup> Everything that the Father has is mine; that is why I said the Spirit<sup>19</sup> will receive from me what is mine<sup>20</sup> and will tell it to you.<sup>2116</sup> In a little while you<sup>22</sup> will see me no longer, again after a little while, you<sup>23</sup> will see me."<sup>24</sup>

<sup>17</sup> Then some of his disciples said to one another, "What is the meaning of what he is saying,<sup>25</sup> 'In a little while you<sup>26</sup> will not see me; again after a little while, you<sup>27</sup> will see me,' and, 'because I am going to the Father?'"<sup>2818</sup> So they kept on repeating,<sup>29</sup> "What is the meaning of what he says,<sup>30</sup> 'In a little while'?"<sup>31</sup> We do not understand<sup>32</sup> what he is talking about."<sup>33</sup>

them. This does not answer the question, however, whether these words are addressed to all followers of Jesus, or only to his apostles. Different modern commentators will answer this question differently. Since in the context of the Farewell Discourse Jesus is preparing the twelve to carry on his ministry after his departure, it is probably best to take these statements as specifically related only to the twelve. Some of this the Holy Spirit does directly for all believers today; other parts of this statement are fulfilled through the apostles (e.g., in giving the Book of Revelation the Spirit speaks through the apostles to the church today of things to come). One of the implications of this is that a doctrine does not have to be traced back to an explicit teaching of Jesus to be authentic; all that is required is apostolic authority. §† tn: Grk "speak from himself." §†† tn: Or will announce to you." §† tn: Grk "will tell you the things to come." §† tn: Grk "That one." §§† tn: Or "will honor me." §§† tn: Or "he will take." §§§ tn: The words "what is mine" are not in the Greek text, but are implied. There is no indication in the context that the disciples will see Jesus only with "spiritual" sight, as would be the case if the coming of the Spirit is in view. <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk "What is this that he is saying to us." <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "A little while, and you." <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk "and again a little while, and you." <sup>28</sup> sn: These fragmentary quotations of Jesus' statements are from 16:16 and 16:10, and indicate that the disciples heard only part of what Jesus had to say to them on this occasion. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "they kept on saying." <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "What is this that he says." <sup>31</sup> tn: Grk "A little while." Supernatural knowledge of what the disciples were thinking is not necessarily in view here. Given the disciples' confused statements in the preceding verses, it was probably obvious to Jesus that they wanted to ask what he meant. <sup>35</sup> tn: The words "about these things" are not in the Greek text, but are implied. 26 sn: The statement I am leaving the world and going to the Father is a summary of the entire Gospel of John. It summarizes the earthly career of the Word made flesh, Jesus of Nazareth, on his mission from the Father to be the Savior of the world, beginning with his entry into the world as he came forth from God and concluding with his departure from the world as he returned to the Father. 27 tn: Or "openly."28 tn: Or "not in parables." or "not in metaphors." sn: How is the disciples' reply to Jesus now you are speaking plainly and not in obscure figures of speech to be understood? Their claim to understand seems a bit impulsive. It is difficult to believe that the disciples have really understood the full implications of Jesus' words, although it is true that he spoke to them plainly and not figuratively in 16:26-28. The disciples will not fully understand all that Jesus has said to them until after his resurrection, when the Holy Spirit will give them insight and understanding ( 16:13). 29 tn: Grk "all things."30 tn: Grk "and have no need of anyone."31 tn: The word "anything" is not in the Greek text, but is implied. The phrase "each one to his own" may be completed in a number of different ways: "each one to his own property"; "each one to his own family"; or "each one to his own home." The last option seems to fit most easily into the context and so is used in the translation. 36 sn: The proof of Jesus' negative evaluation of the disciples' faith is now given: Jesus foretells their abandonment of him at his arrest, trials, and crucifixion ( I will be left alone). This parallels the synoptic accounts in Matt 26:31 and Mark 14:27 when Jesus, after the last supper and on the way to Gethsemane, foretold the desertion of the disciples as a fulfillment of Zech 13:7: "Strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered." Yet although the disciples would abandon Jesus, he reaffirmed that he was not alone, because the Father was still with him. 37 tn: Grk "And" (but with some contrastive force). 38 tn: Grk "the Father."

It appears best to understand the “hour” as a period of time starting at the end of Jesus’ public ministry and extending through the passion week, ending with Jesus’ return to the Father through death, resurrection, and exaltation. The “hour” begins as soon as the first events occur which begin the process that leads to Jesus’ death. ‡‡† tn: The better witnesses ( κ

Jesus said that he had been glorified by his disciples, but in what sense was this true? Jesus had manifested his glory to them in all of the sign-miracles which he had performed, beginning with the miracle at the wedding feast in Cana ( 2:11). He could now say that he had been glorified by them in the light of what he had already said in vv. 7-8, that the disciples had come to know that he had come from the Father and been sent by the Father. He would, of course, be glorified by them further after the resurrection, as they carried on his ministry after his departure. †† tn: Grk And I." The conjunction καί kai

Clearly in John's Gospel Judas is portrayed as a tool of Satan. He is described as "the devil" in 6:70. In 13:2 Satan put into Judas' heart the idea of betraying Jesus, and 13:27 Satan himself entered Judas. Immediately after this Judas left the company of Jesus and the other disciples and went out into the realm of darkness ( 13:30). The exact passage is not specified here, but in John 13:18, Ps 41:9 is explicitly quoted by Jesus with reference to the traitor, suggesting that this is the passage to which Jesus refers here. The previous mention of Ps 41:9 in John 13:18 probably explains why the author felt no need for an explanatory parenthetical note here. It is also possible that the passage referred to here is Prov 24:22 LXX, where in the Greek text the phrase "son of destruction" appears. §§† tn: Grk "they may have." §§†† tn: Or "fulfilled." §§§ tn: Or "your message." 18 tn: Grk "because they are not of the world." 19 tn: Grk "just as I am not of the world." 20 tn: Or "that you protect them"; Grk "that you keep them." 21 tn: The phrase "the evil one" is a reference to Satan. 25 sn: Jesus now compared the mission on which he was sending the disciples to his own mission into the world, on which he was sent by the Father. As the Father sent Jesus into the world (cf. 3:17), so Jesus now sends the disciples into the world to continue his mission after his departure. The nature of this prayer for the disciples as a consecratory prayer is now emerging: Jesus was setting them apart for the work he had called them to do. They were, in a sense, being commissioned. 26 tn: Or "I sanctify." sn: In what sense does Jesus refer to his own 'sanctification' with the phrase I set myself apart? In 10:36 Jesus referred to himself as "the one whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world," which seems to look at something already accomplished. Here, however, it is something he does on behalf of the disciples ( on their behalf) and this suggests a reference to his impending death on the cross. There is in fact a Johannine wordplay here based on slightly different meanings for the Greek verb translated set apart ( ἀγιάζω Jagiaw

Brown (John [AB], 2:773). §† sn: When he had said these things appears to be a natural transition at the end of the Farewell Discourse (the farewell speech of Jesus to his disciples in John 13:31-17:26, including the final prayer in 17:1-26). The author states that Jesus went out with his disciples, a probable reference to their leaving the upper room where the meal and discourse described in chaps. 13-17 took place (although some have seen this only as a reference to their leaving the city, with the understanding that some of the Farewell Discourse, including the concluding prayer, was given en route, cf. 14:31). They crossed the Kidron Valley and came to a garden, or olive orchard, identified in Matt 26:36 and Mark 14:32 as Gethsemane. The name is not given in Luke's or John's Gospel, but the garden must have been located somewhere on the lower slopes of the Mount of Olives. §†† tn: Grk "the wadi of the Kidron," or "the ravine of the Kidron" (a wadi is a stream that flows only during the rainy season and is dry during the dry season). §†‡ tn: Or "a garden." §††† tn: Or "often." §† sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. §‡ tn: Grk "a cohort." §§† tn: The phrase "officers of the chief priests and Pharisees" is a comprehensive name for the groups represented in the ruling council (the Sanhedrin) as in John 7:32, 45; 18:3, 12, 18, 22; 19:6. They are different from the Levites who served as "temple police" according to K. H. Rengstorf (TDNT 8:540). In John 7:32ff. these officers had made an unsuccessful attempt to arrest Jesus, and perhaps this is part of the reason why their leaders had made sure they were accompanied by Roman soldiers this time. No more mistakes were to be tolerated. sn: See the note on Pharisees in 1:24. §§‡ tn: The words "to the orchard" are not in the Greek text but are repeated from v. 1 for clarity. §§§ tn: These were lamps that had some sort of covering to protect them from wind and rain. In earlier usage the word meant "torch" but by NT times it apparently meant a lamp designed to be used outdoors, so "lantern" is a good contemporary English equivalent. sn: Mention of the lanterns and torches suggests a detail remembered by one who was an eyewitness, but in connection with the light/darkness motif of John's Gospel, it is a vivid reminder that it is night; the darkness has come at last (cf. 13:30). <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "knowing all things that were coming upon him." <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "Whom do you seek?" <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "They answered." sn: The author does not state precisely who from the group of soldiers and temple police replied to Jesus at this point. It may have been the commander of the Roman soldiers, although his presence is not explicitly mentioned until 18:12. It may also have been one of the officers of the chief priests. To the answer given, "Jesus the Nazarene," Jesus replies "I am [he]." <sup>21</sup> sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. Before he states the response to Jesus' identification of himself, the author inserts a parenthetical note that Judas, again identified as the one who betrayed him (cf. 18:2), was standing with the group of soldiers and officers of the chief priests. Many commentators have considered this to be an awkward insertion, but in fact it heightens considerably the dramatic effect of the response to Jesus' self-identification in the following verse, and has the added effect of informing the reader that along with the others the betrayer himself ironically falls down at Jesus' feet (18:6). <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "moved back" (but here a fairly rapid movement is implied). <sup>24</sup> sn: When Jesus said to those who came to arrest him "I am," they retreated and fell to the ground. L. Morris says that "it is possible that those in front recoiled from Jesus' unexpected advance, so that they bumped those behind them, causing them to stumble and fall" (John [NICNT], 743-44). Perhaps this is what in fact happened on the scene; but the theological significance given to this event by the author implies that more is involved. The reaction on the part of those who came to arrest Jesus comes in response to his affirmation that he is indeed the one they are seeking, Jesus the asked them again, "Who are you looking for?" And they said, "Jesus the Nazarene."<sup>8</sup> Jesus replied,† "I told you that I am he. If you are looking for†† me, let these men‡ go."††† He said this‡‡ to fulfill the word he had spoken,‡‡‡ "I have not lost a single one of those whom you gave me."‡‡‡

<sup>10</sup> Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, pulled it out and struck the high priest's slave,§ cutting off his right ear.§† (Now the slave's name was Malchus.)<sup>§†††</sup> But Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back into its sheath! Am I not to drink the cup that the Father has given me?"§†

Nazarene. But Jesus makes this affirmation of his identity using a formula which the reader has encountered before in the Fourth Gospel, e.g., 8:24, 28, 58. Jesus has applied to himself the divine Name of Exod 3:14, "I AM." Therefore this amounts to something of a theophany which causes even his enemies to recoil and prostrate themselves, so that Jesus has to ask a second time, "Who are you looking for?" This is a vivid reminder to the reader of the Gospel that even in this dark hour, Jesus holds ultimate power over his enemies and the powers of darkness, because he is the one who bears the divine Name. <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. † tn: Grk "Jesus answered." †† tn: Grk "if you are seeking." ‡ tn: The word "men" is not in the Greek text but is implied. The translation uses the word "men" here rather than a more generic word like "people" because in context Jesus referred only to the eleven remaining disciples who were loyal to him and were present at his arrest. ‡† sn: A second time Jesus replied, "I told you that I am he," identifying himself as the one they are seeking. Jesus also added, "If you are looking for me, let these men go." Jesus successfully diverted attention from his disciples by getting the soldiers and officers of the chief priests to admit (twice) that it is only him they were after. Even in this hour Jesus still protected and cared for his own, giving himself up on their behalf. By handing himself over to his enemies, Jesus ensured that his disciples went free. From the perspective of the author, this is acting out beforehand what Jesus will actually do for his followers when he goes to the cross. ‡‡ tn: The words "He said this" are not in the Greek text, but are implied. There is an ellipsis in the Greek text that must be supplied for the modern English reader at this point. ‡‡† sn: This expression is similar to John 6:39 and John 17:12. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "Of the ones whom you gave me, I did not lose one of them." The order of the clauses has been rearranged to reflect contemporary English style. sn: This action of Jesus on behalf of his disciples is interpreted by the author as a fulfillment of Jesus' own words: "I have not lost a single one of those whom you gave me." Here it is Jesus' own words, rather than the OT scriptures, which are quoted. This same formula will be used by the author again of Jesus' words in 18:32, but the verb is used elsewhere in the Fourth Gospel to describe the NT fulfillment of OT passages ( 12:38, 13:18, 15:25, 17:12, 19:24, and 19:36). It is a bit difficult to determine the exact referent, since the words of Jesus quoted in this verse are not an exact reproduction of a saying of Jesus elsewhere in John's Gospel. Although some have identified the saying with John 6:39, the closest parallel is in 17:12, where the betrayer, Judas, is specifically excluded. The words quoted here in 18:9 appear to be a free rendition of 17:12. § tn: See the note on the word "slaves" in 4:51. §† sn: The account of the attack on the high priest's slave contains details which suggest eyewitness testimony. It is also mentioned in all three synoptic gospels, but only John records that the disciple involved was Peter, whose impulsive behavior has already been alluded to ( John 13:37). Likewise only John gives the name of the victim, Malchus, who is described as the high priest's slave. John and Mark (14:47) both use the word ὑπάριον wtarion given me to drink, shall I not drink it?" The order of the clauses has been rearranged to reflect contemporary English style. sn: Jesus continues with what most would take to be a rhetorical question expecting a positive reply: "Shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?" The cup is also mentioned in Gethsemane in the synoptics ( Matt 26:39, Mark 14:36, and Luke 22:42). In connection with the synoptic accounts it is mentioned in Jesus' prayer; this occurrence certainly complements the synoptic accounts if Jesus had only shortly before finished praying about this. Only here in the Fourth Gospel is it specifically said that the cup is given to Jesus to drink by the Father, but again this is consistent with the synoptic mention of the cup in Jesus' prayer: It is the cup of suffering which Jesus is about to undergo. §†† tn: Grk "a cohort" (but since this was a unit of 600 soldiers, a smaller detachment is almost certainly intended). §† tn: Grk "their chiliarch" (an officer in command of a thousand soldiers). Only the Gospel of John mentions this pretrial hearing before Annas, and that Annas was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who is said to be high priest in that year. Caiaphas is also mentioned as being high priest in John 11:49. But in 18:15, 16, 19, and 22 Annas is called high priest. Annas is also referred to as high priest by Luke in Acts 4:6. Many scholars have dismissed these references as mistakes on the part of both Luke and John, but as mentioned above, John 11:49 and 18:13 indicate that John knew that Caiaphas was high priest in the year that Jesus was crucified. This has led others to suggest that Annas and Caiaphas shared the high priesthood, but there is no historical evidence to support this view. Annas had been high priest from A.D. A.D.

Peter is also closely associated with the beloved disciple in 13:23-26, 20:2-10, 21:7, and 21:20-23. But other identifications have also been proposed, chiefly because v. 16 states that this disciple who was accompanied by Peter was known to the high priest. As C. K. ### Jesus Questioned by Annas

<sup>19</sup> While this was happening,§† the high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his teaching. <sup>§†20</sup> Jesus replied, §§† "I have spoken publicly to the world. True to what is known of Annas' character, he was more interested in Jesus' disciples than in the precise nature of Jesus' teaching, since he inquired about the followers first. He really wanted to know just how influential Jesus had become and how large a following he had gathered. <sup>28</sup> Then they brought Jesus from Caiaphas to the Roman governor's residence.§† (Now it was very early morning.)§†† They §†did not go into the governor's residence§†† so they would not be ceremonially defiled, but could eat the Passover meal.<sup>29</sup> So Pilate came outside to them and said, "What accusation§† do you bring

The governor had a residence in Jerusalem which he normally occupied only during principal feasts or in times of political unrest. The location of this building in Jerusalem is uncertain, but is probably one of two locations: either (1) the fortress or tower of Antonia, on the east hill north of the temple area, which is the traditional location of the Roman praetorium since the 12th century, or (2) the palace of Herod on the west hill near the present Jaffa Gate. According to Philo ( Embassy 38 [299]) Pilate had some golden shields hung there, and according to Josephus ( J. W. 2.14.8 [2.301], 2.15.5 [2.328]) the later Roman governor Florus stayed there. §†† sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. §† tn: Grk "And they." <sup>31</sup> Pilate told them, <sup>19</sup>" Take him yourselves and pass judgment on him<sup>20</sup> according to your own law!"<sup>21</sup> The Jewish leaders <sup>22</sup>replied, <sup>23</sup>" We cannot legally put anyone to death."<sup>2432</sup> (This happened<sup>25</sup> to fulfill the word Jesus had spoken when he indicated<sup>26</sup> what kind of death he was going to die. <sup>27</sup>)

§† sn: In light of the fact that Pilate had cooperated with them in Jesus' arrest by providing Roman soldiers, the Jewish authorities were probably expecting Pilate to grant them permission to carry out their sentence on Jesus without resistance (the Jews were not permitted to exercise capital punishment under the Roman occupation without official Roman permission, cf. v. 31). They must have been taken somewhat by surprise by Pilate's question "What accusation do you bring against this man," because it indicated that he was going to try the prisoner himself. Thus Pilate was regarding the trial before Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin as only an inquiry and their decision as merely an accusation. §†† tn: Grk "They answered and said to him." §§† tn: Grk "this one." §§§ tn: Or "an evildoer"; Grk "one doing evil." <sup>18</sup> tn: Or "would not have delivered him over." <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "Then Pilate said to them." <sup>20</sup> tn: Or "judge him." For the translation "pass judgment on him" see R. E. Brown ( John [AB], 2:848). <sup>21</sup> sn: Pilate, as the sole representative of Rome in a troubled area, was probably in Jerusalem for the Passover because of the danger of an uprising (the normal residence for the Roman governor was in Caesarea as mentioned in Acts 23:35). At this time on the eve of the feast he would have been a busy and perhaps even a worried man. It is not surprising that he offered to hand Jesus back over to the Jewish authorities to pass judgment on him. It may well be that Pilate realized when no specific charge was mentioned that he was dealing with an internal dispute over some religious matter. Pilate wanted nothing to do with such matters, as the statement "Pass judgment on him according to your own law!" indicates. As far as the author is concerned, this points out who was really responsible for Jesus' death: The Roman governor Pilate would have had nothing to do with it if he had not been pressured by the Jewish religious authorities, upon whom the real responsibility rested. <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." Here the phrase refers to the Jewish leaders, especially members of the Sanhedrin. See the note on the phrase "Jewish leaders" in v. 12. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "said to him." <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "It is not permitted to us to kill anyone." <sup>sn</sup>: The historical background behind the statement We cannot legally put anyone to death is difficult to reconstruct. Scholars are divided over whether this statement in the Fourth Gospel accurately reflects the judicial situation between the Jewish authorities and the Romans in 1st century Palestine. It appears that the Roman governor may have given the Jews the power of capital punishment for specific offenses, some of them religious (the death penalty for Gentiles caught trespassing in the inner courts of the temple, for example). It is also pointed out that the Jewish authorities did carry out a number of executions, some of them specifically pertaining to Christians (Stephen, according to Acts 7:58-60; and James the Just, who was stoned in the 60s according to Josephus, Ant. 20.9.1 [20.200]). But Stephen's death may be explained as a result of "mob violence" rather than a formal execution, and as Josephus in the above account goes on to point out, James was executed in the period between two Roman governors, and the high priest at the time was subsequently punished for the action. Two studies by A. N. Sherwin-White ( Roman Society and Roman Law in the New Testament, 1-47; and "The Trial of Christ," Historicity and Chronology in the New Testament [SPCKTC], 97-116) have tended to support the accuracy of John's account. He concluded that the Romans kept very close control of the death penalty for fear that in the hands of rebellious locals such power could be used to eliminate factions favorable or useful to Rome. A province as troublesome as Judea would not have been likely to be made an exception to this. <sup>25</sup> tn: The

Pilate Questions Jesus

When he had said this he went back outside to the Jewish leaders §§† and announced, §§§ "I find no basis for an accusation <sup>18</sup> against him. <sup>39</sup> But it is your custom words "This happened" are not in the Greek text but are implied. <sup>26</sup> tn: Or "making clear." <sup>27</sup> sn: A reference to John 12:32. † tn: Grk "into the praetorium." †† sn: It is difficult to discern Pilate's attitude when he asked, "Are you the king of the Jews?" Some have believed the remark to be sarcastic or incredulous as Pilate looked at this lowly and humble prisoner: "So you're the king of the Jews, are you?" Others have thought the Roman governor to have been impressed by Jesus' regal disposition and dignity, and to have sincerely asked, "Are you really the king of the Jews?" Since it will later become apparent (v. 38) that Pilate considered Jesus innocent (and therefore probably also harmless) an attitude of incredulity is perhaps most likely, but this is far from certain in the absence of clear contextual clues. ‡ tn: Grk "Jesus answered." ‡† tn: Grk "saying this from yourself." ‡†† sn: Many have seen in Pilate's reply "I am not a Jew, am I?" the Roman contempt for the Jewish people. Some of that may indeed be present, but strictly speaking, all Pilate affirms is that he, as a Roman, has no firsthand knowledge of Jewish custom or belief. What he knows of Jesus must have come from the Jewish authorities. They are the ones (your own people and your chief priests) who have handed Jesus over to Pilate. ‡†† tn: Or "your own nation." <sup>‡†††</sup> tn: Or "delivered you over." § tn: Grk "so that I may not be." §† tn: Or "delivered over." §†† tn: Or "the Jewish leaders"; Grk "the Jews." Here the phrase refers to the Jewish leaders, especially members of the Sanhedrin. See the note on the phrase "Jewish leaders" in v. 12. In the translation "authorities" was preferred over "leaders" for stylistic reasons. §‡ tn: Grk "now." §†† tn: Grk "said to him." §† tn: Or "obeys"; Grk "hears." §‡ tn: Grk "Pilate said." §§† sn: With his reply "What is truth?" Pilate dismissed the matter. It is not clear what Pilate's attitude was at this point, as in 18:33. He may have been sarcastic, or perhaps somewhat reflective. The author has not given enough information in the narrative to be sure. Within the narrative, Pilate's question serves to make the reader reflect on what truth is, and that answer (in the narrative) has already been given (14:6). §§‡ tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." Here the phrase refers to the Jewish leaders, especially members of the Sanhedrin. See the note on the phrase "Jewish leaders" in v. 12. The term also occurs in v. 31, where it is clear the Jewish leaders are in view, because they state that they cannot legally carry out an execution. Although it is likely (in view of the synoptic parallels) that the crowd here in 18:38 was made up not just of the Jewish leaders, but of ordinary residents of Jerusalem and pilgrims who were in Jerusalem for the Passover, nevertheless in John's Gospel Pilate is that I release one prisoner<sup>19</sup> for you at the Passover. <sup>20</sup> So do you want me to release for you the king of the Jews?" <sup>40</sup> Then they shouted back, <sup>21</sup> "Not this man, <sup>22</sup> but Barabbas!" <sup>23</sup> (Now Barabbas was a revolutionary. <sup>24</sup>) <sup>25</sup>

There is no extra-biblical evidence alluding to the practice. It is, however, mentioned in Matthew and Mark, described either as a practice of Pilate (Mark 15:6) or of the Roman governor (Matt 27:15). These references may explain the lack of extra-biblical attestation: The custom to which Pilate refers here (18:39) is not a permanent one acknowledged by all the Roman governors, but one peculiar to Pilate as a means of appeasement, meant to better relations with his subjects. Such a limited meaning is certainly possible and consistent with the statement here. <sup>21</sup> tn: Or "they shouted again," or "they shouted in turn." For the author, however, Pilate's words constituted an unconscious allusion to Zech 6:12, "Look, here is the man whose name is the Branch." In this case Pilate (unknowingly and ironically) presented Jesus to the nation under a messianic title. §†† sn: Crucifixion was the cruelest form of punishment practiced by the Romans. Was he offering them an exception to the statement in 18:31 that the Jewish authorities did not have the power to carry out a death penalty? Although a few scholars have suggested that the situation was at this point so far out of Pilate's control that he really was telling the high priests they could go ahead and crucify a man he had found to be innocent, this seems unlikely. It is far more likely that Pilate's statement should be understood as one of frustration and perhaps sarcasm. This seems ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "about the sixth hour." sn: For John, the time was especially important. When the note concerning the hour, about noon, is connected with the day, the day of preparation for the Passover, it becomes apparent that Jesus was going to die on the cross at the very time that the Passover lambs were being slain in the temple courts. Exod 12:6 required that the Passover lamb be kept alive until the 14th Nisan, the eve of the Passover, and then slaughtered by the head of the household at twilight ( Grk "between the two evenings"). By this time the slaughtering was no longer done by the heads of households, but by the priests in the temple courts. But so many lambs were needed for the tens of thousands of pilgrims who came to Jerusalem to celebrate the feast (some estimates run in excess of 100,000 pilgrims) that the slaughter could not be completed during the evening, and so the rabbis redefined "between the two evenings" as beginning at noon, when the sun began to decline toward the horizon. Thus the priests had the entire afternoon of 14th Nisan in which to complete the slaughter of the Passover lambs. According to the Fourth Gospel, this is the time Jesus was dying on the cross. § sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. §† tn: Grk "And he"; the referent (Pilate) has been specified in the translation for clarity, and the conjunction καί kai

In all probability this was only the crossbeam, called in Latin the patibulum, since the upright beam usually remained in the ground at the place of execution. According to Matt 27:32 and Mark 15:21, the soldiers forced Simon to take the cross; Luke 23:26 states that the cross was placed on Simon so that it might be carried behind Jesus. A reasonable explanation of all this is that Jesus started out carrying the cross until he was no longer able to do so, at which point Simon was forced to take over. <sup>18</sup> sn: Jesus was led out to the place called "The Place of the Skull" where he was to be crucified. It shows that Jesus was executed for claiming to be a king. It was also probably written with irony from the executioners' point of view. † tn: Grk "Pilate also wrote a notice and placed it on the cross." The two verbs should be read as causatives, since it is highly unlikely that the Roman governor would perform either of these actions himself. He ordered them to be done. sn: John says simply that the notice was fastened to the cross. Luke 23:38 says the inscription was placed "over him" (Jesus), and Matt 27:37 that it was placed over Jesus' head. On the basis of Matthew's statement Jesus' cross is usually depicted as the crux immissa, the cross which has the crossbeam set below the top of the upright beam. The other commonly used type of cross was the crux commissa, which had the crossbeam atop the upright beam. But Matthew's statement is not conclusive, since with the crux commissa the body would have sagged downward enough to allow the placard to be placed above Jesus' head. The placard with Pilate's inscription is mentioned in all the gospels, but for John it was certainly ironic. Jesus really was the King of the Jews, although he was a king rejected by his own people (cf. 1:11). Pilate's own motivation for placing the title over Jesus is considerably more obscure. He may have meant this as a final mockery of Jesus himself, but Pilate's earlier mockery of Jesus seemed to be motivated by a desire to gain pity from the Jewish authorities in order to have him released. More likely Pilate saw this as a subtle way of getting back at the Jewish authorities who had pressured him into the execution of one he considered to be an innocent man. †† tn: Grk "Now it was written." ‡ tn: Grk "the Jews." It is not clear whether his mother's sister and Mary the wife of Clopas are to be understood as the same individual (in which case only three women are mentioned: Jesus' mother, her sister Mary, and Mary Magdalene) or as two different individuals (in which case four women are mentioned: Jesus' mother, her sister, Mary Clopas' wife, and Mary Magdalene). It is impossible to be certain, but when John's account is compared to the synoptics it is easier to reconcile the accounts if four women were present than if there were only three. It also seems that if there were four women present, this would have been seen by the author to be in juxtaposition to the four soldiers present who performed the crucifixion, and this may explain the transition from the one incident in 23-24 to the other in 25-27. Finally, if only three were present, this would mean that both Jesus' mother and her sister were named Mary, and this is highly improbable in a Jewish family of that time. If there were four women present, the name of the second, the sister of Jesus' mother, is not mentioned. It is entirely possible that the sister of Jesus' mother mentioned here is to be identified with the woman named Salome mentioned in Mark 15:40 and also with the woman identified as "the mother of the sons of Zebedee" mentioned in Matt 27:56. If so, and if John the Apostle is to be identified as the beloved disciple, then the reason for the omission of the second woman's name becomes clear; she would have been John's own mother, and he consistently omitted direct reference to himself or his brother James or any other members of his family in the Fourth Gospel. §§§ sn: The term Woman is Jesus' normal, polite way of addressing women ( Matt 15:28, Luke 13:12; John 4:21; 8:10; 19:26; 20:15; see BDAG 208-9 s.v. γυνή

This would hasten their deaths, so that the bodies could be removed before the beginning of the Sabbath at 6 p.m. This was based on the law of Deut 21:22-23 and Josh 8:29 that specified the bodies of executed criminals who had been hanged on a tree should not remain there overnight. According to Josephus this law was interpreted in the 1st century to cover the bodies of those who had been crucified (J. W. 4.5.2 [4.317]). Philo of Alexandria also mentions that on occasion, especially at festivals, the bodies were taken down and given to relatives to bury (Flaccus 10 [83]). The normal Roman practice would have been to leave the bodies on the crosses, to serve as a warning to other would-be offenders. §†† sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. §† tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." This breaking of the legs was called in Latin crurifragium, and was done with a heavy mallet. §§† tn: Grk "asked Pilate that their legs might be broken and they might be taken down." Here because of the numerous ambiguous third person references it is necessary to clarify that it was the crucified men whose legs were to be broken and whose corpses were to be removed from the crosses. §§§ sn: See the note on Crucify in 19:6. 18 tn: Grk "with him"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 19 tn: Grk "broke the legs of the first and of the other who had been crucified with him." 20 sn: If it was obvious to the soldiers that the victim was already dead it is difficult to see why one of them would try to inflict a wound. 21 sn: How is the reference to the blood and water that flowed out from Jesus' side to be understood? This is probably to be connected with the statements in 1 John 5:6-8. In both passages water, blood, and testimony are mentioned. The Spirit is also mentioned in 1 John 5:7 as the source of the testimony, while here the testimony comes from one of the disciples (19:35). The connection between the Spirit and the living water with Jesus' statement of thirst just before he died in the preceding context has already been noted (see 19:28). For the author, the water which flowed out of Jesus' side was a symbolic reference to the Holy Spirit who could now be given because Jesus was now glorified (cf. 7:39); Jesus had now departed and returned to that glory which he had with the Father before the creation of the world (cf. 17:5). The mention of blood recalls the motif of the Passover lamb as a sacrificial victim. Later references to sacrificial procedures in the Mishnah appear to support this: m. Pesahim 5:3 and 5:5 state that the blood of the sacrificial animal should not be allowed to congeal but should flow forth freely at the instant of death so that it could be used for sprinkling; m. Tamid 4:2 actually specifies that the priest is to pierce the heart of the sacrificial victim and cause the blood to come forth. 22 tn: The word "it" is not in the Greek text but is implied. Direct objects were often omitted in Greek when clear from the context. 23 tn: Grk "and that one." 24 sn: A parenthetical note by the author. 25 sn: A quotation from Exod 12:46, Num 9:12, and Ps 34:20. A number of different OT passages lie behind this quotation: Exod 12:10 LXX, Exod 12:46, Num 9:12, or Ps 34:20. Of these, the first is the closest in form to the quotation here. The first three are all more likely candidates than the last, since the first three all deal with descriptions of the Passover lamb. 26 sn: A quotation from Zech 12:10. Here a single phrase is quoted from Zech 12, but the entire context is associated with the events surrounding the crucifixion. The "Spirit of grace and of supplication" is poured out on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the first part of v. 10. A few verses later in 13:1 Yahweh (typically rendered as "Lord" in the OT) says "In that day a fountain will be opened for the house of David and for the inhabitants of Jerusalem,

Jesus' Burial

<sup>38</sup> After this, Joseph of Arimathea, a disciple of Jesus (but secretly, because he feared the Jewish leaders†), †† asked Pilate if he could remove the body of Jesus. Pilate‡ gave him permission, so he went and took the body away. <sup>††39</sup> Nicodemus, the man who had previously come to Jesus‡‡ at night, ‡‡ accompanied Joseph, ‡‡ carrying a mixture of myrrh and aloes§ weighing about seventy-five pounds. <sup>§†40</sup> Then they took Jesus' body and wrapped it, with the aromatic spices, §†† in strips of linen cloth§† according to Jewish burial customs. <sup>§††41</sup> Now at the place where Jesus§† was crucified §† there was a garden, §§† and in the garden§§† was a new tomb where no one had yet been buried. <sup>§§§42</sup> And so, because it was the Jewish day of preparation<sup>18</sup> and the tomb was nearby, <sup>19</sup> they placed Jesus' body there.

for sin and for impurity." The blood which flowed from Jesus' pierced side may well be what the author saw as the connection here, since as the shedding of the blood of the sacrificial victim it represents cleansing from sin. Although the Jewish authorities and Roman soldiers certainly "looked on the one whom they have pierced" as he hung on the cross, the author may also have in mind the parousia (second coming) here. The context in Zech 12-14 is certainly the second coming, so that these who crucified Jesus will look upon him in another sense when he returns in judgment. † tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." The Passover and the Sabbath would begin at 6 p.m., so those who had come to prepare and bury the body could not afford to waste time. <sup>20</sup> sn: The first day of the week would be early Sunday morning. The Sabbath (and in this year the Passover) would have away from the entrance. <sup>222</sup> So she went running<sup>23</sup> to Simon Peter and the other disciple whom Jesus loved and told them, "They have taken the Lord from the tomb, and we don't know where they have put him!" <sup>3</sup> Then Peter and the other disciple set out to go to the tomb. <sup>244</sup> The two were running together, but the other disciple ran faster than Peter<sup>25</sup> and reached the tomb first. <sup>265</sup> He bent down<sup>27</sup> and saw the strips of linen cloth lying there,<sup>28</sup> but he did not go in. <sup>6</sup> Then Simon Peter, who had been following him, arrived and went right into the tomb. He saw<sup>29</sup> the strips of linen cloth lying there, <sup>7</sup> and the face cloth, <sup>30</sup> which had been around Jesus' head, not lying with the strips of linen cloth but rolled up in a place by itself. <sup>318</sup> Then lasted from 6 p.m. Friday until 6 p.m. Saturday. Sunday would thus mark the first day of the following week. <sup>21</sup> sn: John does not mention that Mary Magdalene was accompanied by any of the other women who had been among Jesus' followers. The synoptic accounts all mention other women who accompanied her (although Mary Magdalene is always mentioned first). Why John does not mention the other women is not clear, but Mary probably becomes the focus of the author's attention because it was she who came and found Peter and the beloved disciple and informed them of the empty tomb (20:2). Mary's use of the plural in v. 2 indicates there were others present, in indirect agreement with the synoptic accounts. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "from the tomb." <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "So she ran and came." <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "went out and were coming to the tomb." <sup>25</sup> sn: The other disciple (the 'beloved disciple') ran on ahead more quickly than Peter, so he arrived at the tomb first. This verse has been a chief factor in depictions of John as a young man (especially combined with traditions that he wrote last of all the gospel authors and lived into the reign of Domitian). But the verse does not actually say anything about John's age, nor is age always directly correlated with running speed. <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "and came first to the tomb." <sup>27</sup> sn: In most instances the entrance to such tombs was less than 3 ft (1 m) high, so that an adult would have to bend down and practically crawl inside. <sup>28</sup> sn: Presumably by the time the beloved disciple reached the tomb there was enough light to penetrate the low opening and illuminate the interior of the tomb sufficiently for him to see the strips of linen cloth lying there. The author does not state exactly where the linen wrappings were lying. Sometimes the phrase has been translated "lying on the ground," but the implication is that the wrappings were lying where the body had been. The most probable configuration for a tomb of this sort would be to have a niche carved in the wall where the body would be laid lengthwise, or a low shelf like a bench running along one side of the tomb, across the back or around all three sides in a U-shape facing the entrance. Thus the graveclothes would have been lying on this shelf or in the niche where the body had been. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "And he saw." The conjunction καί kai

<sup>30</sup> sn: The word translated face cloth is a Latin loanword (sudarium). It was a small towel used to wipe off perspiration (the way a handkerchief would be used today). This particular item was not mentioned in connection with Jesus' burial in John 19:40, probably because this was only a brief summary account. A face cloth was mentioned in connection with Lazarus' burial (John 11:44) and was probably customary. R. E. Brown speculates that it was wrapped under the chin and tied on top of the head to prevent the mouth of the corpse from falling open (John [AB], 2:986), but this is not certain. <sup>31</sup> sn: Much dispute and difficulty surrounds the translation of the words not lying with the strips of linen cloth but rolled up in a place by itself. Basically the issue concerns the positioning of the graveclothes as seen by Peter and the other disciple when they entered the tomb. Some have sought to prove that when the disciples saw the graveclothes they were arranged just as they were when around the body, so that when the

the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, came in, and he saw and believed. <sup>19</sup> (For they did not yet understand†† the scripture that Jesus‡ must rise from the dead.) ‡†

Jesus' Appearance to Mary Magdalene

<sup>10</sup> So the disciples went back to their homes. <sup>11</sup> But Mary stood outside the tomb weeping. As she wept, she bent down and looked into the tomb. <sup>12</sup> And she saw two angels in white sitting where Jesus' body had been lying, one at the head and one at the feet. <sup>13</sup> They said‡‡ to her, "Woman, ‡‡† why are you weeping?" Mary replied, ‡‡† "They have taken my Lord away, and I do not know where they have put him!" <sup>14</sup> When she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there,§ but she did not know that it was Jesus.

resurrection took place the resurrected body of Jesus passed through them without rearranging or disturbing them. In this case the reference to the face cloth being rolled up does not refer to its being folded, but collapsed in the shape it had when wrapped around the head. Sometimes in defense of this view the Greek preposition μετά meta

† sn: What was it that the beloved disciple believed (since v. 7 describes what he saw)? Sometimes it is suggested that what he believed was Mary Magdalene's report that the body had been stolen. But this could hardly be the case; the way the entire scene is narrated such a trivial conclusion would amount to an anticlimax. It is true that the use of the plural "they" in the following verse applied to both Peter and the beloved disciple, and this appears to be a difficulty if one understands that the beloved disciple believed at this point in Jesus' resurrection. But it is not an insuperable difficulty, since all it affirms is that at this time neither Peter nor the beloved disciple had understood the scripture concerning the resurrection. Thus it appears the author intends his reader to understand that when the beloved disciple entered the tomb after Peter and saw the state of the graveclothes, he believed in the resurrection, i.e., that Jesus had risen from the dead. †† tn: Or "yet know."‡ tn: Grk "he"; the referent (Jesus) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡† sn: Verse 9 is a parenthetical note by the author. The resurrection of the Messiah in general terms may have been seen in Isa 53:10-12 and Ps 16:10. Specific references may have been understood in Jonah 1:17 and Hos 6:2 because of the mention of "the third day." But what is the significance of the inclusion of this statement by the author? It is often taken to mean that Jesus, when he entered the room, passed through the closed doors. This may well be the case, but it may be assuming too much about our knowledge of the mode in which the resurrected body of Jesus exists. The text does not explicitly state how Jesus got through the closed doors. It is possible to assume that the doors opened of their own accord before him, or that he simply appeared in the middle of the room without passing through the doors at all. The point the author makes here is simply that the closed doors were no obstacle at all to the resurrected Jesus. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "where they were." <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "the Jewish authorities"; Grk "the Jews." Probably the most likely is something between the second and third alternatives. It seems that the second is slightly more likely here, because the context appears confessional. Thomas' statement, while it may have been an exclamation, does in fact confess the faith which he had previously lacked, and Jesus responds to Thomas' statement in the following verse as if it were a confession. With the proclamation by Thomas here, it is difficult to see how any more profound analysis of Jesus' person could be given. It echoes 1:1 and 1:14 together: The Word was God, and the Word became flesh (Jesus of Nazareth). The Fourth Gospel opened with many other titles for Jesus: the Lamb of God ( 1:29, 36); the Son of God ( 1:34, 49); Rabbi ( 1:38); Messiah ( 1:41); the King of Israel ( 1:49); the Son of Man ( 1:51). Now the climax is reached with the proclamation by Thomas, "My Lord and my God," and the reader has come full circle from 1:1, where the author had introduced him to who Jesus was, to 20:28, where the last of the disciples has come to the full realization of who Jesus was. What Jesus had predicted in John 8:28 had come to pass: "When you lift up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am he" ( Grk "I am"). By being lifted up in crucifixion (which led in turn to his death, resurrection, and exaltation with the Father) Jesus has revealed his true identity as both Lord ( κύριος kúrios) θεός qeos

††††† tn: Grk "they are forgiven to them." The words "to them" are unnecessary in English and somewhat redundant. ††††† sn: The statement by Jesus about forgive or retaining anyone's sins finds its closest parallel in Matt 16:19 and 18:18. This is probably not referring to apostolic power to forgive or retain the sins of individuals (as it is sometimes understood), but to the "power" of proclaiming this forgiveness which was entrusted to the disciples. This is consistent with the idea that the disciples are to carry on the ministry of Jesus after he has departed from the world and returned to the Father, a theme which occurred in the Farewell

What are these signs the author of the Gospel has in mind? One can only speculate. The author says they were performed in the presence of the disciples, which emphasizes again their role as witnesses (cf. 15:27). The point here is that the author has been selective in his use of material. He has chosen to record those incidents from the life and ministry of Jesus which supported his purpose in writing the Gospel. Much which might be of tremendous interest, but does not directly contribute to that purpose in writing, he has omitted. The author explains his purpose in writing in the following verse. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "these things." § tn: Grk "are written." §† tc: ‡ A difficult textual variant is present at this point in the Greek text. 21 After this§†† Jesus revealed himself again to the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias. §† Now this is how he did so. <sup>§‡2</sup> Simon Peter, Thomas§§† (called Didymus), §§‡ Nathanael §§§ (who was from Cana<sup>18</sup> in Galilee), the sons<sup>19</sup> of Zebedee, <sup>20</sup> and two other disciples<sup>21</sup> of his were together. <sup>3</sup> Simon Peter told them, "I am going fishing." ers, with purely evangelistic emphasis, or whether he envisions an audience of believers, whom he wants to strengthen in their faith. Several points are important in this discussion: (1) in the immediate context ( 20:30), the other signs spoken of by the author were performed in the presence of disciples; (2) in the case of the first of the signs, at Cana, the author makes a point of the effect the miracle had on the disciples ( 2:11); (3) if the primary thrust of the Gospel is toward unbelievers, it is difficult to see why so much material in chaps. 13-17 (the last meal and Farewell Discourse, concluding with Jesus' prayer for the disciples), which deals almost exclusively with the disciples, is included; (4) the disciples themselves were repeatedly said to have believed in Jesus throughout the Gospel, beginning with 2:11, yet they still needed to believe after the resurrection (if Thomas' experience in 20:27-28 is any indication); and (5) the Gospel appears to be written with the assumption that the readers are familiar with the basic story (or perhaps with one or more of the synoptic gospel accounts, although this is less clear). Thus no account of the birth of Jesus is given at all, and although he is identified as being from Nazareth, the words of the Pharisees and chief priests to Nicodemus ( 7:52) are almost certainly to be taken as ironic, assuming the reader knows where Jesus was really from. Likewise, when Mary is identified in 11:2 as the one who anointed Jesus' feet with oil, it is apparently assumed that the readers are familiar with the story, since the incident involved is not mentioned in the Fourth Gospel until 12:3. These observations must be set over against the clear statement of purpose in the present verse, 20:31, which seems to have significant evangelistic emphasis. In addition to this there is the repeated emphasis on witness throughout the Fourth Gospel (cf. the witness of John the Baptist in 1:7, 8, 15, 32, and 34, along with 5:33; the Samaritan woman in 4:39; Jesus' own witness, along with that of the Father who sent him, in 8:14, 18, and 18:37; the disciples themselves in 15:27; and finally the testimony of the author himself in 19:35 and 21:24). In light of all this evidence it seems best to say that the author wrote with a dual purpose: (1) to witness to unbelievers concerning Jesus, in order that they come to believe in him and have eternal life; and (2) to strengthen the faith of believers, by deepening and expanding their understanding of who Jesus is.

§‡ tn: The words "It was" are not in the Greek text. Here a new sentence was begun in the translation in keeping with the tendency of contemporary English style to use shorter sentences. For this reason the words "It was" had to be supplied. §§† sn: Here the author makes two further points about the catch of fish: (1) there were one hundred fifty-three large fish in the net, and (2) even with so many, the net was not torn. Many symbolic interpretations have been proposed for both points (unity, especially, in the case of the second), but the reader is given no explicit clarification in the text itself. It seems better not to speculate here, but to see these details as indicative of an eyewitness account. Both are the sort of thing that would remain in the mind of a person who had witnessed them firsthand. For a summary of the symbolic interpretations proposed for the number of fish in the net, see R. E. Brown (John [AB], 2:1074-75), where a number are discussed at length. Perhaps the reader is simply to understand this as the abundance which results from obedience to Jesus, much as with the amount of wine generated in the water jars in Cana at the beginning of Jesus' public ministry (2:6). §§‡ tn: Grk "said to them." The phrase by what kind of death Peter was going to glorify God almost certainly indicates martyrdom (cf. 1 Pet 4:16), and it may not predict anything more than that. But the parallelism of this phrase to similar phrases in John 12:33 and 18:32 which describe Jesus' own death by crucifixion have led many to suggest that the picture Jesus is portraying for Peter looks not just at martyrdom but at death by crucifixion. This seems to be confirmed by the phrase you will stretch out your hands in the preceding verse. There is some evidence that the early church understood this and similar phrases (one of them in Isa 65:2) to refer to crucifixion (for a detailed discussion of the evidence see L. Morris, John [NICNT], 876, n. 52). Some have objected that if this phrase does indeed refer to crucifixion, the order within v. 18 is wrong, because the stretching out of the hands in crucifixion precedes the binding and leading where one does not wish to go. R. E. Brown (John [AB], 2:1108) sees this as a deliberate reversal of the normal order (hysteron proteron) intended to emphasize the stretching out of the hands. Another possible explanation for the unusual order is the Roman practice in crucifixions of tying the condemned prisoner's arms to the crossbeam (patibulum) and forcing him to carry it to the place of execution (W. Bauer as cited by O. Cullmann in Peter: Disciple, Apostle, Martyr [LHD], 88). <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "After he said this, he said to him"; the referents (first Jesus, second Peter) have been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>22</sup> tn: The word "them" is not in the Greek text but is implied. This looks back to the quotation of Ps 110:1 and the mention of "calling on the Lord" in 2:21. Peter's point is that the Lord on whom one calls for salvation is Jesus, because he is the one mediating God's blessing of the Spirit as a sign of the presence of salvation and the last days. ‡†† tn: Or "and Messiah"; both "Christ" (Greek) and "Messiah" (Hebrew and Aramaic) mean "one who has been anointed." sn: See the note on Christ in 2:31. ‡†† tn: The word "this" is not in the Greek text. Why†† do you stare at us as if we had made this man†† walk by our own power or piety? 13 The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, § the God of our forefathers, §† has glorified§†† his servant§†† Jesus, whom you handed over and rejected§†† in the presence of Pilate after he had decided§† to release him. 14 But you rejected§† the Holy and Righteous One and asked that a man who was a murderer be released to you. 15 You killed§†† the Originator§†† of life, whom God raised§§§ from the dead. ### Conditions Among the Early Believers

<sup>32</sup> The group of those who believed were of one heart and mind,§§§ and no one said that any of his possessions was his own, but everything was held in common.<sup>1833</sup> With<sup>19</sup> great power the apostles were giving testimony<sup>20</sup> to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was on them all.<sup>34</sup> For there was no one needy<sup>21</sup> among them, because those who were owners of land or houses were selling<sup>22</sup> them<sup>23</sup> and bring-

† sn: The application of Ps 2:1-2 is that Jews and Gentiles are opposing Jesus. The surprise of the application is that Jews are now found among the enemies of God's plan. †† sn: A wordplay on "Christ," v. 26, which means "one who has been anointed." ‡ tn: Grk "hand," here a metaphor for God's strength or power or authority. ‡† tn: Or "purpose," "will." ‡‡ tn: Or "had predestined." Since the term "predestine" is something of a technical theological term, not in wide usage in contemporary English, the translation "decide beforehand" was used instead (see L&N 30.84). God's direction remains as the major theme. ‡‡† tn: Or "Lord, take notice of." ‡‡‡ sn: Grant to your servants to speak your message with great courage. The request is not for a stop to persecution or revenge on the opponents, but for boldness (great courage) to carry out the mission of proclaiming the message of what God is doing through Jesus. § tn: Grk "slaves." The remark is not a reflection of political philosophy, but of the extent of their spontaneous commitment to one another. Such a response does not have the function of a command, but is reflective of an attitude that Luke commends as evidence of their identification with one another. 19 tn: Grk "And with." ing the proceeds from the sales<sup>35</sup> and placing them at the apostles' feet. The proceeds<sup>24</sup> were distributed to each, as anyone had need.<sup>36</sup> So Joseph, a Levite who was a native of Cyprus, called by the apostles Barnabas (which is translated "son of encouragement"),<sup>2537</sup> sold<sup>26</sup> a field<sup>27</sup> that belonged to him and brought the money<sup>28</sup> and placed it at the apostles' feet.

Both of these literal translations differ from the normal way of expressing the thought in English. 37 tn: Grk "to men." If Peter's remark refers only to the apostles, the translation "to men" would be appropriate. But if (as is likely) the action was taken to impress the entire congregation (who would presumably have witnessed the donation or been aware of it) then the more general "to people" is more appropriate, since the audience would have included both men and women. 38 tn: Or "fear came on," "fear seized"; Grk "fear happened to." 39 tn: Or "arose." 40 tn: The translation "wrapped up" for συνέστειλαν sunesteilan Sapphira‡ said, "Yes, that much."<sup>9</sup> Peter then told her, "Why have you agreed together to test the Spirit of the Lord? Look! The feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out!"<sup>10</sup> At once‡‡ she collapsed at his feet and died. So when the young men came in, they found her dead, and they carried her out and buried her beside her husband.<sup>11</sup> Great‡‡ fear gripped‡‡‡ the whole church‡‡‡ and all who heard about these things.

The Apostles Perform Miraculous Signs and Wonders

<sup>12</sup> Now many miraculous signs§ and wonders came about among the people through the hands of the apostles. By§† common consent§†† they were all meeting together in Solomon's Portico.<sup>§†13</sup> None of the rest dared to join them,§†† but the people held them in high honor.<sup>§†14</sup> More and more believers in the Lord were added to their number,§† crowds of both men and women.<sup>15</sup> Thus§§† they even carried the sick out into the streets, and put them on cots and pallets, so that when Peter came by at least his shadow would fall on some of them.<sup>16</sup> A crowd of people from the towns

In English, the adversative conjunction ("but") conveys this nuance more smoothly. † tn: The words "the two of" are not in the Greek text, but have been supplied to indicate that the verb (ἀπέδοσθε apedosqe) †† tn: Grk "so much," "as much as this." ‡ tn: Grk "She"; the referent (Sapphira) has been specified in the translation for clarity. ‡† tn: Grk "And at once." Located beside the Court of the Gentiles, it was a very public area. §‡† tn: Or "to associate with them." The group was beginning to have a controversial separate identity. People were cautious about joining them. The next verse suggests that the phrase "none of the rest" in this verse is rhetorical hyperbole. §† tn: Or "the people thought very highly of them." §‡ tn: Or "More and more believers were added to the Lord." §§† tn: This is a continuation of the preceding sentence in Greek, but because this would produce an awkward sentence in English, a new sentence was begun here in the translation.

Further Trouble for the Apostles

Now when the high priest and those who were with him arrived, they summoned the Sanhedrin<sup>33</sup> – that is, the whole high council<sup>34</sup> of the Israelites<sup>35</sup> – and sent to the jail to have the apostles<sup>36</sup> brought before them.<sup>3722</sup> But the officers<sup>38</sup> who came for them<sup>39</sup> did not find

In English, however, a relative clause ("bringing the sick and those troubled by unclean spirits, who were all being healed") could be understood to refer only to the second group (meaning only those troubled by unclean spirits were being healed) or even that the unclean spirits were being healed. To avoid this ambiguity the pronoun "they" was used to begin a new English sentence. 19 sn: They were all being healed. Note how the healings that the apostles provided were comprehensive in their consistency. 20 sn: See the note on Sadducees in 4:1. 21 sn: This is a parenthetical note by the author. 22 sn: Filled with jealousy. In Acts, the term "jealousy" (ζήλος zhlos)

In the Greek text this is a continuation of the previous sentence, but a new sentence has been started here in the translation for stylistic reasons. 24 tn: Or "they arrested." 25 tn: Or "the angel of the Lord." Linguistically, "angel of the Lord" is the same in both testaments (and thus, he is either "an angel of the Lord" or "the angel of the Lord" in both testaments). For arguments and implications, see ExSyn 252; M. J. Davidson, "Angels," DJG, 9; W. G. MacDonald argues for "an angel" in both testaments: "Christology and 'The Angel of the Lord,'" Current Issues in Biblical and Patristic Interpretation, 324-35. 26 tn: Grk "opening the doors of the prison." The allusion is to the judgment against Jesus as a rebellious figure, appealing to the language of Deut 21:23. The Jewish leadership has badly "misjudged" Jesus. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "This one God exalted" (emphatic). <sup>30</sup> tn: Or "Founder" (of a movement). <sup>31</sup> tn: Or "to give repentance and forgiveness of sins to Israel." <sup>32</sup> tn: Or "things." They are preaching these things even to the hostile leadership. <sup>33</sup> sn: Those who obey. The implication, of course, is that the leadership is disobeying God. <sup>34</sup> sn: The only other use of this verb for anger ( furious) is Acts 7:54 after Stephen's speech. <sup>35</sup> sn: Wanted to execute them. The charge would surely be capital insubordination ( Exod 22:28). <sup>36</sup> sn: A Pharisee was a member of one of the most important and influential religious and political parties of Judaism in the time of Jesus. There were more Pharisees than Sadducees (according to Josephus, Ant. 17.2.4 [17.42] there were more than 6,000 Pharisees at about this time). Pharisees differed with Sadducees on certain doctrines and patterns of behavior. The Pharisees were strict and zealous adherents to the laws of the OT and to numerous additional traditions such as angels and bodily resurrection. <sup>37</sup> sn: Gamaliel was a famous Jewish scholar and teacher mentioned here in v. 34 and in Acts 22:3. He had a grandson of the same name and is referred to as "Gamaliel the Elder" to avoid confusion. He is quoted a number of times in the Mishnah, was given the highest possible title for Jewish teachers, Rabba (cf. John 20:16), and was highly regarded in later rabbinic tradition. <sup>38</sup> tn: Grk "standing up in the council, ordered." The participle ἀναστάς anasta"

He†† was killed, and all who followed him were dispersed and nothing came of it. <sup>37</sup> After him Judas the Galilean arose in the days of the census, †† and incited people to follow him in revolt. ‡‡ He too was killed, and all who followed him were scattered. <sup>38</sup> So in this case I say to you, stay away from these men and leave them alone, because if this plan or this undertaking originates with people, ‡‡‡ it will come to nothing, <sup>‡‡‡39</sup> but if§ it is from God, you will not be able to stop them, or you may even be found§† fighting against God." He convinced them, <sup>§††40</sup> and they summoned the apostles and had them beaten. §† Then§†† they ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus and released them. <sup>41</sup> So they left the council rejoicing because they had been considered worthy§† to suffer dishonor for the sake of the name. <sup>§†42</sup> And every day both in the temple courts§§† and from house to house, they did not stop teaching and proclaiming the good news§§† that Jesus was the Christ. §§§

The relative pronoun was replaced by the pronoun "he," and a new sentence was begun in the translation at this point. ‡ tn: Grk "and they came to nothing." Gamaliel's argument is that these two insurrectionists were taken care of by natural events. ‡† tn: Or "registration." ‡‡ tn: The verb ἀφίστημι afisthmi

The phrase "He convinced them" is traditionally placed in Acts 5:40 by most English translations; the standard Greek critical text (represented by NA 27 <sup>4</sup> §‡ sn: Had them beaten. The punishment was the "forty lashes minus one," see also Acts 22:19; 2 Cor 11:24; Mark 13:9. The apostles had disobeyed the religious authorities and took their punishment for their "disobedience" ( Deut 25:2-3; m. Makkot 3:10-14). In Acts 4:18 they were warned. Now they are beaten. The hostility is rising as the narrative unfolds. §†† tn: The word "Then" is supplied as the beginning of a new sentence in the translation. The construction in Greek has so many clauses (most of them made up of participles) that a continuous English sentence would be very awkward. §† sn: That is, considered worthy by God. <sup>6</sup> Now in those<sup>18</sup> days, when the disciples were growing in number, <sup>19</sup> a complaint arose on the part of the Greek-speaking Jews<sup>20</sup> against the native Hebraic Jews, <sup>21</sup> because their widows<sup>22</sup> were being overlooked<sup>23</sup> in the daily distribution of food. <sup>24</sup> So the twelve<sup>25</sup> called<sup>26</sup> the whole group<sup>27</sup> of the disciples together and said, "It is not right for us to neglect the word of God to wait on tables. <sup>28</sup> But carefully select from among you, brothers, <sup>29</sup> seven<sup>30</sup> men who are well-attested, <sup>31</sup> full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may put in charge<sup>32</sup> of this necessary task. <sup>33</sup> But we will devote ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the word." <sup>5</sup> The<sup>34</sup> proposal pleased the entire group, so<sup>35</sup> they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, with<sup>36</sup> Philip, <sup>37</sup> Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolas, a Gentile convert to Judaism<sup>38</sup> from Antioch. <sup>39</sup> They stood these men before the apostles, who prayed<sup>40</sup> and placed<sup>41</sup> their hands on them. <sup>7</sup> The word of God continued to spread, <sup>42</sup> the

The translation uses "those" for stylistic reasons. <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk "were multiplying." <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "the Hellenists," but this descriptive term is largely unknown to the modern English reader. The translation "Greek-speaking Jews" attempts to convey something of who these were, but it was more than a matter of language spoken; it involved a degree of adoption of Greek culture as well. sn: The Greek-speaking Jews were the Hellenists, Jews who to a greater or lesser extent had adopted Greek thought, customs, and lifestyle, as well as the Greek language. The city of Alexandria in Egypt was a focal point for them, but they were scattered throughout the Roman Empire. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "against the Hebrews," but as with "Hellenists" this needs further explanation for the modern reader. <sup>22</sup> sn: The care of widows is a major biblical theme: Deut 10:18; 16:11, 14; 24:17, 19-21; 26:12-13; 27:19; Isa 1:17-23; Jer 7:6; Mal 3:5. <sup>23</sup> tn: Or "neglected." <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "in the daily serving." sn: The daily distribution of food. ### Stephen is Arrested

Here the work of miracles extends beyond the Twelve for the first time. ‡† sn: A synagogue was a place for Jewish prayer and worship, with recognized leadership (cf. Luke 8:41). Though the origin of the synagogue is not entirely clear, it seems to have arisen in the postexilic community during the intertestamental period. A town could establish a synagogue if there were at least ten men. In normative Judaism of the NT period, the OT scripture was read and discussed in the synagogue by the men who were present (see the Mishnah, m. Megillah 3-4; m. Stephen's speech in Acts 7 may indicate why the temple was mentioned. §§§ tn: Or "practices." sn: Will destroy this place and change the customs. Stephen appears to view the temple as a less central place in light of Christ's work, an important challenge to Jewish religion, since it was at this time a temple-centered state and religion. Unlike Acts 3-4, the issue here is more than Jesus and his resurrection. Now the impact of his resurrection and the temple's centrality has also become an issue. The "falseness" of the charge may not be that the witnesses were lying, but that they falsely read the truth of Stephen's remarks. 18 tn: Grk "And all." ### Saul Begins to Persecute the Church

Now on that day a great† persecution began†† against the church in Jerusalem,‡ and all†† except the apostles were forced to scatter throughout the regions‡‡ of Judea and Samaria.<sup>2</sup> Some‡‡ devout men buried Stephen and made loud lamentation‡‡‡ over him.§§ But Saul was trying to destroy§† the church; entering one house after another, he dragged off§†† both men and women and put them in prison.§‡

<sup>9</sup> Now in that city was a man named Simon, who had been practicing magic<sup>21</sup> and amazing the people of Samaria, claiming to be someone great.<sup>10</sup> All the people,<sup>22</sup> from the least to the greatest, paid close attention to him, saying, "This man is the power of God that is called 'Great.'" <sup>23</sup>11 And they paid close attention to him because he had amazed them for a long time with his magic.<sup>12</sup> But when they believed Philip as he was proclaiming the good news about the kingdom of God<sup>24</sup> and the name of Jesus Christ,<sup>25</sup> they began to be baptized,<sup>26</sup> both men and women.<sup>13</sup> Even Simon himself believed, and after he was baptized, he stayed close to<sup>27</sup> Philip constantly, and when he saw the signs and great miracles that were occurring, he was amazed.<sup>28</sup>

18 Now Simon, when he saw that the Spirit† was given through the laying on of the apostles’ hands, offered them money, 19 saying, “Give me this power†† too, so that everyone I place my hands on may receive the Holy Spirit.” 20 But Peter said to him, “May your silver perish with you, ‡ because you thought you could acquire‡‡ God’s gift with money! 21 You have no share or part‡‡ in this matter‡‡‡ because your heart is not right before God! 22 Therefore repent of this wickedness of yours, and pray to the Lord‡‡‡ that he may perhaps forgive you for the intent of your heart. 23 For I see that you are bitterly envious‡‡† and in bondage to sin.” 24 But Simon replied, ‡†† “ You pray to the Lord for me so that nothing of what you have said may happen to‡‡ me.”

In this case Simon was jealous of the apostles’ power to bestow the Holy Spirit by the laying on of hands, and wanted that power for himself. The literal phrase does not convey this to the modern reader, and in fact some modern translations have simply rendered the phrase as involving bitterness, which misses the point of the envy on Simon’s part. See L&N 88.166. The OT images come from Deut 29:17-18 and Isa 58:6. ‡†† tn: Grk “Simon answered and said.” sn: Given that Simon does not follow Peter’s call for repentance, many interpreters read this reply as flippant rather than sincere. In the English translation this vividness is difficult to convey; it is necessary to supply the words “he met.” 28 sn: The term eunuch normally referred to a man who had been castrated, but this was not always the case (see Gen 39:1 LXX, where Potiphar is called a eunuch). Such castrated individuals were preferred as court officials in the East, although Judaism opposed the practice. The Mosaic law excluded eunuchs from Israel ( Deut 23:1), although God certainly accepted them ( Isa 56:3-5; Wis 3:14). This individual was a high official, since he was said to be in charge of all her treasury. He may or may not have been a eunuch physically. He appears to be the first fully Gentile convert to Christianity, since the Samaritans mentioned previously ( Acts 8:4-25) were regarded as half-breeds. 29 tn: Or “the Candace” (the title of the queen of the Ethiopians). This could be either “have” (NIV, NRSV) or “did” (NASB). “Did” is preferred here because the comparison Peter is making concerns not just the fact of the present possession of the Spirit (“they received the Spirit we now possess”), but the manner in which the Gentiles in Cornelius’ house received the Spirit (“they received the Spirit in the same manner we did [on the day of Pentecost]”). 41 tn: The Greek construction anticipates a negative reply which is indicated in the translation by the ‘tag’ question, “can he?” The question is rhetorical. Peter was saying these Gentiles should be baptized since God had confirmed they were his. 42 tn: The Greek construction (passive infinitive with accusative subject) could be translated either “he ordered them to be baptized” or “he ordered that they be baptized,” but the implication in English in either case is that Peter was giving orders to the Gentiles in Cornelius’ house, telling them to get baptized. There is debate over where this period of 450 years fits and what it includes: (1) It could include the years in Egypt, the conquest of Canaan, and the distribution of the land; (2) some connect it with the following period of the judges. This latter approach seems to conflict with 1 Kgs 6:1; see also Josephus, Ant. 8.3.1 (8.61). § tn: Grk "And after these things." Because of the difference between Greek style, which often begins sentences or clauses with "and," and English style, which generally does not, καί kai

The comparative clause "just as he promised" is less awkward in English. sn: Just as he promised. Note how Paul describes Israel's history carefully to David and then leaps forward immediately to Jesus. Paul is expounding the initial realization of Davidic promise as it was delivered in Jesus.

The words "from everything from which the law of Moses could not justify you" are part of v. <sup>38</sup> in the Greek text, but due to English style and word order must be placed in v. <sup>39</sup> in the translation. <sup>29</sup> <sup>sn:</sup> The speech closes with a warning, " Watch out," that also stresses culpability. <sup>30</sup> <sup>tn:</sup> Or "in." <sup>31</sup> <sup>tn:</sup> Or "and die!" <sup>32</sup> <sup>sn:</sup> A quotation from Hab 1:5. The irony in the phrase even if someone tells you, of course, is that Paul has now told them. So the call in the warning is to believe or else face the peril of being scoffers whom God will judge. The parallel from Habakkuk is that the nation failed to see how Babylon's rising to power meant perilous judgment for Israel.

Paul and Silas at Berea

10 The brothers sent Paul and Silas off to Berea21 at once, during the night. When they arrived, 22 they went to the Jewish synagogue. 2311 These Jews24 were more open-minded25 than those in Thessalonica, 26 for they eagerly27 received28 the message, examining29 the scriptures carefully every day30 to see if these things were so. 12 Therefore many of them believed, along with quite a few31 prominent32 Greek women and men. 13 But when the Jews from Thessalonica33 heard that Paul had also proclaimed the word of God34 in Berea, 35 they came there too, inciting36 and disturbing37 the crowds. 14 Then the brothers sent Paul away to the coast38 at once, but Silas and Timothy remained in Berea. 3915 Those who accompanied Paul escorted him as far as Athens, 40 and after receiving an order for Silas and Timothy to come to him as soon as possible, they left. 41

The problem is that no less than three different ones may be supplied here: (1) “him,” referring to Crispus, but this is not likely because there is no indication in the context that Crispus began to speak out about the Lord; this is certainly possible and even likely, but more than the text here affirms; (2) “Paul,” who had been speaking in the synagogue and presumably, now that he had moved to Titius Justus’ house, continued speaking to the Gentiles; or (3) “about it,” that is, the Corinthians who heard about Crispus’ conversion became believers. In the immediate context this last is most probable, since the two incidents are juxtaposed. Other, less obvious direct objects could also be supplied, such as “heard the word of God,” “heard the word of the Lord,” etc., but none of these are obvious in the immediate context. <sup>27</sup> sn: Frequently in Acts such a vision will tell the reader where events are headed. Their incestuous relationship became the gossip of Rome according to Josephus ( Ant. 20.7.3 [20.145-147]). The visit of Agrippa and Bernice gave Festus the opportunity to get some internal Jewish advice. Herod Agrippa II was a trusted adviser because he was known to be very loyal to Rome (Josephus, J. Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, the relative pronoun ("whom") has been replaced with a personal pronoun ("him") and a new sentence started in the translation at the beginning of v. 15 (where the phrase περί οὗ [peri Jou] occurs in the Greek text). ††††† tn: BDAG 516 s.v. καταδίκη states, "condemnation, sentence of condemnation, conviction, guilty verdict...αἰτεῖσθαι κατά τινος κ. ask for a conviction of someone Ac 25:15." § tn: Grk "to whom I answered." Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, the relative pronoun ("whom") has been replaced with a personal pronoun ("him") and a new sentence started in the translation at the beginning of v. 16. sn: "I answered them." s.v. βῆμα 3 gives the meaning "tribunal" for this verse, and a number of modern translations use similar terms ("court," NIV; "tribunal," NRSV), since the bema was a standard feature in Greco-Roman cities of the time, there is no need for an alternative translation here. sn: The judgment seat (βῆμα, bhma) was a raised platform mounted by steps and sometimes furnished with a seat, used by officials in addressing an assembly or making pronouncements, often on judicial matters. The judgment seat was a familiar item in Greco-Roman culture, often located in the agora, the public square or marketplace in the center of a city. §§§† tn: Grk "they brought no charge of any of the evil deeds." BDAG 31 s.v. αἰτία 3.b has "αἰτίαν φέρει... bring an accusation Ac 25:18." Since κατηγοροί (kathgoroi, "accusers") in the previous clause is somewhat redundant with this, "charge" was used instead. 18 tn: Or "I was expecting." 19 tn: Grk "several controversial issues." BDAG 428 s.v. ζήτημα states, "in our lit. only in Ac, w. the mng. it still has in Mod. Gk. (controversial) question, issue, argument...Ac 15:2; 26:3. ζ. περί τινος questions about someth....18:15; 25:19." 20 tn: On this term see BDAG 216 s.v. δεισιδαιμονία 2. It is a broad term for religion. sn: About their own religion. Festus made it clear that in his view as a neutral figure (and as one Luke had noted was disposed to help the Jews), he saw no guilt in Paul. The issue was a simple religious dispute. 21 tn: Grk "a certain Jesus." 22 tn: Or "asserted." 23 tn: Or "Because I was undecided." Grk "Being at a loss." The participle ἀπορούμενος (aporoumeno) has been translated as a causal adverbial participle. 24 tn: L&N 27.34 states, "ἀπορούμενος δὲ ἐγὼ τὴν περὶ τούτων ζήτησιν I was undecided about how I could get information on these matters' Ac 25:20. The clause 'about how I could get information on these matters' may also be rendered as 'about how I should try to find out about these matters' or 'about how I could learn about these matters.'" 25 tn: Or "stand trial." 26 tn: Grk "on these things." 27 tn: A designation of the Roman emperor (in this case, Nero). BDAG 917 s.v. σεβαστός states, "ὁ Σεβαστός His Majesty the Emperor Ac 25:21, 25 (of Nero)." It was a translation into Greek of the Latin "Augustus." 28 tn: Or "to the emperor" ("Caesar" is a title for the Roman emperor). 29 sn: See the note on King Agrippa in 25:13. 30 sn: See the note on Porcius Festus in 24:27. 31 tn: Grk "said." 32 sn: See the note on King Agrippa in 25:13. 33 tn: Or "great pageantry" (BDAG 1049 s.v. φαντασία; the term is a NT hapax legomenon). sn: Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp. The "royals" were getting their look at Paul. Everyone who was anyone would have been there. 34 tn: Or "auditorium." "Auditorium" may suggest to the modern English reader a theater where performances are held. Here it is the large hall where a king or governor would hold audiences. Paul once spoke of himself as a "spectacle" to the world (1 Cor 4:8-13). 35 tn: Grk "the chil-

men of the city. When Festus † gave the order, †† Paul was brought in. 24 Then Festus ‡ said, “King Agrippa, † and all you who are present here with us, you see this man about whom the entire Jewish populace †† petitioned ††† me both in Jerusalem and here, shouting loudly †††† that he ought not to live any longer. 25 But I found that he had done nothing that deserved death, § and when he appealed §† to His Majesty the Emperor, §†† I decided to send him. §††† But I have nothing definite §†† to write to my lord §† about him. §† Therefore I have brought him before you all, and especially before you, King Agrippa, §†† so that after this preliminary hearing §†† I may have something to write. 27 For it seems unreasonable to me to send a prisoner without clearly indicating §§§ the charges against him.”

iarchs” (officers in command of a thousand soldiers). In Greek the term χιλίαρχος (ciliarco) literally described the “commander of a thousand,” but it was used as the standard translation for the Latin tribunus militum or tribunus militare, the military tribune who commanded a cohort of 600 men. † sn: See the note on Porcius Festus in 24:27. †† tn: Grk “and Festus ordering, Paul was brought in.” Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was begun in the translation, and καί (kai) has not been translated. The participle κελεύσαντος (keleusantos) has been taken temporarily. ‡ sn: See the note on Porcius Festus in 24:27. ††† sn: See the note on King Agrippa in 25:13. †††† tn: Probably best understood as rhetorical hyperbole. BDAG 825 s.v. πλήθος 2.b.y states, “people, populace, population...τὸ πλῆθος the populace...ἅπαν τὸ πλ. τῶν Ἰουδαίων Ac 25:24.” However, the actions of the leadership are seen by Luke as representing the actions of the entire nation, so the remark is not inaccurate. ††††† tn: Or “appealed to” (BDAG 341 s.v. ἐντυγχάνω 1.a). †††††† tn: Or “screaming.” § sn: He had done nothing that deserved death. Festus’ opinion of Paul’s guilt is like Pilate’s of Jesus (Luke 23:4, 14, 22). §† tn: The participle ἐπικαλεσαμένου (epikalesamenou) has been taken temporarily. It could also be translated as causal: “and because he appealed...” §††† tn: A designation of the Roman emperor (in this case, Nero). BDAG 917 s.v. σεβαστός states, “ὁ Σεβαστός His Majesty the Emperor Ac 25:21, 25 (of Nero).” §†††† tn: The word “him” is not in the Greek text, but is implied. Direct objects were often omitted in Greek when clear from the context, but must be supplied for the modern English reader. §††††† sn: There is irony here. How can Festus write anything definite about Paul, if he is guilty of nothing. §†††††† sn: To my lord means “to His Majesty the Emperor.” §††††††† tn: Grk “about whom I have nothing definite...” Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, the relative pronoun (“whom”) was replaced with a personal pronoun (“him”) and a new sentence begun in the translation at the beginning of v. 26. §§††† sn: See the note on King Agrippa in 25:13. §§††††† tn: Or “investigation.” BDAG 66 s.v. ἀνάκρισις has “a judicial hearing, investigation, hearing, esp. preliminary hearing...τῆς ἀ. γενομένης Ac 25:26.” This is technical legal language. §§§††††† tn: L&N 33.153 s.v. σημαίνω, “to cause something to be both specific and clear – to indicate clearly, to make clear...” “for it seems unreasonable to me to send a prisoner without clearly indicating the charges against him” Ac 25:27.” sn: Without clearly indicating the charges against him. Again the point is made by Festus himself that there is difficulty even in articulating a charge against Paul. 18 sn: See the note on King Agrippa in 25:13. 19 tn: Grk “It is permitted for you.” 20 tn: Or “extended his hand” (a speaker’s gesture). 21 tn: Or “and began to speak in his own defense.”

22 “Regarding all the things I have been accused of by the Jews, King Agrippa, 22 I consider myself fortunate that I am about to make my defense before you today, 3 because you are especially<sup>23</sup> familiar with all the customs and controversial issues<sup>24</sup> of the Jews. Therefore I ask<sup>25</sup> you to listen to me patiently. 4 Now all the Jews know the way I lived<sup>26</sup> from my youth, spending my life from the beginning among my own people<sup>27</sup> and in Jerusalem. 28<sup>5</sup> They know,<sup>29</sup> because they have known 30 me from time past, 31 if they are willing to testify, that according to the strictest party<sup>32</sup> of our religion, I lived as a Pharisee. 33<sup>6</sup> And now I stand here on trial<sup>34</sup> because of my hope in the promise made by God to our ancestors, 35<sup>7</sup> a promise<sup>36</sup> that our twelve tribes hope to attain as they earnestly serve God<sup>37</sup> night and day. Concerning this hope the Jews are accusing me,<sup>38</sup> Your Majesty! 39<sup>8</sup> Why do you people<sup>40</sup> think 41 it is unbelievable<sup>42</sup> that<sup>43</sup> God raises the dead? 9 Of course, 44

I myself was convinced† that it was necessary to do many things hostile to the name of Jesus the Nazarene. <sup>10</sup> And that is what I did in Jerusalem : Not only did I lock up many of the saints in prisons by the authority I received†† from the chief priests, but I also cast my vote‡ against them when they were sentenced to death. <sup>††11</sup> I punished‡‡ them often in all the synagogues‡‡† and tried to force‡‡‡ them to blaspheme. Because I was so furiously enraged§ at them, I went to persecute§† them even in foreign cities.

ing yourself§§§ by kicking against the goads.' <sup>1815</sup> So I said, 'Who are you, Lord ?' And the Lord replied, <sup>19</sup> ' I am Jesus whom you are persecuting. <sup>16</sup> But get up and stand on your feet, for I have appeared to you for this reason, to designate you in advance<sup>20</sup> as a servant and witness<sup>21</sup> to the things<sup>22</sup> you have seen <sup>23</sup> and to the things in which I will appear to you. <sup>17</sup> I will rescue<sup>24</sup> you from your own people<sup>25</sup> and from the Gentiles, to whom<sup>26</sup> I am sending you<sup>18</sup> to open their eyes so that they turn<sup>27</sup> from darkness to light and from the power<sup>28</sup> of Satan to God, so that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a share<sup>29</sup> among those who are sanctified by faith in me.'

<sup>19</sup> " Therefore, King Agrippa, <sup>30</sup> I was not disobedient<sup>31</sup> to the heavenly<sup>32</sup> vision, <sup>20</sup> but I declared to those in Damascus first, and then to those in Jerusalem and in all Judea, <sup>33</sup> and to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, <sup>34</sup> performing deeds consistent with<sup>35</sup> repentance. <sup>21</sup> For this reason

††† tn: Grk "the gospel of God, which he promised." Because of the length and complexity of this sentence in Greek, it was divided into shorter English sentences in keeping with contemporary English style. Grace and peace to you† from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ!

Paul's Desire to Visit Rome

<sup>8</sup> First of all, †† I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is proclaimed throughout the whole world. <sup>9</sup> For God, whom I serve in my spirit by preaching the gospel‡ of his Son, is my witness that‡† I continually remember you<sup>10</sup> and I always ask‡† in my prayers, if perhaps now at last I may succeed in visiting you according to the will of God. <sup>‡††11</sup> For I long to see you, so that I may impart to you some spiritual gift‡‡ to strengthen you, <sup>12</sup> that is, that we may be mutually comforted by one another's faith, § both yours and mine. <sup>13</sup> I do not want you to be unaware, §† brothers and sisters, §†† that I often intended to come to you (and was prevented until now), so that I may have some fruit even among you, just as I already have among the rest of the Gentiles. <sup>§†14</sup> I am a debtor§†† both to the Greeks and to the barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish. <sup>15</sup> Thus I am eager§† also to preach the gospel to you who are in Rome. §‡

The Power of the Gospel

<sup>16</sup> For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is God's power for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. <sup>§§†17</sup> For the righteousness§§† of God is revealed in the gospel§§§ from faith to

Instead, this is either a metonymy of cause for effect (Paul will use his own spiritual gifts to edify the Romans), or it simply means something akin to a blessing or benefit in the spiritual realm. It is possible that Paul uses this phrase to connote specifically the broader purpose of his letter, which is for the Romans to understand his gospel, but this seems less likely. § tn: Grk "that is, to be comforted together with you through the faith in one another." §† sn: The expression "I do not want you to be unaware [Grk ignorant]" also occurs in 1 Cor 10:1; 12:1; 1 Thess 4:13. Paul uses the phrase to signal that he is about to say something very important. §†† tn: Grk "brothers," but the Greek word may be used for "brothers and sisters" or "fellow Christians" as here (cf. ### The Condemnation of the Unrighteous

<sup>18</sup> For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of people<sup>20</sup> who suppress the truth by their<sup>21</sup> unrighteousness, <sup>22</sup> because what can be known about God is plain to them, <sup>23</sup> because God has made it plain to them. <sup>20</sup> For since the creation of the world his invisible attributes – his eternal power and divine nature – have been clearly seen, because they are understood through what has been made. So people <sup>24</sup> are without excuse. <sup>21</sup> For although they knew God, they did not glorify him as God or give him thanks, but they became futile in their thoughts and their senseless hearts<sup>25</sup> were darkened. <sup>22</sup> Although they claimed<sup>26</sup> to be wise, they became fools<sup>23</sup> and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for an image resembling mortal human beings<sup>27</sup> or birds or four-footed animals<sup>28</sup> or reptiles.

There have been several major approaches to the chapter and the group(s) it refers to: (1) Rom 2:14 refers to Gentile Christians, not Gentiles who obey the Jewish law. (2) Paul in Rom 2 is presenting a hypothetical viewpoint: If anyone could obey the law, that person would be justified, but no one can. (3) The reference to "the ones who do the law" in 2:13 are those who "do" the law in the right way, on the basis of faith, not according to Jewish legalism. (4) Rom 2:13 only speaks about Christians being judged in the future, along with such texts as Rom 14:10 and 2 Cor 5:10. (5) Paul's material in Rom 2 is drawn heavily from Diaspora Judaism, so that the treatment of the law presented here cannot be harmonized with other things Paul says about the law elsewhere (E. P. Sanders, Paul, the Law, and the Jewish People, 123); another who sees Rom 2 as an example of Paul's inconsistency in his treatment of the law is H. Räisänen, Paul and the Law [WUNT], 101-9. Deut 27-30 provide the background for Rom 2; the Gentiles of 2:14 are Gentile Christians, but the condemnation of Jews in 2:17-24 addresses the failure of Jews as a nation to keep the law as a whole (A. ### The Condemnation of the Jew

<sup>17</sup> But if you call yourself a Jew and rely on the law§†† and boast of your relationship to God<sup>§††18</sup> and know his will§†† and approve the superior things because you receive instruction from the law,<sup>§††19</sup> and if you are convinced§†† that you yourself are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness,<sup>20</sup> an educator of the senseless, a teacher of little children, because you have in the law the essential features of knowledge and of the truth – <sup>21</sup> therefore§§† you who teach someone else, do you not teach yourself? You who preach against stealing, do you steal?<sup>22</sup> You who tell others not to commit adultery, do you commit adultery? You who abhor§§† idols, do you rob temples?<sup>23</sup> You who boast in the law dishonor God by transgressing the law!<sup>24</sup> For just as it is written, "the name of God is being blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you."§§§

<sup>38</sup> tn: The Greek sentence expresses this contrast more succinctly than is possible in English. Grk "For not the hearers of the law are righteous before God, but the doers of the law will be declared righteous." † sn: Gentile is a NT term for a non-Jew. †† tn: Some (e.g. C. E. B. Cranfield, Romans [ICC], 1:135-37) take the phrase φύσει fusei

‡ tn: Grk "do by nature the things of the law." †† tn: Grk "who." The relative pronoun was converted to a personal pronoun and, because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started here in the translation. ‡‡ tn: Grk "show the work of the law [to be] written," with the words in brackets implied by the Greek construction. ‡‡† tn: Or "excuse." ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "their conscience bearing witness and between the thoughts accusing or also defending one another." § tn: The form of the Greek word is either present or future, but it is best to translate in future because of the context of future judgment. §† tn: Grk "of people." §†† sn: On my gospel cf. Rom 16:25; 2 Tim 2:8. §‡ sn: The law refers to the Mosaic law, described mainly in the OT books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. §†† tn: Grk "boast in God." This may be an allusion to Jer 9:24. §† tn: Grk "the will." §‡ tn: Grk "because of being instructed out of the law." §§† tn: This verb is parallel to the verbs in vv. 17-18a, so it shares the conditional meaning even though the word "if" is not repeated. §§‡ tn: The structure of vv. 21-24 is difficult. Some take these verses as the apodosis of the conditional clauses (protases) in vv. 17-20; others see vv. 17-20 as an instance of anacoluthon (a broken off or incomplete construction). §§§ tn: Or "detest." 18 sn: A quotation from Isa 52:5. 19 sn: Circumcision refers to male cir-

3 Therefore what advantage does the Jew have, or what is the value of circumcision?<sup>2</sup> Actually, there are many advantages.<sup>30</sup> First of all, <sup>31</sup> the Jews<sup>32</sup> were entrusted with the oracles of God.<sup>33</sup> What then? If some did not believe, does their unbelief nullify the faithfulness of God?<sup>4</sup> Absolutely not! Let God be proven true, and every human being<sup>34</sup> shown up as a liar, <sup>35</sup> just as it is written: "so that you will be just-

The Condemnation of the World

<sup>9</sup> What then? Are we better off? Certainly not, for we have already charged that Jews and Greeks alike are all under sin, <sup>10</sup> just as it is written:

“ There is no one righteous, not even one,
<sup>11</sup> there is no one who understands,
 there is no one who seeks God.
<sup>12</sup> All have turned away, together they have become worthless;
 there is no one who shows kindness, not even one.”

<sup>13</sup> “ Their throats are open graves, ‡‡‡ they deceive with their tongues, the poison of asps is under their lips.” ‡‡
<sup>14</sup> “ Their mouths are ‡‡‡ full of cursing and bitterness.”

<sup>15</sup> “ Their feet are swift to shed blood,
<sup>16</sup> ruin and misery are in their paths,

faith! <sup>28</sup> For we consider that a person§† is declared righteous by faith apart from the works of the law. <sup>§††29</sup> Or is God the God of the Jews only? Is he not the God of the Gentiles too? Yes, of the Gentiles too! <sup>30</sup> Since God is one, §† he will justify the circumcised by faith and the uncircumcised through faith. <sup>31</sup> Do we then nullify§†† the law through faith? Absolutely not! Instead§† we uphold the law.

4 What then shall we say that Abraham, our ancestor according to the flesh, §† has discovered regarding this matter? <sup>§§†2</sup> For if Abraham was declared righteous§§† by the works of the law, he has something to boast about – but not before God. <sup>3</sup> For what does the scripture say? "Abraham believed God, and it was credited§§§ to him as righteousness*." <sup>184</sup> Now to the one who works, his pay is not credited due to grace but due to obligation. <sup>195</sup> But to the one who does not work, but believes in the one who declares the ungodly righteous,<sup>20</sup> his faith is credited as righteousness.

<sup>6</sup> So even David himself speaks regarding the blessedness of the man to whom God credits righteousness apart from works:

<sup>9</sup> Is this blessedness<sup>25</sup> then for<sup>26</sup> the circumcision<sup>27</sup> or also for<sup>28</sup> the uncircumcision? For we say, "faith was credited to Abraham as righteousness." <sup>29†0</sup> How then was it credited to him? Was he circumcised at the time,

31 sn: Many scholars regard Rom 4:25 to be poetic or hymnic. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: "(a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelismus membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context" (P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage. † sn: Many interpreters see Rom 5:1 as beginning the second major division of the letter. †† tc: A number of important witnesses have the subjunctive ἔχωμεν ecwmen

Not‡† only this, but we also rejoice in sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, 4 and endurance, character, and character, hope. 5 And hope does not disappoint, because the love of God‡† has been poured out‡†† in our hearts through the Holy Spirit who was given to us.

6 For while we were still helpless, at the right time Christ died for the ungodly. 7 (For rarely will anyone die for a righteous person, though for a good person perhaps someone might possibly dare to die.) ‡†† But God demonstrates his own love for us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us. 9 Much more then, because we have now been declared righteous‡ by his blood, ‡† we will be saved through him from God's wrath. ‡††10 For if while we were enemies we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, how much more, since we have been reconciled, will we be saved by his life? 11 Not‡† only this, but we also rejoice‡†† in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received this reconciliation.

counting for sin† when there is no law. <sup>14</sup> Yet death reigned from Adam until Moses even over those who did not sin in the same way that Adam (who is a type†† of the coming one) transgressed. <sup>15</sup> But the gracious gift is not like the transgression. ‡ For if the many died through the transgression of the one man, ‡‡ how much more did the grace of God and the gift by the grace of the one man Jesus Christ multiply to the many! <sup>16</sup> And the gift is not like the one who sinned. ‡‡‡ For judgment, resulting from the one transgression, ‡‡‡ led to condemnation, but‡ the gracious gift from the many failures§† led to justification. <sup>17</sup> For if, by the transgression of the one man, §†† death reigned through the one, how much more will those who receive the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ!

6 What shall we say then? Are we to remain in sin so that grace may increase? <sup>2</sup> Absolutely not! How can we who died to sin still live in it? <sup>3</sup> Or do you not know that as many as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? <sup>4</sup> Therefore we have been buried with him through baptism into death, in order that just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we too may live a new life. <sup>24</sup>

<sup>5</sup> For if we have become united with him in the likeness of his death, we will certainly also be united in the likeness of his resurrection. <sup>256</sup> We know that<sup>26</sup> our old man was crucified with him so that the body of sin would no longer dominate us, <sup>27</sup> so that we would no longer be enslaved to sin. <sup>7</sup> (For someone who has died has been freed from sin.) <sup>28</sup>

<sup>8</sup> Now if we died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with him. <sup>9</sup> We know<sup>29</sup> that since Christ has been raised from the dead, he is never going to die<sup>30</sup> again; death no longer has mastery over him. <sup>10</sup> For the death he died, he died to sin once for all, but the life he lives, he lives to God. <sup>11</sup> So you too consider yourselves<sup>31</sup> dead to sin, but<sup>32</sup> alive to God in Christ Jesus.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body so that you obey its desires, <sup>13</sup> and do not present your members to sin as instruments<sup>33</sup> to be used for unrighteousness, <sup>34</sup> but present yourselves to God as those who are alive from the dead and your members to God as instruments<sup>35</sup> to be used for righteousness. <sup>14</sup> For sin will have no mastery over you, because you are not under law but under grace.

were slaves to sin, you obeyed† from the heart that pattern†† of teaching you were entrusted to,<sup>18</sup> and having been freed from sin, you became enslaved to righteousness.<sup>19</sup> (I am speaking in human terms because of the weakness of your flesh.)‡ For just as you once presented your members as slaves to impurity and lawlessness leading to more lawlessness, so now present your members as slaves to righteousness leading to sanctification.<sup>20</sup> For when you were slaves of sin, you were free with regard to righteousness.

<sup>21</sup> So what benefit‡‡ did you then reap‡‡ from those things that you are now ashamed of? For the end of those things is death.<sup>22</sup> But now, freed‡‡† from sin and enslaved to God, you have your benefit‡‡† leading to sanctification, and the end is eternal life.<sup>23</sup> For the payoff§ of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

7 Or do you not know, brothers and sisters§† (for I am speaking to those who know the law), that the law is lord over a person§†† as long as he lives?<sup>2</sup> For a married woman is bound by law to her husband as long as he lives, but if her§‡ husband dies, she is released from the law of the marriage.<sup>§††3</sup> So then,§† if she is joined to another man while her husband is alive, she will be called an adulteress. But if her§‡ husband dies, she is free from that law, and if she is joined to another man, she is not an adulteress.<sup>4</sup> So, my brothers and sisters,§§† you also died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you could be joined to another, to the one who was raised from the dead, to bear fruit to God.<sup>§§†5</sup> For when we were in the flesh,§§§ the sinful desires,<sup>18</sup> aroused by the law, were active in the members of our body<sup>19</sup> to bear fruit for death.<sup>6</sup> But now we have been released from the law, because we have died<sup>20</sup> to what controlled us, so that we may serve in the new life of the Spirit and not under the old written code.<sup>21</sup>

<sup>7</sup> What shall we say then? Is the law sin? Absolutely not! Certainly, I<sup>22</sup> would not have known sin except through the law. For indeed I would not have known what it means to desire something belonging to someone else<sup>23</sup> if the law had not said, "Do not covet."<sup>24</sup> But sin, seizing the opportunity through the commandment, produced in me all kinds of wrong desires.<sup>25</sup> For apart from the law, sin is dead.<sup>9</sup> And I was once alive apart from the law, but with the coming of the commandment sin became alive<sup>10</sup> and I died. So<sup>26</sup> I found that the very commandment that was intended to bring life brought death!<sup>27</sup> For sin, seizing the opportunity through the commandment, deceived me and through it I died.<sup>28</sup> So then, the law is holy, and the commandment is holy, righteous, and good.

<sup>13</sup> Did that which is good, then, become death to me? Absolutely not! But sin, so that it would be shown to be sin, produced death in me through what is good, so that through the commandment sin would become utterly sinful.<sup>14</sup> For we know that the law is spiritual – but I am unspiritual, sold into slavery to sin.<sup>29</sup> For I don't understand what I am doing. For I do not do what I want – instead, I do what I hate.<sup>30</sup> But if I do what I don't want, I agree that the law is good.<sup>31</sup> But now it is no longer me doing it, but sin that lives in me.<sup>18</sup> For I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my flesh. For I want to do the good, but I cannot do it.<sup>32</sup> For I do not do the good I want, but I do the very

There has been an enormous debate over the significance of the first person singular pronouns ("I") in this passage and how to understand their referent. Did Paul intend (1) a reference to himself and other Christians too; (2) a reference to his own pre-Christian experience as a Jew, struggling with the law and sin (and thus addressing his fellow countrymen as Jews); or (3) a reference to himself as a child of Adam, reflecting the experience of Adam that is shared by both Jews and Gentiles alike (i.e., all people everywhere)? Good arguments can be assembled for each of these views, and each has problems dealing with specific statements in the passage. The classic argument against an autobiographical interpretation was made by W. G. Kümmel, Römer 7 und die Bekehrung des Paulus. A good case for seeing at least an autobiographical element in the chapter has been made by G. Theissen, Psychologische Aspekte paulinischer Theologie [FRLANT], 181-268. One major point that seems to favor some sort of an autobiographical reading of these verses is the lack of any mention of the Holy Spirit for empowerment in the struggle described in Rom 7:7-25. The Spirit is mentioned beginning in 8:1 as the solution to the problem of the struggle with sin (8:4-6, 9). <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "I would not have known covetousness." <sup>24</sup> sn: A quotation from Exod 20:17 and Deut 5:21. <sup>25</sup> tn: Or "covetousness." <sup>26</sup> tn: Here καὶ kai evil I do not want!<sup>20</sup> Now if I do what I do not want, it is no longer me doing it but sin that lives in me.

<sup>21</sup> So, I find the law that when I want to do good, evil is present with me. <sup>22</sup> For I delight in the law of God in my inner being. <sup>23</sup> But I see a different law in my members waging war against the law of my mind and making me captive to the law of sin that is in my members. <sup>24</sup> Wretched man that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? <sup>25</sup> Thanks be† to God through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, †† I myself serve the law of God with my mind, but‡ with my flesh I serve‡† the law of sin.

8 There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. ‡‡ For the law of the life-giving Spirit‡†† in Christ Jesus has set you‡†† free from the law of sin and death. <sup>3</sup> For God achieved what the law could not do because§ it was weakened through the flesh. By sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and concerning sin, he condemned sin in the flesh, <sup>4</sup> so that the righteous requirement of the law may be fulfilled in us, who do not walk according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.

who live according to the Spirit have their outlook shaped by the things of the Spirit. <sup>6</sup> For the outlook§†† of the flesh is death, but the outlook of the Spirit is life and peace, <sup>7</sup> because the outlook of the flesh is hostile to God, for it does not submit to the law of God, nor is it able to do so. <sup>8</sup> Those who are in the flesh cannot please God. <sup>9</sup> You, however, are not in§† the flesh but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God lives in you. Now if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, this person does not belong to him. <sup>10</sup> But if Christ is in you, your body is dead because of sin, but §†† the Spirit is your life §† because of righteousness. <sup>11</sup> Moreover if the Spirit of the one§† who raised Jesus from the dead lives in you, the one who raised Christ§†† from the dead will also make your mortal bodies alive through his Spirit who lives in you. §§†

†† sn: Rom 9:1–11:36. These three chapters are among the most difficult and disputed in Paul's Letter to the Romans. One area of difficulty is the relationship between Israel and the church, especially concerning the nature and extent of Israel's election. Many different models have been constructed to express this relationship. For a representative survey, see M. Barth, The People of God (JSNTSup), 22-27. The literary genre of these three chapters has been frequently identified as a diatribe, a philosophical discussion or conversation evolved by the Cynic and Stoic schools of philosophy as a means of popularizing their ideas (E. Käsemann, Romans, 261 and 267). But other recent scholars have challenged the idea that Rom 9–11 is characterized by diatribe. Scholars like R. Scroggs and E. E. Ellis have instead identified the material in question as midrash. For a summary and discussion of the rabbinic connections, see W. R. Stegner, "Romans 9.6-29 – A Midrash," JSNT 22 (1984): 37-52. ‡ tn: Or "my conscience bears witness to me." ‡† tn: Grk "my sorrow is great and the anguish in my heart is unceasing." ‡‡ tn: Or "For I would pray." The implied condition is "if this could save my fellow Jews." ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "brothers." See BDAG 18-19 s.v. ἀδελφός ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "my kinsmen according to the flesh." § tn: Grk "of whom." Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started here in the translation. §† tn: The Greek term υἰοθεσία Juioqesia

§‡ tn: Grk "of whom are the fathers." Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started here in the translation. §†† tn: Grk "from whom." Here the relative pronoun has been replaced by a personal pronoun. §† tn: Grk "according to the flesh." §‡ tn: Or "Messiah." (Both Greek "Christ" and Hebrew and Aramaic "Messiah" mean "one who has been anointed.")

<sup>6</sup> It is not as though the word of God had failed. For not all those who are descended from Israel are truly Israel, <sup>§§†7</sup> nor are all the children Abraham's true descendants; rather "through Isaac will your descendants be counted." <sup>§§†8</sup> This means§§§ it is not the children of the flesh<sup>18</sup> who are the children of God; rather, the children of promise are counted as descendants. <sup>9</sup> For this is what the promise declared: <sup>19</sup> "About a year from now<sup>20</sup> I will return and Sarah will have a son." <sup>21</sup>10 Not only that, but when Rebekah had conceived children by one man, <sup>22</sup> our ancestor Isaac – <sup>11</sup> even before they were born or had done anything good or bad (so that God's purpose in election<sup>23</sup> would stand, not by works but by<sup>24</sup> his calling) <sup>25</sup> – <sup>12</sup> <sup>26</sup> it was said to her, "The older will serve the younger," <sup>27</sup>13 just as it is written: "Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated." <sup>28</sup>

<sup>14</sup> What shall we say then? Is there injustice with God? Absolutely not! <sup>15</sup> For he says to Moses: "I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion." <sup>29</sup>16 So then, <sup>30</sup> it does not depend on human desire or exertion, <sup>31</sup> but

§§† tn: Or "the Christ, who is over all, God blessed forever," or "the Messiah. God who is over all be blessed forever!" or "the Messiah who is over all. God be blessed forever!" The translational difficulty here is not text-critical in nature, but is a problem of punctuation. Since the genre of these opening verses of Romans 9 is a lament, it is probably best to take this as an affirmation of Christ's deity (as the text renders it). Although the other renderings are possible, to see a note of praise to God at the end of this section seems strangely out of place. But for Paul to bring his lament to a crescendo (that is to say, his kinsmen had rejected God come in the flesh), thereby deepening his anguish, is wholly appropriate. This is also supported grammatically and stylistically: The phrase ὁ ὢν Jo wn

§§‡ tn: Grk "For not all those who are from Israel are Israel." §§§ tn: Grk "be called." The emphasis here is upon God's divine sovereignty in choosing Isaac as the child through whom Abraham's lineage would be counted as opposed to Ishmael. sn: A quotation from Gen 21:12. <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "That is," or "That is to say." <sup>19</sup> tn: Because it forms the counterpoint to "the children of promise" the expression "children of the flesh" has been retained in the translation. sn: The expression the children of the flesh refers to the natural offspring. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "For this is the word of promise." <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "About this time I will return." Since this refers to the time when the promised child would be born, it would be approximately a year later. <sup>22</sup> sn: A quotation from Gen 18:10, 14. <sup>23</sup> tn: Or possibly "by one act of sexual intercourse." See D. Moo, Romans (NICNT), 579. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "God's purpose according to election." <sup>25</sup> tn: Or "not based on works but based on..." <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "by the one who calls." sn: The entire clause is something of a parenthetical remark. <sup>27</sup> sn: Many translations place this verse division before the phrase "not by works but by his calling" (NA 27 4

on God who shows mercy. <sup>17</sup> For the scripture says to Pharaoh: † "For this very purpose I have raised you up, that I may demonstrate my power in you, and that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth." <sup>††18</sup> So then, ‡ God†† has mercy on whom he chooses to have mercy, and he hardens whom he chooses to harden. ‡‡

<sup>19</sup> You will say to me then, "Why does he still find fault? For who has ever resisted his will?" <sup>20</sup> But who indeed are you – a mere human being‡‡† – to talk back to God? ‡‡‡ Does what is molded say to the molder, "Why have you made me like this?" <sup>§21</sup> Has the potter no right to make from the same lump of clay§† one vessel for special use and another for ordinary use? <sup>§††22</sup> But what if God, willing to demonstrate his wrath and to make known his power, has endured with much patience the objects§† of wrath§†† prepared for destruction? <sup>§††23</sup> And what if he is willing to make known the wealth of his glory on the objects§† of mercy that he has prepared beforehand for glory – <sup>24</sup> even us, whom he has called, not only from the Jews but also from the Gentiles? <sup>25</sup> As he also says in Hosea:

Israel's Rejection Culpable

<sup>30</sup> What shall we say then? – that the Gentiles who did not pursue righteousness obtained it, that is, a righteousness that is by faith, <sup>31</sup> but Israel even though pursuing<sup>24</sup> a law of righteousness<sup>25</sup> did not attain it. <sup>2632</sup> Why not? Because they pursued<sup>27</sup> it not by faith but (as if it were possible) by works. <sup>28</sup> They stumbled over the stumbling stone, <sup>2933</sup> just as it is written, "Look, I am laying in Zion a stone that will cause people to stumble and a rock that will make them fall,<sup>30</sup> yet the one who believes in him will not be put to shame." <sup>31</sup> <sup>32</sup>

The addition, in the middle of the sentence, makes the whole verse read as follows: "For he will execute his sentence completely and quickly in righteousness, because the Lord will do it quickly on the earth." The shorter reading is found largely in Alexandrian MSS 46 κ is for their salvation.<sup>2</sup> For I can testify that they are zealous for God,† but their zeal is not in line with the truth.<sup>††3</sup> For ignoring the righteousness that comes from God, and seeking instead to establish their own righteousness, they did not submit to God's righteousness.<sup>4</sup> For Christ is the end of the law, with the result that there is righteousness for everyone who believes.

<sup>5</sup> For Moses writes about the righteousness that is by the law: "The one who does these things will live by them."<sup>†6</sup> But the righteousness that is by faith says: "Do not say in your heart,†† 'Who will ascend into heaven?'††† (that is, to bring Christ down)<sup>7</sup> or "Who will descend into the abyss?"††† (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead).<sup>8</sup> But what does it say? "The word is near you, in your mouth and in your heart"††† (that is, the word of faith that we preach),<sup>9</sup> because if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord§ and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved.<sup>10</sup> For with the heart one believes and thus has righteousness§† and with the mouth one confesses and thus has salvation.<sup>§††11</sup> For the scripture says, "Everyone who believes in him will not be put to shame."<sup>§††12</sup> For there is no distinction between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord is Lord of all, who richly blesses all who call on him.<sup>13</sup> For everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.§††

<sup>14</sup> How are they to call on one they have not believed in? And how are they to believe in one they have not heard of? And how are they to hear without someone preaching to them§†?<sup>15</sup> And how are they to preach unless they are sent? As it is written, "How timely§† is the arrival§§† of those who proclaim the good news*." <sup>§§†16</sup> But not all have obeyed the good news, for Isaiah says, "Lord, who has believed our report?" <sup>§§§17</sup> Consequently faith comes from what is heard, and what is heard comes through the preached word<sup>18</sup> of Christ.<sup>19</sup>

<sup>18</sup> But I ask, have they<sup>20</sup> not heard?<sup>21</sup> Yes, they have:<sup>22</sup> Their voice has gone out to all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.<sup>2319</sup> But again I ask, didn't Israel understand?<sup>24</sup> First Moses says, "I will make you jealous by those who are not a nation; with a senseless nation I will provoke you to anger."<sup>2520</sup> And Isaiah is even bold enough to say, "I was found by those who did not seek me; I became well known to those who did not ask for me."<sup>2621</sup> But about Israel he says, "All day long I held out my hands to this disobedient and stubborn people!"<sup>27</sup>

11 So I ask, God has not rejected his people, has he? Absolutely not! 11 I ask then, they did not stumble into an irrevocable fall, ‡ did they? Absolutely not! But by their transgression salvation has come to the Gentiles, to make Israel†† jealous. 12 Now if their transgression means riches for the world and their defeat means riches for the Gentiles, how much more will their full restoration‡‡ bring?

13 Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. Seeing that I am an apostle to the Gentiles, I magnify my ministry, 14 if somehow I could provoke my people to jealousy and save some of them. 15 For if their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead? 16 If the first portion‡‡‡ of the dough offered is holy, then the whole batch is holy, and if the root is holy, so too are the branches. ‡‡‡

17 Now if some of the branches were broken off, and you, a wild olive shoot, were grafted in among them and participated in§ the richness of the olive root, 18 do not boast over the branches. But if you boast, remember that you do not support the root, but the root supports you. 19 Then you will say, “The branches were broken off so that I could be grafted in.” 20 Granted. †† They were broken off because of their unbelief, but you stand by faith. Do not be arrogant, but fear! 21 For if God did not spare the natural branches, perhaps he will not spare you. 22 Notice therefore the kindness and harshness of God – harshness toward those who have fallen, but§†† God’s kindness toward you, provided you continue in his kindness; §† otherwise you also will be cut off. 23 And even they – if they do not continue in their unbelief – will be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again. 24 For if you were cut off from what is by nature a wild olive tree, and grafted, contrary to nature, into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these natural branches be grafted back into their own olive tree?

25 For I do not want you to be ignorant of this mystery, brothers and sisters, §†† so that you may not be conceited: A partial hardening has happened to Israel†† until the full number§‡ of the Gentiles has come in. 26 And so§§† all Israel will be saved, as it is written:

See ExSyn 618-19. <sup>sn</sup>: Taken as predicate adjectives, the terms alive, holy, and pleasing are showing how unusual is the sacrifice that believers can now offer, for OT sacrifices were dead. As has often been quipped about this text, “The problem with living sacrifices is that they keep crawling off the altar.” ‡ tn: Although συσχηματίζεσθε suschmatizesqe in harmony with one another, do not be haughty but associate with the lowly. §†† Do not be conceited. <sup>§†††</sup> Do not repay anyone evil for evil; consider what is good before all people. <sup>§††††</sup> If possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with all people. <sup>§†††††</sup> Do not avenge yourselves, dear friends, but give place to God’s wrath, §† for it is written, “Vengeance is mine, I will repay,” §§† says the Lord. <sup>20</sup> Rather, if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him a drink; for in doing this you will be heaping burning coals on his head. <sup>§§†††</sup> Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

‡‡‡ tn: The words “of you” have been supplied for clarity. <sup>‡‡‡‡</sup> tn: Or “to each as God has distributed a measure of faith.” § tn: This word comes from the same root as “grace” in the following clause; it means “things graciously given,” “grace-gifts.” §† tn: The verb “must be” is understood in the Greek text.

13 Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except by God’s appointment,§§§ and the authorities that exist have been instituted by God. <sup>2</sup> So the person who resists such authority<sup>18</sup> resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will incur judgment<sup>3</sup> (for rulers cause no fear for good conduct but for bad). Do you desire not to fear authority? Do good and you will receive its commendation, <sup>4</sup> for it is God’s servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be in fear, for it does not bear the sword in vain. It is God’s servant to administer retribution on the wrongdoer. <sup>5</sup> Therefore it is necessary to be in subjection, not only because of the wrath of the authorities<sup>19</sup> but also because of your conscience. <sup>20</sup> For this reason you also pay taxes, for the authorities<sup>21</sup> are God’s servants devoted to governing. <sup>22</sup> Pay everyone what is owed: taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due, respect to whom respect is due, honor to whom honor is due.

Exhortation to Love Neighbors

§† tn: Here ἄνθρωπος anqrwpo §† tn: Grk “the wrath,” referring to God’s wrath as the remainder of the verse shows. §§† sn: A quotation from Deut 32:35. §§† sn: A quotation from Prov 25:21-22. §§§ tn: Grk “by God.” <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk “the authority,” referring to the authority just described. <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk “its wrath”; the referent (the governing authorities) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk “because of (the) conscience,” but the English possessive “your” helps to show whose conscience the context implies. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk “they”; the referent (the governing authorities) has been specified in the translation for clarity. <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk “devoted to this very thing.” <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk “For the...” (with the word “commandments” supplied for clarity). The Greek article (“the”) is used here as a substantiver to introduce the commands that are quoted from the second half of the Decalogue (ExSyn 238). <sup>24</sup> sn: A quotation from Exod 20:13-15, 17; Deut 5:17-19, 21.

Motivation to Godly Conduct

<sup>11</sup> And do this†† because we know# the time, that it is already the hour for us to awake from sleep, for our salvation is now nearer than when we became believers. <sup>12</sup> The night has advanced toward dawn; the day is near. So then we must lay aside the works of darkness, and put on the weapons of light. <sup>13</sup> Let us live decently as in the daytime, not in carousing and drunkenness, not in sexual immorality and sensuality, not in discord and jealousy. <sup>14</sup> Instead, put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh to arouse its desires. ‡†

14 Now receive the one who is weak in the faith, and do not have disputes over differing opinions. ‡‡ One person believes in eating everything, but the weak person eats only vegetables. <sup>3</sup> The one who eats everything must not despise the one who does not, and the one who abstains must not judge the one who eats everything, for God has accepted him. <sup>4</sup> Who are you to pass judgment on another's servant? Before his own master he stands or falls. And he will stand, for the Lord‡‡† is able to make him stand.

<sup>5</sup> One person regards one day holier than other days, and another regards them all alike.‡‡‡ Each must be fully convinced in his own mind. <sup>6</sup> The one who observes the day does it for the Lord. The<sup>s</sup> one who eats, eats for the Lord because he gives thanks to God, and the one who abstains from eating abstains for the Lord, and he gives thanks to God. <sup>7</sup> For none of us lives for himself and none dies for himself. <sup>8</sup> If we live, we live for the Lord; if we die, we die for the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we are the Lord's. <sup>9</sup> For this reason Christ died and returned to life, so that he may be the Lord of both the dead and the living.

<sup>10</sup> But you who eat vegetables only – why do you judge your brother or sister? §† And you who eat everything – why do you despise your brother or sister? §††

† sn: A quotation from Lev 19:18. †† tn: Grk "and this," probably referring to the command to love ( 13:8-10); hence, "do" is implied from the previous verses. ‡ tn: The participle εἰδότες eídotes

For we will all stand before the judgment seat §† of God. <sup>11</sup> For it is written, "As I live, says the Lord, every knee will bow to me, and every tongue will give praise to God." <sup>§††12</sup> Therefore, each of us will give an account of himself to God. §†

Exhortation for the Strong not to Destroy the Weak

<sup>13</sup> Therefore we must not pass judgment on one another, but rather determine never to place an obstacle or a trap before a brother or sister. <sup>§†14</sup> I know and am convinced in the Lord Jesus that there is nothing unclean in itself, still, it is unclean to the one who considers it unclean. <sup>15</sup> For if your brother or sister§§† is distressed because of what you eat, §§† you are no longer walking in love. §§§ Do not destroy by your food someone for whom Christ died. <sup>16</sup> Therefore do not let what you consider good<sup>18</sup> be spoken of as evil. <sup>17</sup> For the kingdom of God does not consist of food and drink, but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit. <sup>18</sup> For the one who serves Christ in this way is pleasing to God and approved by people. <sup>19</sup>

<sup>19</sup> So then, let us pursue what makes for peace and for building up one another. <sup>20</sup> Do not destroy the work of God for the sake of food. For although all things are clean, <sup>20</sup> it is wrong to cause anyone to stumble by what you eat. <sup>21</sup> It is good not to eat meat or drink wine or to do anything that causes your brother to stumble. <sup>2122</sup> The faith<sup>22</sup> you have, keep to yourself before God. Blessed is the one who does not judge himself by what he approves. <sup>23</sup> But the man who doubts is condemned if he eats, because he does not do so from faith, and whatever is not from faith is sin. †

15 But we who are strong ought to bear with the failings of the weak, and not just please ourselves. <sup>††2</sup> Let each of us please his neighbor for his good to build him up. <sup>3</sup> For even Christ did not please himself, but just as it is written, "The insults of those who insult you have fallen on me." <sup>††4</sup> For everything that was written in former times was written for our instruction, so that through endurance and through encouragement of the scriptures we may have hope. <sup>5</sup> Now may the God of endurance and comfort give you unity with one another†† in accordance with Christ Jesus, <sup>6</sup> so that together you may with one voice glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Exhortation to Mutual Acceptance

<sup>7</sup> Receive one another, then, just as Christ also received you, to God's glory. <sup>8</sup> For I tell you that Christ has become a servant of the circumcised†† on behalf of God's truth to confirm the promises made to the fathers, <sup>†††9</sup> and thus the Gentiles glorify God for his mercy. ††† As it is written, "Because of this I will confess you among the Gentiles, and I will sing praises to your name." <sup>§10</sup> And again it says: "Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people." <sup>§†11</sup> And again, "Praise the Lord all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples praise him." <sup>§††12</sup> And again Isaiah says, "The root of Jesse will come, and the one who rises to rule over the Gentiles, in him will the Gentiles hope." <sup>§†13</sup> Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you believe in him, §†† so that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Paul's Motivation for Writing the Letter

<sup>14</sup> But I myself am fully convinced about you, my brothers and sisters, §† that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. <sup>15</sup> But I have written more boldly to you on some points so as to remind you, because of the grace given to me by God<sup>†16</sup> to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles. I serve§† the gospel of God§§† like a priest, so that the Gentiles may become an acceptable offering, §§† sanctified by the Holy Spirit. <sup>17</sup> So I boast§§§ in Christ Jesus about the things that pertain to God. <sup>18</sup> For I will not dare to speak of anything except what Christ has accomplished through me in order to bring about the obedience<sup>18</sup> of the Gentiles, by word and deed, <sup>19</sup> in the power of signs and wonders, in the power of the Spirit of God. So from Jerusalem even as far as Illyricum I have fully preached the gospel of Christ. <sup>20</sup> And in this way I desire to preach where Christ has not been named, so as not to build on another person's foundation, <sup>21</sup> but as it is written: "Those who were not told about him will see, and those who have not heard will understand." <sup>19</sup>

Paul's Intention of Visiting the Romans

<sup>22</sup> This is the reason I was often hindered from coming to you. <sup>23</sup> But now there is nothing more to keep me† in these regions, and I have for many years desired†† to come to you<sup>24</sup> when I go to Spain. For I hope to visit you when I pass through and that you will help me‡ on my journey there, after I have enjoyed your company for a while.

<sup>25</sup> But now I go to Jerusalem to minister to the saints. <sup>26</sup> For Macedonia and Achaia are pleased to make some contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. <sup>27</sup> For they were pleased to do this, and indeed they are indebted to the Jerusalem saints. ‡† For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they are obligated also to minister to them in material things. <sup>28</sup> Therefore after I have completed this and have safely delivered this bounty to them, ‡† I will set out for Spain by way of you, <sup>29</sup> and I know that when I come to you I will come in the fullness of Christ's blessing.

<sup>30</sup> Now I urge you, brothers and sisters, ‡†† through our Lord Jesus Christ and through the love of the Spirit, to join fervently with me in prayer to God on my behalf. <sup>31</sup> Pray‡†† that I may be rescued from those who are disobedient in Judea and that my ministry in Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints, <sup>32</sup> so that by God's will I may come to you with joy and be refreshed in your company. <sup>33</sup> Now may the God of peace be with all of you. §†† sn: On Prisca and Aquila see also Acts 18:2, 18, 26; 1 Cor 16:19; 2 Tim 4:19. In the NT "Priscilla" and "Prisca" are the same person. The author of Acts uses the full name Priscilla, while Paul uses the diminutive form Prisca. §† sn: The spelling Epenetus is also used by NIV, NLT; the name is alternately spelled Epaenetus (NASB, NKJV, NRSV). §†† tn: Grk "first fruit." This is a figurative use referring to Epenetus as the first Christian convert in the region. §† tn: Grk "Asia"; in the NT this always refers to the Roman province of Asia, made up of about one-third of the west and southwest end of modern Asia Minor. Asia lay to the west of the region of Phrygia and Galatia. The words "the province of" are supplied to indicate to the modern reader that this does not refer to the continent of Asia.

§† tn: Or "Junias." sn: The feminine name Junia, though common in Latin, is quite rare in Greek (apparently only three instances of it occur in Greek literature outside Rom 16:7, according to the data in the TLG [D. Moo, Romans [NICNT], 922]). The masculine Junias (as a contraction for Junianas), however, is rarer still: Only one instance of the masculine name is known in extant Greek literature (Epiphanius mentions Junias in his Index discipulorum 125). Further, since there are apparently other husband-wife teams mentioned in this salutation (Prisca and Aquila [v. 3], Philologus and Julia [v. 15]), it might be natural to think of Junia as a feminine name. (This ought not be pressed too far, however, for in v. 12 all three individuals are women [though the first two are linked together], and in vv. 9-11 all the individuals are men.) In Greek only a difference of accent distinguishes between Junias (male) and Junia (female). If it refers to a woman, it is possible (1) that she had the gift of apostleship (not the office), or (2) that she was not an apostle but along with Andronicus was esteemed by (or among) the apostles. As well, the term "prominent" probably means "well known," suggesting that Andronicus and Junia(s) were well known to the apostles (see note on the phrase "well known" which follows). §§† tn: Or "kinsmen," "relatives," "fellow countrymen." <sup>§§††</sup> tn: Or "prominent, outstanding, famous." ## Salutation

1 From Paul, † called to be an apostle of Christ Jesus†† by the will of God, and Sosthenes, our brother,<sup>2</sup> to the church of God that is in Corinth, ‡ to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, and called to be saints, with all those in every place who call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their Lord and ours. †‡

Has God not made the wisdom of the world foolish? <sup>21</sup> For since in the wisdom of God the world by its wisdom did not know God, God was pleased to save those who believe by the foolishness of preaching. <sup>22</sup> For Jews demand miraculous signs and Greeks ask for wisdom, <sup>23</sup> but we preach about a crucified Christ, ‡ a stumbling block to Jews and foolishness to Gentiles. <sup>24</sup> But to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ is the power of God and the wisdom of God. <sup>25</sup> For the foolishness of God is wiser than human wisdom, †† and the weakness of God is stronger than human strength. ‡‡

Wisdom from God

<sup>6</sup> Now we do speak wisdom among the mature, §§§ but not a wisdom of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are perishing. <sup>7</sup> Instead we speak the wisdom of God, hidden in a mystery, that God determined before the ages for our glory. <sup>8</sup> None of the rulers of this age understood it. If they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. <sup>9</sup> But just as it is written, "Things that no eye has seen, or ear heard, or mind imagined, <sup>18</sup> are the things God has prepared for those who love him." <sup>1910</sup> God has revealed these to us by the Spirit. For the Spirit searches all things, even the deep things of God. <sup>11</sup> For who among men knows the things of a man except the man's spirit within him? So too, no one knows the things of God except the Spirit of God. <sup>12</sup> Now we have not received the spirit of the world, but the Spirit who is from God, so that we may know the things that are freely given to us by God. <sup>13</sup> And we speak about these things, not with words taught us by human wisdom, but with those taught by the Spirit, explaining spiritual things to spiritual people. <sup>2014</sup> The unbeliever <sup>21</sup> does not receive the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him. And he cannot understand them, because they are spiritually discerned. <sup>15</sup> The one who is spiritual discerns <sup>22</sup> all things, yet he himself is understood <sup>23</sup> by no one. <sup>16</sup> For who has

You have become kings without us! I wish you had become kings so that we could reign with you! <sup>9</sup> For, I think, God has exhibited us apostles last of all, as men condemned to die, because we have become a spectacle to the world, both to angels and to people. <sup>10</sup> We are fools for Christ, but you are wise in Christ! The first option suggests the Lord's power is needed when the church is to hand the man over to Satan; the second option suggests that the Lord's power is present when Paul is gathered with the Corinthians in spirit; the third option leaves the relation of the Lord's power to the surrounding phrases vague, perhaps implying that both are in view. §‡ tn: Or perhaps "turn this man over to Satan for the destruction of your fleshly works, so that your spirit may be saved..."; Grk "for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved." This is one of the most difficult passages in the NT, and there are many different interpretations regarding what is in view here. (1) Many interpreters see this as some sort of excommunication ("turn this man over to Satan") which in turn leads to the man's physical death ("the destruction of the flesh"), resulting in the man's ultimate salvation ("that [his] spirit may be saved..."). (2) Others see the phrase "destruction of the flesh" as referring to extreme physical suffering or illness that stops short of physical death, thus

(4) More recently some have argued that neither the “flesh” nor the “spirit” belong to the offender, but to the church collectively; thus it is the “fleshly works” of the congregation which are being destroyed by the removal of the offender (cf. 5:13) so that the “spirit,” the corporate life of the church lived in union with God through the Holy Spirit, may be preserved (cf. 5:7-8). Paul agrees with the slogans in part, but corrects them to show how the Corinthians have misused these ideas. ‡ tn: Grk "both this [stomach] and these [foods]." sn: There is debate as to the extent of the Corinthian slogan which Paul quotes here. Some argue that the slogan is only the first sentence – "Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food" – with the second statement forming Paul's rejoinder, while others argue that the slogan contains both sentences (as in the translation above). The argument which favors the latter is the tight conceptual and grammatical parallelism which occurs if Paul's response begins with "The body is not for sexual immorality" and then continues through the end of v. 14. For discussion and diagrams of this structure, see G. D. Fee, First Corinthians (NICNT), 253-57. †† tn: Or "is in relationship with." ††† tn: Grk "is one body," implying the association "with her." †††† sn: A quotation from Gen 2:24. †††† tn: Grk "in relationship with." § tn: Grk "is one spirit," implying the association "with him." §† sn: It is debated whether this is a Corinthian slogan. If it is not, then Paul is essentially arguing that there are two types of sin, nonsexual sins which take place outside the body and sexual sins which are against a person's very own body. If it is a Corinthian slogan, then it is a slogan used by the Corinthians to justify their immoral behavior. With it they are claiming that anything done in the body or through the body had no moral relevance. A decision here is very difficult, but the latter is to be preferred for two main reasons. (1) This is the most natural understanding of the statement as it is written. To construe it as a statement by Paul requires a substantial clarification in the sense (e.g., "All other sins..." [NIV]). (2) Theologically the former is more difficult: Why would Paul single out sexual sins as more intrinsically related to the body than other sins, such as gluttony or drunkenness? For these reasons, it is more likely that the phrase in quotation marks is indeed a Corinthian slogan which Paul turns

For discussion see G. D. Fee, First Corinthians (NICNT), 275. Many recent interpreters believe that here again (as in 6:12-13) Paul cites a slogan the Corinthians apparently used to justify their actions. If this is so, Paul agrees with the slogan in part, but corrects it in the following verses to show how the Corinthians misused the idea to justify abstinence within marriage (cf. 8:1, 4; 10:23). See also G. D. Fee, "1 Corinthians 7:1 in the NIV," JETS 23 (1980): 307-14. §††† tn: Grk "each man should have his own wife." The Circumstances of Your Calling <sup>17</sup> Nevertheless, ‡‡† as the Lord has assigned to each one, as God has called each person, so must he live. I give this sort of direction in all the churches. <sup>18</sup> Was anyone called after he had been circumcised? ‡ sn: Interpreters differ over the implication of the statement the brother or sister is not bound. One view is that the believer is "not bound to continue the marriage," i.e., not so slavishly tied to the instruction about not divorcing (cf. vv. 10-11) that he or she refuses to face reality when the unbelieving spouse is unwilling to continue the relationship. In this view divorce is allowable under these circumstances, but not remarriage (v. 11 still applies: remain unmarried or be reconciled). The other view is that the believer is "not bound in regard to marriage," i.e., free to remain single or to remarry. The argument for this view is the conceptual parallel with vv. 39-40, where a wife is said to be "bound" (a different word in Greek, but the same concept) as long as her husband lives. But if the husband dies, she is "free" to marry as she wishes, only in the Lord. If the parallel holds, then not bound in v. 15 also means "free to marry another." ‡† tn: Grk "will save your husband?" The meaning is obviously that the wife would be the human agent in leading her husband to salvation. ‡‡ tn: Grk "will save your wife?" The meaning is obviously that the husband would be the human agent in leading his wife to salvation. ‡‡† tn: Or "only"; Grk "if not." ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "Let him not pull over the foreskin," that is, attempt to reverse the appearance of circumcision by a surgical procedure. ments is what counts. <sup>20</sup> Let each one remain in that situation in life<sup>s</sup> in which he was called. <sup>21</sup> Were you called as a slave? ‡† Do not worry about it. But if indeed you are able to be free, make the most of the opportunity. <sup>22</sup> For the one who was called in the Lord as a slave is the Lord's freedman. In the same way, the one who was called as a free person is Christ's slave. <sup>23</sup> You were bought with a price. Do not become slaves of men. <sup>24</sup> In whatever situation someone was called, brothers and sisters, ‡†† let him remain in it with God.

Remaining Unmarried

<sup>25</sup> With regard to the question about people who have never married, ‡† I have no command from the Lord, but I give my opinion as one shown mercy by the Lord to be trustworthy. <sup>26</sup> Because of the impending crisis I think it best for you to remain as you are. <sup>27</sup> The one bound to a wife should not seek divorce. The one released from a wife should not seek marriage. <sup>‡††28</sup> But if you marry, you have not sinned. And if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. But those who marry will face difficult circumstances, ‡† and I am trying to spare you such problems. <sup>‡†29</sup> And I say this, brothers and sisters: ‡‡† The time is short. So then those who have wives should be as those who have none, <sup>30</sup> those with tears like those not weeping, those who rejoice like those not rejoicing, those who buy like those without possessions, <sup>31</sup> those who use the world as though they were not using it to the full. An unmarried woman† or a virgin†† is concerned about the things of the Lord, to be holy both in body and spirit. But a married woman is concerned about the things of the world, how to please her husband. <sup>35</sup> I am saying this for your benefit, not to place a limitation on you, but so that without distraction you may give notable and constant service to the Lord.

<sup>36</sup> If anyone thinks he is acting inappropriately toward his virgin, ‡ if she is past the bloom of youth†† and it seems necessary, he should do what he wishes; he does not sin. Let them marry. <sup>37</sup> But the man who is firm in his commitment, and is under no necessity but has control over his will, and has decided in his own mind to keep his own virgin, does well. <sup>38</sup> So then, the one who marries‡‡ his own virgin does well, but the one who does not, does better. ‡‡†

7 But this knowledge is not shared by all. And some, by being accustomed to idols in former times, eat this food as an idol sacrifice, and their conscience, because it is weak, is defiled. 8 Now food will not bring us close to God. We are no worse if we do not eat and no better if we do. 9 But be careful that this liberty of yours does not become a hindrance to the weak. 10 For if someone weak sees you who possess knowledge dining in an idol's temple, will not his conscience be "strengthened" †† to eat food offered to idols? 11 So by your knowledge the weak brother or sister, ‡ for whom Christ died, is destroyed. ††12 If you sin against your brothers or sisters‡ in this way and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ. 13 For this reason, if food causes my brother or sister to sin, I will never eat meat again, so that I may not cause one of them‡ to sin.

Throughout this unit of material, Paul points out the similarities of long hair with a head covering. But his doing so seems to suggest that the two are not to be identified with each other. Do this in remembrance of me." <sup>25</sup> In the same way, he also took the cup after supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, every time you drink it, in remembrance of me." <sup>26</sup> For every time you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes.

<sup>27</sup> For this reason, whoever eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. <sup>28</sup> A person should examine himself first,†† and in this way‡ let him eat the bread and drink of the cup. <sup>29</sup> For the one who eats and drinks without careful regard‡† for the body eats and drinks judgment against himself. <sup>30</sup> That is why many of you are weak and sick, and quite a few are dead. <sup>31</sup> But if we examined ourselves, we would not be judged. <sup>32</sup> But when we are judged by the Lord, we are disciplined so that we may not be condemned with the world. <sup>33</sup> So then, my brothers and sisters,‡‡ when you come together to eat, wait for one another. <sup>34</sup> If anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, so that when you assemble it does not lead to judgment. I will give directions about other matters when I come.

You know that when you were pagans you were often led astray by speechless idols, however you were led. <sup>3</sup> So I want you to understand that no one speaking by the Spirit of God says, "Jesus is cursed," and no one can say, "Jesus is Lord," except by the Holy Spirit.

<sup>4</sup> Now there are different gifts, but the same Spirit. <sup>5</sup> And there are different ministries, but the same Lord. <sup>6</sup> And there are different results, but the same God who produces all of them in everyone. <sup>7</sup> To each person the manifestation of the Spirit is given for the benefit of all. <sup>8</sup> For one person is given through the Spirit the message of wisdom, and another the message of knowledge according to the same Spirit, <sup>9</sup> to another faith by the same Spirit, and to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, <sup>10</sup> to another performance of miracles, to another prophecy, and to another discernment of spirits, to another different kinds of tongues, and to another the interpretation of tongues. <sup>11</sup> It is one and the same Spirit, distributing as he decides to each person, who produces all these things.

Different Members in One Body

<sup>12</sup> For just as the body is one and yet has many members, and all the members of the body – though many – are one body, so too is Christ. <sup>13</sup> For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body. Whether Jews or Greeks or slaves§†† or free, we were all made to drink of the one Spirit. <sup>14</sup> For in fact the body is not a single member, but many. <sup>15</sup> If the foot says, "Since I am not a hand, I am not part of the body," it does not lose its membership in the body because of that. <sup>16</sup> And if the ear says, "Since I am not an eye, I am not part of the body," it does not lose its membership in the body because of that. <sup>17</sup> If the whole body were an eye, what part would do the hearing? If the whole were an ear, what part would exercise the sense of smell? <sup>18</sup> But as a matter of fact, God has placed each of the members in the body just as he decided. <sup>19</sup> If they were all the same member, where would the body be? <sup>20</sup> So now there are many members, but one body. <sup>21</sup> The eye cannot say to the hand, "I do not need you," nor in turn can the head say to the foot, "I do not need you." <sup>22</sup> On the contrary, those members that seem to be weaker are essential, <sup>23</sup> and those members we consider less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our unrepresentable members are clothed with dignity,<sup>§†24</sup> but our representable members do not need this. Instead, God has blended together the body, giving greater honor to the lesser member, <sup>25</sup> so that there may be no division in the body, but the members may have mutual concern for one another. <sup>26</sup> If one member suffers, everyone suffers with it. If a† member is honored, all rejoice with it.

<sup>27</sup> Now you are Christ's body, and each of you is a member of it. <sup>28</sup> And God has placed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, then miracles, gifts of healing, helps, gifts of leadership, different kinds of tongues. <sup>29</sup> Not all are apostles, are they? Not all are prophets, are they? Not all are teachers, are they? Not all perform miracles, do they? <sup>30</sup> Not all have gifts of healing, do they? Not all speak in tongues, do they? Not all interpret, do they? <sup>††31</sup> But you should be eager for the greater gifts.

And now I will show you a way that is beyond comparison. ‡

13 If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but I do not have love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. <sup>2</sup> And if I have prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith so that I can remove mountains, but do not have love, I am nothing. <sup>3</sup> If I give away everything I own, and if I give over my body in order to boast, †† but do not have love, I receive no benefit.

<sup>4</sup> Love is patient, love is kind, it is not envious. Love does not brag, it is not puffed up. <sup>5</sup> It is not rude, it is not self-serving, it is not easily angered or resentful. <sup>6</sup> It is not glad about injustice, but rejoices in the truth. <sup>7</sup> It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

<sup>8</sup> Love never ends. But if there are prophecies, they will be set aside; if there are tongues, they will cease; if there is knowledge, it will be set aside. <sup>9</sup> For we know in part, and we prophesy in part, <sup>10</sup> but when what is perfect‡ comes, the partial will be set aside. <sup>11</sup> When I was a child, I talked like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. But when I became an adult, ††† I set aside childish ways. <sup>12</sup> For now we see in a mirror indirectly, ††† but then we will see face to face. Now I know in part, but then I will know fully, just as I have been fully known. <sup>13</sup> And now these three remain : faith, hope, and love. But the greatest of these is love.

14 Pursue love and be eager for the spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy. <sup>2</sup> For the one speaking in a tongue does not speak to people but to God, for no one understands; he is speaking mysteries by the Spirit. <sup>3</sup> But the one who prophesies speaks to people for their strengthening, §† encouragement, and consolation. <sup>4</sup> The one who speaks in a tongue builds himself up, §†† but the one who prophesies builds up the church. <sup>5</sup> I wish you all spoke in tongues, but even more that you would prophesy. The one who prophesies is greater than the one who speaks in tongues, unless he interprets so that the church may be strengthened.

<sup>6</sup> Now, brothers and sisters, §‡ if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I help you unless I speak to you with a revelation or with knowledge or prophecy or teaching? <sup>7</sup> It is similar for lifeless things that make a sound, like a flute or harp. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "we are seeing through [= using] a mirror by means of a dark image." Corinth was well known in the ancient world for producing some of the finest bronze mirrors available. Paul's point in this analogy, then, is not that our current understanding and relationship with God is distorted (as if the mirror reflected poorly), but rather that it is "indirect," (i.e., the nature of looking in a mirror) compared to the relationship we will enjoy with him in the future when we see him "face to face" (cf. G. D. Fee, First Corinthians [NICNT], 648). The word "indirectly" translates the Greek phrase ἐν αἰνίγματι ejn ainigmati inction in the notes, how can what is played on the flute or harp be understood? <sup>8</sup> If, for example, the trumpet makes an unclear sound, who will get ready for battle? <sup>9</sup> It is the same for you. If you do not speak clearly with your tongue, how will anyone know what is being said? For you will be speaking into the air. <sup>10</sup> There are probably many kinds of languages in the world, and none is without meaning. <sup>11</sup> If then I do not know the meaning of a language, I will be a foreigner to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner to me. <sup>12</sup> It is the same with you. Since you are eager for manifestations of the Spirit, † seek to abound in order to strengthen the church.

<sup>13</sup> So then, one who speaks in a tongue should pray that he may interpret. <sup>14</sup> If†† I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my mind is unproductive. <sup>15</sup> What should I do?‡ I will pray with my spirit, but I will also pray with my mind. I will sing praises with my spirit, but I will also sing praises with my mind. <sup>16</sup> Otherwise, if you are praising God with your spirit, how can someone without the gift†† say "Amen" to your thanksgiving, since he does not know what you are saying? <sup>17</sup> For you are certainly giving thanks well, but the other person is not strengthened. <sup>18</sup> I thank God that I speak in tongues more than all of you, <sup>19</sup> but in the church I want to speak five words with my mind to instruct others, rather than ten thousand words in a tongue.

<sup>20</sup> Brothers and sisters, ‡‡ do not be children in your thinking. Instead, be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature. <sup>21</sup> It is written in the law: "By people with strange tongues and by the lips of strangers I will speak to this people, yet not even in this way will they listen to me,"††† says the Lord. <sup>22</sup> So then, tongues are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers. Prophecy, however, is not for unbelievers but for believers. <sup>23</sup> So if the whole church comes together and all speak in tongues, and unbelievers or uninformed people enter, will they not say that you have lost your minds? <sup>24</sup> But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or uninformed person enters, he will be convicted by all, he will be called to account by all. <sup>25</sup> The secrets of his heart are disclosed, and in this way he will fall down with his face to the ground and worship God, declaring, "God is really among you."

Church Order

<sup>26</sup> What should you do then, brothers and sisters? ‡‡‡ When you come together, each one has a song, has a lesson, has a revelation, has a tongue, has an interpretation. Let all these things be done for the strengthening of the church. <sup>27</sup> If someone speaks in a tongue, it should be two, or at the most three, one after the other, and someone must interpret. <sup>28</sup> But if there is no interpreter, he should be silent in the church. Let him speak to himself and to God. <sup>29</sup> Two or three prophets should speak and the others should evaluate what is said. <sup>30</sup> And if someone sitting down receives a revelation, the person who is speaking should conclude. <sup>31</sup> For you can all prophesy one after another, so all can learn and be encouraged. <sup>32</sup> Indeed, the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets, <sup>33</sup> for God is not characterized by disorder but by peace.

As in all the churches of the saints, §§§ the women§† should be silent in the churches, for they are not permitted to speak. §†† Rather, let them be in submission, as in fact the law says. <sup>35</sup> If they want to find out about something, they should ask their husbands at home, because it is disgraceful for a woman to speak in ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "brothers." See note on the phrase "brothers and sisters" in 1:10. § sn: This phrase may be taken with v. 33a. §† tn: The word for "woman" and "wife" is the same in Greek. Because of the reference to husbands in v. 35, the word may be translated "wives" here. But in passages governing conduct in church meetings like this (cf. 11:2-16; 1 Tim 2:9-15) the general meaning "women" is more likely. §†† sn: For they are not permitted to speak. In light of 11:2-16, which gives permission for women to pray or prophesy in the church meetings, the silence commanded here seems not to involve the absolute prohibition of a woman addressing the assembly. Therefore (1) some take be silent to mean not taking an authoritative teaching role as 1 Tim 2 indicates, but (2) the better suggestion is to relate it to the preceding regulations about evaluating the prophets (v. 29). Here Paul would be indicating that the women should not speak up during such an evaluation, since such questioning would be in violation of the submission to male leadership that the OT calls for (the law, e.g., Gen 2:18).

No Resurrection?

<sup>12</sup> Now if Christ is being preached as raised from the dead, † how can some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead? <sup>13</sup> But if there is no resurrection of the dead, then not even Christ has been raised. <sup>14</sup> And if Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is futile and your faith is empty. <sup>15</sup> Also, we are found to be false witnesses about God, because we have testified against God that he raised Christ from the dead, when in reality he did not raise him, if indeed the dead are not raised. <sup>16</sup> For if the dead are not raised, then not even Christ has been raised. <sup>17</sup> And if Christ has not been raised, your faith is useless; you are still in your sins. <sup>18</sup> Furthermore, those who have fallen asleep†† in Christ have also perished. <sup>19</sup> For if only in this life we have hope in Christ, we should be pitied more than anyone.

<sup>20</sup> But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep. <sup>21</sup> For since death came through a man, ‡ the resurrection of the dead also came through a man. ††<sup>22</sup> For just as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all will be made alive. <sup>23</sup> But each in his own order : Christ, the firstfruits; then when Christ comes, those who belong to him. †††<sup>24</sup> Then ††† comes the end, ††† when he hands over the kingdom to God the Father, when he has brought to an end all rule and all authority and power. <sup>25</sup> For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. <sup>26</sup> The last enemy to be eliminated is death. <sup>27</sup> For he has put everything in subjection under his feet everything in subjection under his feet.§ But when it says "everything" has been put in subjection, it is clear that this does not include the one who put everything in subjection to him. <sup>28</sup> And when all things are subjected to him, then the Son himself will be subjected to the one who subjected everything to him, so that God may be all in all.

<sup>29</sup> Otherwise, what will those do who are baptized for the dead? †† If the dead are not raised at all, then

Paul explains how the "end" relates to resurrection in vv. 25-28. § sn: A quotation from Ps 8:6. §† sn: Many suggestions have been offered for the puzzling expression baptized for the dead. There are up to 200 different explanations for the passage; a summary is given by K. C. Thompson, "1 Corinthians 15, 29 and Baptism for the Dead," Studia Evangelica 2.1 (TU 87), 647-59. The most likely interpretation is that some Corinthians had undergone baptism to bear witness to the faith of fellow believers who had died without experiencing that rite themselves. Paul's reference to the practice here is neither a recommendation nor a condemnation. He simply uses it as evidence from the lives of the why are they baptized for them? <sup>30</sup> Why too are we in danger every hour? <sup>31</sup> Every day I am in danger of death ! This is as sure as§†† my boasting in you, §† which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord. <sup>32</sup> If from a human point of view I fought with wild beasts at Ephesus, §†† what did it benefit me ? If the dead are not raised, let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die. §††† Do not be deceived : "Bad company corrupts good morals." §†††† Sober up as you should, and stop sinning ! For some have no knowledge of God – I say this to your shame!

The Resurrection Body

<sup>35</sup> But someone will say, "How are the dead raised ? With what kind of body will they come?" <sup>36</sup> Fool ! What you sow will not come to life unless it dies. <sup>37</sup> And what you sow is not the body that is to be, but a bare seed§§† – perhaps of wheat or something else. <sup>38</sup> But God gives it a body just as he planned, and to each of the seeds a body of its own. <sup>39</sup> All flesh is not the same: People have one flesh, animals have another, birds and fish another. §§††<sup>40</sup> And there are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. The glory of the heavenly body is one sort and the earthly another. <sup>41</sup> There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon and another glory of the stars, for star differs from star in glory.

<sup>42</sup> It is the same with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown is perishable, what is raised is imperishable. §§§†<sup>43</sup> It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; <sup>44</sup> it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. <sup>45</sup> So also it is written, " The first man , Adam , became a living person" ;<sup>18</sup> the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. <sup>46</sup> However, the spiritual did not come first, but the natural, and then the spiritual. <sup>47</sup> The first man is from the earth, made of dust; the second man is from heaven. <sup>48</sup> Like the one made of dust, so too are those made of dust, and like the one from heaven, so too those who are heavenly. <sup>49</sup> And just as we have borne

Paul Defends His Changed Plans

12 For our reason for confidence† is this : the testimony of our conscience, that with pure motives†† and sincerity which are from God# – not by human wisdom‡† but by the grace of God – we conducted ourselves in the world, and all the more‡‡ toward you. 13 For we do not write you anything other than what‡‡† you can read and also understand. But I hope that you will understand completely<sup>‡‡††</sup> just as also you have partly understood us, that we are your source of pride just as you also are ours§ in the day of the Lord Jesus. §††15 And with this confidence I intended to come to you first so that you would get a second opportunity to see us, <sup>§†††</sup>16 and through your help to go on into Macedonia and then from Macedonia to come back§‡ to you and be helped on our way into Judea by you. 17 Therefore when I was planning to do this, I did not do so without thinking about what I was doing, did I?§‡† Or do I make my plans§† according to mere human standards§‡ so that I would be saying§§† both “Yes, yes” and “No, no” at the same time? <sup>18</sup> But as God is faithful, our message to you is not “Yes” and “No.” <sup>19</sup> For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, the one who was proclaimed among you by us – by me and Silvanus§§† and Timothy – was not “Yes” and “No,” but it has always been “Yes” in him. <sup>20</sup> For every one of God’s promises are “Yes” in him; therefore also through him the “Amen” is spoken, to the glory we give to God. <sup>21</sup> But it is God who establishes§§§ us together with you in Christ and who anointed us, <sup>1822</sup> who also sealed us and gave us the Spirit in our hearts as a down payment. <sup>19</sup>

Why Paul Postponed His Visit

<sup>23</sup> Now I appeal to God as my witness, <sup>20</sup> that to spare<sup>21</sup> you I did not come again to Corinth. <sup>2224</sup> I do not mean that we rule over your faith, but we are workers with you for your joy, because by faith you stand firm. <sup>23</sup> such an individual by the majority is enough for him,<sup>7</sup> so that now instead† you should rather forgive and comfort him.†† This will keep him from being overwhelmed by excessive grief to the point of despair.‡ Therefore I urge you to reaffirm your love for him.‡‡ For this reason also I wrote you:‡‡‡ to test you to see‡‡‡ if you are obedient in everything.‡‡‡ If you forgive anyone for anything, I also forgive him – for indeed what I have forgiven (if I have forgiven anything) I did so for you in the presence of Christ,‡‡‡ so that we may not be exploited‡‡‡ by Satan (for we are not ignorant of his schemes).‡‡‡ Now when I arrived in Troas§ to proclaim the gospel of Christ, even though the Lord had opened§† a door of opportunity§†† for me,‡‡‡ I had no relief in my spirit,§‡ because I did not find my brother Titus there. ### Apostolic Ministry

<sup>14</sup> But thanks be to God who always leads us in triumphal procession§† in Christ§§† and who makes known§§† through us the fragrance that consists of the knowledge of him in every place.‡‡‡ For we are a sweet aroma of Christ to God among those who are being saved and among those who are perishing – <sup>16</sup> to the latter an odor§§§ from death to death, but to the former a fragrance from life to life. And who is adequate for these things?‡‡‡ For we are not like so many others, hucksters who peddle the word of God for profit,

In this context of excessive grief or regret for past sins, “overwhelmed” is a good translation since contemporary English idiom speaks of someone “overwhelmed by grief.” Because of the length of the Greek sentence and the difficulty of expressing a negative purpose/result clause in English, a new sentence was started here in the translation. ‡† tn: Or “I urge you to show that your love for him is real.” ‡‡ tn: The word “you” is not in the Greek text, but is implied (as an understood direct object). ‡‡† tn: Grk “to know the proof of you,” that is, to know if the Corinthians’ obedience to Paul as an apostle was genuine (L&N 72.7). ‡‡‡ tn: Or “be taken advantage of.” § sn: Troas was a city and region in the northwest corner of Asia Minor. §† tn: This has been translated as a concessive participle (“even though”). These things refer to the things Paul is doing in his apostolic ministry.

3 Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? We don’t need letters of recommendation to you or from you as some other people do, do we?<sup>22</sup> You yourselves are our letter,<sup>23</sup> written on our hearts, known and read by everyone,<sup>3</sup> revealing<sup>24</sup> that you are a letter of Christ, delivered by us,<sup>25</sup> written not with ink but by the Spirit of the living God, not on stone tablets<sup>26</sup> but on tablets of human hearts.

4 Now we have such confidence in God through Christ.<sup>5</sup> Not that we are adequate<sup>27</sup> in ourselves to consider anything as if it were coming from ourselves, but our adequacy<sup>28</sup> is from God,<sup>6</sup> who made us adequate<sup>29</sup> to be servants of a new covenant<sup>30</sup> not based on the letter but on the Spirit, for the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.

The Greater Glory of the Spirit’s Ministry

<sup>7</sup> But if the ministry that produced death – carved in letters on stone tablets<sup>31</sup> – came with glory, so that the Israelites<sup>32</sup> could not keep their eyes fixed on the face of Moses because of the glory of his face<sup>33</sup> (a glory<sup>34</sup> which was made ineffective),<sup>358</sup> how much more glorious will the ministry of the Spirit be?<sup>369</sup> For if there was glory in the ministry that produced condemnation, † how much more does the ministry that produces righteousness†† exce# in glory! 10 For indeed, what had been glorious now†† has no glory because of the tremendously greater glory of what replaced it. †††11 For if what was made ineffective††† came with††† glory, how much more has what remains<sup>s</sup> come in glory! 12 Therefore, since we have such a hope, we behave with great boldness, <sup>s†13</sup> and not like Moses who used to put a veil over his face to keep the Israelites<sup>s††</sup> from staring<sup>s†</sup> at the result<sup>s††</sup> of the glory that was made ineffective. <sup>s†14</sup> But their minds were closed. <sup>s†</sup> For to this very day, the same veil remains when they hear the old covenant read. <sup>s††</sup> It has not been removed because only in Christ is it taken away. <sup>s††15</sup> But until this very day whenever Moses is read, a veil lies over their minds, <sup>s††16</sup> but when one<sup>18</sup> turns to the Lord, the veil is removed. <sup>1917</sup> Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is present,<sup>20</sup> there is freedom. <sup>18</sup> And we all, with unveiled faces reflecting the glory of the Lord, <sup>21</sup> are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another, <sup>22</sup> which is from<sup>23</sup> the Lord, who is the Spirit. <sup>24</sup>

stroyed,<sup>10</sup> always carrying around in our body the death of Jesus,† so that the life of Jesus may also be made visible†† in our body.<sup>11</sup> For we who are alive are constantly being handed over to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may also be made visible‡ in our mortal body.<sup>††12</sup> As a result, ‡‡ death is at work in us, but life is at work in you.<sup>††13</sup> But since we have the same spirit of faith as that shown in‡‡‡ what has been written, "I believed; therefore I spoke,"‡‡ we also believe, therefore we also speak.<sup>14</sup> We do so§† because we know that the one who raised up Jesus§†† will also raise us up with Jesus and will bring us with you into his presence.<sup>15</sup> For all these things are for your sake, so that the grace that is including§‡ more and more people may cause thanksgiving to increase§†† to the glory of God.<sup>16</sup> Therefore we do not despair,§† but even if our physical body§‡ is wearing away, our inner person§§† is being renewed day by day.<sup>17</sup> For our momentary, light suffering§§‡ is producing for us an eternal weight of glory far beyond all comparison<sup>18</sup> because we are not looking at what can be seen but at what cannot be seen. For what can be seen is temporary, but what cannot be seen is eternal.

5 For we know that if our earthly house, the tent we live in,§§§ is dismantled,<sup>18</sup> we have a building from God, a house not built by human hands, that is eternal in the heavens.<sup>2</sup> For in this earthly house<sup>19</sup> we groan, because we desire to put on<sup>20</sup> our heavenly dwelling,<sup>3</sup> if indeed, after we have put on<sup>21</sup> our heavenly house,<sup>22</sup> we will not be found naked.<sup>4</sup> For we groan while we are in this tent,<sup>23</sup> since we are weighed down,<sup>24</sup> because we do not want to be unclothed, but clothed, so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life.<sup>5</sup> Now the one who prepared us for this very purpose<sup>25</sup> is God, who gave us the Spirit as a down payment.<sup>266</sup> Therefore we are always full of courage, and we know that as long as we are alive here on earth<sup>27</sup> we are absent from the Lord - <sup>7</sup> for we live<sup>28</sup> by faith, not by sight.<sup>8</sup> Thus we are full of courage and would prefer to be away<sup>29</sup> from the body and at home with the Lord.<sup>9</sup> So then whether we are alive<sup>30</sup> or away, we make it our ambition to please him.<sup>310</sup> For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ,<sup>32</sup> so that each one may be paid back according to what he has done while in the body, whether good or evil.<sup>33</sup>

The Message of Reconciliation

<sup>11</sup> Therefore, because we know the fear of the Lord,<sup>34</sup> we try to persuade<sup>35</sup> people,<sup>36</sup> but we are well known<sup>37</sup> to God, and I hope we are well known to your

We plead with you§§‡ on Christ's behalf, "Be reconciled to God!" <sup>21</sup> God§§§ made the one who did not know sin<sup>18</sup> to be sin for us, so that in him<sup>19</sup> we would become the righteousness of God.

And in addition to our own encouragement, we rejoiced even more at the joy of Titus, because all of you have refreshed his spirit.<sup>††14</sup> For if I have boasted to him about anything concerning you, I have not been embarrassed by you,‡ but just as everything we said to you was true,‡† so our boasting to Titus about you‡† has proved true as well.<sup>15</sup> And his affection for you is much greater‡†† when he remembers the obedience of you all, how you welcomed him with fear and trembling.<sup>16</sup> I rejoice because in everything I am fully confident in you.

8 Now we make known to you, brothers and sisters,‡†† the grace of God given to the churches of Macedonia,<sup>2</sup> that during a severe ordeal of suffering, their abundant joy and their extreme poverty have overflowed in the wealth<sup>s</sup> of their generosity.<sup>3</sup> For I testify, they gave according to their means and beyond their means. uineness of your love by comparison with the eagerness of others.<sup>199</sup> For you know the grace<sup>20</sup> of our Lord Jesus Christ, that although he was rich, he became poor for your sakes, so that you by his poverty could become rich.<sup>10</sup> So here is my opinion on this matter: It is to your advantage, since you<sup>21</sup> made a good start last year both in your giving and your desire to give,<sup>11</sup> to finish what you started,<sup>22</sup> so that just as you wanted to do it eagerly,<sup>23</sup> you can also complete it<sup>24</sup> according to your means.<sup>2512</sup> For if the eagerness is present, the gift itself<sup>26</sup> is acceptable according to whatever one has, not according to what he does not have.<sup>13</sup> For I do not say this so there would be relief for others and suffering for you, but as a matter of equality.<sup>14</sup> At the present time, your abundance will meet their need,<sup>27</sup> so that one day their abundance may also meet your need, and thus there may be equality,<sup>15</sup> as it is written: "The one who gathered<sup>28</sup> much did not have too much, and the one who gathered little did not have too little."<sup>29</sup>

The words "We did this" have no

blame us in regard to this generous gift we are administering.<sup>21</sup> For we are concerned about what is right not only before the Lord but also before men.<sup>22</sup> And we are sending†† with them our brother whom we have tested many times and found eager in many matters, but who now is much more eager than ever because of the great confidence he has in you.<sup>23</sup> If there is any question‡ about Titus, he is my partner and fellow worker among you; if there is any question about our brothers, they are messengers†† of the churches, a glory to Christ.<sup>24</sup> Therefore show‡‡ them openly before the churches the proof of your love and of our pride in you.‡‡

9 For it is not necessary‡‡‡ for me to write you about this service§ to the saints,<sup>2</sup> because I know your eagerness to help.§† I keep boasting to the Macedonians about this eagerness of yours,§†† that Achaia has been ready to give§‡ since last year, and your zeal to participate§†† has stirred up most of them.§†‡ But I am sending§† these brothers so that our boasting about you may not be empty in this case, so that you may be ready§§† just as I kept telling them.<sup>4</sup> For if any of the Macedonians should come with me and find that you are not ready to give, we would be humiliated§§‡ (not to mention you) by this confidence we had in you.<sup>§§§§</sup> Therefore I thought it necessary to urge these brothers to go to you in advance and to arrange ahead of time the generous contribution<sup>18</sup> you had

Walker, "Paul's Offer of Leniency of Christ (2 Corinthians 10:1): Populist Ideology and Rhetoric in a Pauline Letter Fragment (2 Cor 10:1-13:10)" (Ph.D. diss., University of Chicago, 1998), argues for this alternative translation for three main reasons: (1) When the two Greek nouns πρᾶυτης ἐπιεικεία prauth epipeikeia

Some translators see a distinction, however, and translate 2 Cor 10:7a as “Look at what is in front of your eyes,” that is, the obvious facts of the case (so NRSV). §§§ tn: The word “us” is not in the Greek text but is supplied. Indirect objects in Greek were often omitted when clear from the context, and must be supplied for the modern English reader. <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk “I will not be put to shame,” “I will not be ashamed.” The words “of doing so” are supplied to clarify for the reader that Paul will not be ashamed of boasting somewhat more about the authority the Lord gave him (beginning of v. 8). <sup>19</sup> tn: Or “unimpressive.” <sup>20</sup> tn: Or “is contemptible”; Grk “is despised.” <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk “what we are in word.”

Paul's Mission

<sup>12</sup> For we would not dare to classify or compare ourselves with some of those who recommend themselves. But when they measure themselves by themselves and compare themselves with themselves, they are without understanding. <sup>2213</sup> But we will not boast beyond certain limits, <sup>23</sup> but will confine our boasting<sup>24</sup> according to the limits of the work to which God has appointed us, <sup>25</sup> that reaches even as far as you. <sup>14</sup> For we were not overextending ourselves, as though we did not reach as far as you, because we were the first to reach as far as you with the gospel about Christ. <sup>2615</sup> Nor do we boast beyond certain limits<sup>27</sup> in the work<sup>28</sup> done by others, but we hope<sup>29</sup> that as your faith continues to grow, our work may be greatly expanded<sup>30</sup> among you according to our limits, <sup>3116</sup> so that we may preach the gospel in the regions that lie beyond you, and not boast of work already done in another person's area. <sup>17</sup> But the one who boasts must boast in the Lord must boast in the Lord. <sup>3218</sup> For it is not the person who commends himself who is approved, but the person the Lord commends.

11 I wish that you would be patient with me in a little foolishness, but indeed you are being patient with me! <sup>2</sup> For I am jealous for you with godly jealousy, because I promised you in marriage to one husband, <sup>33</sup> to present you as a pure<sup>34</sup> virgin to Christ. <sup>3</sup> But I am afraid that<sup>35</sup> just as the serpent<sup>36</sup> deceived Eve by his treachery, <sup>37</sup> your minds may be led astray<sup>38</sup> from a sincere and pure<sup>39</sup> devotion to Christ. <sup>4</sup> For if

Paul's Sufferings for Christ

<sup>16</sup> I say again, let no one think that I am a fool. <sup>23</sup> But if you do, then at least accept me as a fool, so that I too may boast a little. <sup>17</sup> What I am saying with this boastful confidence<sup>24</sup> I do not say the way the Lord would.<sup>25</sup> Instead it is, as it were, foolishness. <sup>18</sup> Since many<sup>26</sup> are boasting according to human standards, <sup>27</sup> I too will boast. <sup>19</sup> For since you are so wise, you put up with<sup>28</sup> fools gladly. <sup>20</sup> For you put up with<sup>29</sup> it if someone makes slaves of you, if someone exploits you, if someone takes advantage of you, if someone behaves arrogantly<sup>30</sup> toward you, if someone strikes you in the face. <sup>21</sup> (To my disgrace<sup>31</sup> I must say that we were too weak for that !)<sup>32</sup> But whatever anyone else dares to boast about<sup>33</sup> (I am speaking foolishly), I also dare to boast about the same thing. <sup>34</sup> Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. <sup>23</sup> Are they servants of Christ? (I am talking like I am out of my mind!) I am even more so: with much greater labors, with far more imprisonments, with more severe beatings, facing death many times. <sup>24</sup> Five times I received from the Jews forty lashes less one. <sup>35</sup> Three times I was beaten with a rod. <sup>36</sup> Once I received a stoning. <sup>37</sup> Three times I suffered shipwreck. A night and a day I spent adrift in the open sea. <sup>26</sup> I have been on journeys many times, in dangers from rivers, in dangers from robbers, <sup>38</sup> in dangers from my own countrymen, in dangers from Gentiles, in dangers in the city, in dangers in the wilderness, <sup>39</sup> in dangers at sea, in dangers from false brothers, <sup>27</sup> in hard work and toil, <sup>40</sup> through many sleepless nights, in hunger and thirst, many times without food, in cold and without enough clothing. <sup>†28</sup> Apart from other things, †† there is the daily pressure on me of my anxious concern‡ for all the churches. <sup>29</sup> Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is led into sin, ‡† and I do not burn with indignation? <sup>30</sup> If I must boast, ‡† I will boast about the things that show my weakness. <sup>‡††31</sup> The God and Father of the Lord Jesus, who is blessed forever, knows I am not lying. <sup>32</sup> In Damascus, the governor‡‡ under King Aretas was guarding the city of Damascus§ in order to arrest§† me, <sup>33</sup> but I was let down in a rope-basket§†† through a window in the city wall, and escaped his hands.

12 It is necessary to go on boasting. §† Though it is not profitable, I will go on to visions and revelations from the Lord. <sup>2</sup> I know a man in Christ who fourteen years ago (whether in the body or out of the body I do not know, God knows) was caught up to the third heaven. <sup>3</sup> And I know that this man (whether in the body or apart from the body I do not know, God knows) <sup>4</sup> was caught up into paradise§†† and heard things too sacred to be put into words, §† things that a person§† is not permitted to speak. <sup>5</sup> On behalf of such an individual I will boast, but on my own behalf I will not boast, except about my weaknesses. <sup>6</sup> For even if I wish to boast, I will not be a fool, for I would be telling§§† the truth, but I refrain from this so that no one may regard§§† me beyond what he sees in me or what he hears from me, <sup>7</sup> even because of the extraordinary character of the revelations. Therefore, §§§ so

Paul does not mean complete nakedness, however, which would have been repugnant to a Jew; he refers instead to the lack of sufficient clothing, especially in cold weather. A related word is used to 1 Cor 4:11, also in combination with experiencing hunger and thirst. †† sn: Apart from other things. Paul refers here either (1) to the external sufferings just mentioned, or (2) he refers to other things he has left unmentioned. ‡ tn: "Anxious concern," so translated in L&N 25.224. †† tn: Or "who is caused to stumble." ‡‡ tn: Grk "If boasting is necessary." ‡†† tn: Or "about the things related to my weakness." ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "ethnarch." sn: The governor was an official called an ethnarch who was appointed to rule over a particular area or constituency on behalf of a king. § tn: Grk "the city of the Damascenes." §† tn: Or "to seize," "to catch." §†† tn: In Acts 9:25 the same basket used in Paul's escape is called a σπιρίς spuri" κόφινος kofinos

§† tn: Grk "Boasting is necessary." §†† sn: In the NT, paradise is mentioned three times. In Luke 23:43 it refers to the abode of the righteous dead. In Rev 2:7 it refers to the restoration of Edenic paradise predicted in Isa 51:3 and Ezek 36:35. The reference here in 2 Cor 12:4 is probably to be translated as parallel to the mention of the "third heaven" in v. 2. Assuming that the "first heaven" would be atmospheric heaven (the sky) and "second heaven" the more distant stars and planets, "third heaven" would refer to the place where God dwells. This is much more likely than some variation on the seven heavens mentioned in the pseudepigraphic book 2 Enoch and in other nonbiblical and rabbinic works. §† tn: Or "things that cannot be put into words." §† tn: Grk "a man." §§† tn: Or "speaking." §§‡ tn: Or "may think of." §§§ tc: Most mss 46 ψ that I would not become arrogant, a thorn in the flesh was given to me, a messenger of Satan to trouble<sup>18</sup> me – so that I would not become arrogant. <sup>198</sup> I asked the Lord three times about this, that it would depart from me. <sup>9</sup> But<sup>20</sup> he said to me, "My grace is enough<sup>21</sup> for you, for my<sup>22</sup> power is made perfect<sup>23</sup> in weakness." So then, I will boast most gladly<sup>24</sup> about my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may reside in<sup>25</sup> me. <sup>10</sup> Therefore I am content with<sup>26</sup> weaknesses, with insults, with troubles, with persecutions and difficulties<sup>27</sup> for the sake of Christ, for whenever I am weak, then I am strong.

The Signs of an Apostle

<sup>11</sup> I have become a fool. You yourselves forced me to do it, for I should have been commended by you. For I lack nothing in comparison<sup>28</sup> to those "super-apostles," even though I am nothing. <sup>12</sup> Indeed, the signs of an apostle were performed among you with great perseverance<sup>29</sup> by signs and wonders and powerful deeds. <sup>3013</sup> For how<sup>31</sup> were you treated worse than the other churches, except that I myself was not a burden to you? Forgive me this injustice! <sup>14</sup> Look, for the third time I am ready to come to you, and I will not be a burden to you, because I do not want your possessions, but you. For children should not have<sup>32</sup> to save up for their parents, but parents for their children. <sup>15</sup> Now I will most gladly spend and be spent for your lives <sup>133</sup> If I love you more, am I to be loved less? <sup>16</sup> But be that as it may, I have not burdened you. Yet because I was a crafty person, I took you in by deceit! <sup>17</sup> I have not taken advantage of you through anyone I have sent to you, have I? <sup>3418</sup> I urged Titus to visit you<sup>35</sup> and I sent our<sup>36</sup> brother

Paul's Vindication of His Apostleship

11 Now† I want you to know, brothers and sisters, †† that the gospel I preached is not of human origin. <sup>†12</sup> For I did not receive it or learn it from any human source; †† instead I received it†† by a revelation of Jesus Christ. †††

<sup>15</sup> We are Jews by birth†† and not Gentile sinners, <sup>†16</sup> yet we know†† that no one‡‡ is justified by the works of the law‡‡‡ but by the faithfulness of Jesus Christ. ‡‡ And§ we have come to believe in Christ Jesus, so that we may be justified by the faithfulness of Christ§† and not by the works of the law, because by the works of the law no one§†† will be justified. <sup>17</sup> But if while seeking to be justified in Christ we ourselves have also been found to be sinners, is Christ then one who encourages§† sin? Absolutely not! <sup>18</sup> But if I build up again those things I once destroyed, §†† I demonstrate that I am one who breaks God's law. <sup>§†19</sup> For through the law I died to the law so that I may live to God. <sup>20</sup> I have been crucified with Christ, §† and it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me. those who believe are the sons of Abraham. <sup>18</sup> And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the gospel to Abraham ahead of time, †† saying, "All the nations‡ will be blessed in you*." <sup>††9</sup> So then those who believe‡‡ are blessed along with Abraham the believer. <sup>10</sup> For all who‡‡‡ rely on doing the works of the law are under a curse, because it is written, "Cursed is everyone who does not keep on doing everything written in the book of the law." <sup>‡‡‡11</sup> Now it is clear no one is justified before God by the law, because the righteous one will live by faith. <sup>§12</sup> But the law is not based on faith, §† but the one who does the works of the law§†† will live by them. <sup>§†13</sup> Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming§†† a curse for us (because it is written, "Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree") <sup>§†14</sup> in order that in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham would come to the Gentiles, §† so that we could receive the promise of the Spirit by faith.

Linguistically, "angel of God" is the same in both testaments (and thus, he is either "an angel of God" or "the angel of God" in both testaments). For arguments and implications, see ExSyn 252; M. J. Davidson, "Angels," DJG, 9; W. G. MacDonald argues for "an angel" in both testaments: "Christology and 'The Angel of the Lord,'" Current Issues in Biblical and Patristic Interpretation, 324-35. §† tn: Grk "as an angel of God...as Christ Jesus." This could be understood to mean either "you welcomed me like an angel of God would," or "you welcomed me as though I were an angel of God." The relative clauses in English do not pick up the emotional force of Paul's language here (note "tone of voice" in v. 20, indicating that he is passionately concerned for them); hence, the translation has been altered slightly to capture the connotative power of Paul's plea. sn: That is, until Christ's nature or character is formed in them (see L&N 58.4). <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "voice" or "tone." other by the free woman. <sup>23</sup> But one, the son by the slave woman, was born by natural descent, † while the other, the son by the free woman, was born through the promise. <sup>24</sup> These things may be treated as an allegory, †† for these women represent two covenants. One is from Mount Sinai bearing children for slavery; this is Hagar. <sup>25</sup> Now Hagar represents Mount Sinai in Arabia and corresponds to the present Jerusalem, for she is in slavery with her children. <sup>26</sup> But the Jerusalem above is free, ‡ and she is our mother. <sup>27</sup> For it is written:

" Rejoice, O barren woman who does not bear children; ††

than those of the woman who has a husband. " ††

Paul's argument is very condensed at this point. †† tn: The direct object "children" is not in the Greek text, but has been supplied for clarity. In context Paul is referring to the confusion and turmoil caused by those who insist that Gentile converts to Christianity must observe the Mosaic law. <sup>24</sup> tn: Or "will suffer condemnation" (L&N 90.80); Grk "will bear his judgment." The translation "must pay the penalty" is given as an explanatory gloss on the phrase by BDAG 171 s.v. βασιτάζω <sup>β</sup> <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk "brothers." See note on the phrase "brothers and sisters" in 1:11. <sup>26</sup> sn: That is, if Paul still teaches observance of the Mosaic law (preaches circumcision), why is he still being persecuted by his opponents, who insist that Gentile converts to Christianity must observe the Mosaic law? <sup>27</sup> sn: The offense of the cross refers to the offense to Jews caused by preaching Christ crucified. <sup>28</sup> tn: Or "nullified." <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "the ones who are upsetting you." The same verb is used in Acts 21:38 to refer to a person who incited a revolt. Paul could be alluding indirectly to the fact that his opponents are inciting the Galatians to rebel against his teaching with regard to circumcision and the law. <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "would even." <sup>31</sup> tn: Or "make eunuchs of themselves"; Grk "cut themselves off." This statement is rhetorical hyperbole on Paul's part. It does strongly suggest, however, that Paul's adversaries in this case ("those agitators") were men. Some interpreters (notably Erasmus and the Reformers) have attempted to soften the meaning to a figurative "separate themselves" (meaning the opponents would withdraw from fellowship) but such an understanding dramatically weakens the rhetorical force of Paul's argument. Although it has been argued that such an act of emasculation would be unthinkable for Paul, it must be noted that Paul's statement is one of

Practice Love

<sup>13</sup> For you were called to freedom, brothers and sisters; † only do not use your freedom as an opportunity to indulge your flesh, †† but through love serve one another. ††† For the whole law can be summed up in a single commandment, †††† namely, “You must love your neighbor as yourself.” ††††† However, if you continually bite and devour one another, †††††† beware that you are not consumed†††††† by one another. <sup>16</sup> But I say, live<sup>s</sup> by the Spirit and you will not carry out the desires of the flesh. ††††††† For the flesh has desires that are opposed to the Spirit, and the Spirit has desires††††††† that are opposed to the flesh, for these are in opposition to††††††† each other, so that you cannot do what you want. <sup>18</sup> But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law. <sup>19</sup> Now the works of the flesh††††††† are obvious: ††††††† sexual immorality, impurity, depravity, <sup>20</sup> idolatry, sorcery, ††††††† hostilities, ††††††† strife, ††††††† jealousy, outbursts of anger, selfish rivalries, dissensions, ††††††† factions, <sup>21</sup> envying, <sup>18</sup> murder, <sup>19</sup> drunkenness, carousing, <sup>20</sup> and similar things. I am warning you, as I had warned you before: Those who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God!

<sup>22</sup> But the fruit of the Spirit<sup>21</sup> is love, <sup>22</sup> joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, <sup>23,23</sup> gentleness, and<sup>24</sup> self-control. Against such things there is no

The aorist participle may be translated either causally (“because he predestined,” “having predestined”) or instrumentally (“by predestining”). A causal nuance would suggest that God’s predestination of certain individuals prompted his choice of them. An instrumental nuance would suggest that the means by which God’s choice was accomplished was by predestination. The instrumental view is somewhat more likely in light of normal Greek syntax (i.e., an aorist participle following an aorist main verb is more likely to be instrumental than causal). §‡ tn: Grk “to himself” after “through Jesus Christ.” † tn: The Greek term υἰοθεσία Juio-qesia

The participle has been translated here with the temporal nuance to allow for means to also be a possible interpretation. If the translation focused in-

Although several translations regard the ruler to be the same as the spirit, this is unlikely since the cases in Greek are different ( ruler is accusative and spirit is genitive). To get around this, some have suggested that the genitive for spirit is a genitive of apposition. However, the semantics of the genitive of apposition are against such an interpretation (cf. ExSyn 100). <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "working in." <sup>27</sup> sn: Sons of disobedience is a Semitic idiom that means "people characterized by disobedience." However, it also contains a subtle allusion to vv. 4-10: Some of those sons of disobedience have become sons of God. <sup>28</sup> sn: Among whom. No direct object is given in Greek, leaving room for the possibility that either "God" (since the verb is often associated with prayer) or "you" is in view. <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "my trials on your behalf." <sup>30</sup> sn: Which. The antecedent (i.e., the word or concept to which this clause refers back) may be either "what I am suffering for you" or the larger concept of the recipients not losing heart over Paul's suffering for them. The relative pronoun "which" is attracted to the predicate nominative "glory" in its gender and number (feminine singular), making the antecedent ambiguous. Paul's suffering for them could be viewed as their glory (cf. Col 1:24 for a parallel) in that his suffering has brought about their salvation, but if so his suffering must be viewed as more than his present imprisonment in Rome; it would be a general description of his ministry overall (cf. 2 Cor 11:23-27). The other option is that the author is implicitly arguing that the believers have continued to have courage in the midst of his trials (as not to lose heart suggests) and that this is their glory. Philippians 1:27-28 offers an interesting parallel: The believers' courage in the face of adversity is a sign of their salvation. <sup>31</sup> tn: Or "Or who is your glory?" <sup>7</sup> But to each one of us grace was given according to the measure of the gift of Christ.<sup>8</sup> Therefore it says, "When he ascended on high he captured§† captives; he gave gifts to men."<sup>§††9</sup> Now what is the meaning of "he ascended," except that he also descended§† to the lower regions,§†† namely, the earth?<sup>§††10</sup> He, the very salvation given in Christ, the Wisdom of God, and the love of Christ. Of these interpretations, the last two are the most plausible. Associations from Wisdom literature favor the Wisdom of God, but the immediate context favors the love of Christ. For detailed discussion of these interpretive options, see A. T. However, the wording here differs from that of Ps 68 in both the Hebrew text and the LXX in a few places, the most significant of which is reading "gave gifts to" in place of "received gifts from" as in HT and LXX. It has sometimes been suggested that the author of Ephesians modified the text he was citing in order to better support what he wanted to say here. Such modifications are sometimes found in rabbinic exegesis from this and later periods, but it is also possible that the author was simply citing a variant of Ps 68 known to him but which has not survived outside its quotation here (W. H. Harris, The Descent of Christ [AGJU 32], 104). Another possibility is that the words here, which strongly resemble Ps 68:19 HT and LXX (68:18 ET), are actually part of an early Christian hymn quoted by the author. §‡ tc: The majority of MSS

μερη §† tn: Grk "to the lower parts of the earth." This phrase has been variously interpreted: (1) The traditional view understands it as a reference to the underworld (hell), where Jesus is thought to have descended in the three days between his death and resurrection. In this case, "of the earth" would be a partitive genitive. (2) A second option is to translate the phrase "of the earth" as a genitive of apposition: "to the lower parts, namely, the earth" (as in the present translation). Many recent scholars hold this view and argue that it is a reference to the incarnation. (3) A third option, which also sees the phrase "of the earth" as a genitive of apposition, is that the descent in the passage occurs after the ascent rather than before it, and refers to the descent of the Spirit at Pentecost (cf. Acts 4:11-16). Support for this latter view is found in the intertestamental and rabbinic use of Ps 68:18 (quoted in v. 8), which is consistently and solely interpreted as a reference to Moses' ascent of Mt. Sinai to "capture" the words of the law. The probability, therefore, is that the comments here in v. 9 reflect a polemic against the interpretation of Ps 68:18 in certain circles as a reference to Moses. See W. H. Harris, The Descent of Christ (AGJU 32), 46-54; 171-204. §‡ tn: The Greek text lays specific emphasis on "He" through the use of the intensive pronoun, αὐτός autos

This position is often taken because it is recognized that both nouns (i.e., pastors and teachers) are governed by one article in Greek. But because the nouns are plural, it is extremely unlikely that they refer to the same group, but only that the author is linking them closely together. It is better to regard the pastors as a subset of teachers. In other words, all pastors are teachers, but not all teachers are pastors. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: "(a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelismus membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context" (P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "Rise up." <sup>21</sup> tn: The articular nominative participle ὁ καθεύδων Jo kaqeuwdwn

These participles have been variously interpreted, but perhaps the two most likely interpretations are (1) the participles indicate the means by which one is filled by the Spirit; (2) the participles indicate the result of being filled by the Spirit. The fact that the participles are present tense and follow the command (i.e., "be filled") would tend to support both of these options. But it seems out of Paul's character to reduce the filling of the Spirit to a formula of some kind. See discussion below. ‡††† sn: Your participation ( Grk "fellowship") could refer to Paul rejoicing because of the Philippian converts' "fellowship" in the gospel along with him, but it is more likely that this refers to their active "participation" with him in the gospel by means of the financial support they sent to Paul on more than one occasion, discussed later in this letter ( 4:10-19, esp. 4:15-16). § tn: Several alternatives for translating vv. 3-5 are possible: (1) "I thank my God every time I remember you, yes, always in my every prayer for all of you. I pray with joy because of your participation..." (see NAB; also M. Silva, Philippians [BECNT], 43-44; G. D. Fee, Philippians [NICNT], 76-80); (2) "I thank my God because of your every remembrance of me. Always in my every prayer for all of you I pray with joy. [I am grateful] for your participation..." (see Moffatt; also P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 58-61). Option (1) is quite similar to the translation above, but sees v. 4a as more or less parenthetical. Option (2) is significantly different in that Paul thanks God because the Philippians remember him rather than when he remembers them. §† tn: Grk "since I am sure of this very thing." Hence, there is the likelihood that he experienced a second Roman imprisonment later on (since the belief of the early church was that Paul died under Nero in Rome). If so, then the pastoral letters (1-2 Tim, Titus) could well fit into a life of Paul that goes beyond any descriptions in the book of Acts (which ends with Paul's first Roman imprisonment). Some have argued that the pastorals cannot be genuine because they cannot fit into the history of Acts. The dative accents what will happen to the enemies (called a dative of disadvantage [see ExSyn 143-44]), while the genitive accents what the believers will possess (and, in fact, do already possess, as v. 29 makes clear). <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk "this." These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: "(a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelism membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context" (P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. §†† sn: The Greek

Models for Ministry

<sup>19</sup> Now I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, so that I too may be encouraged by hearing news about you.<sup>20</sup> For there is no one here like him who will readily demonstrate his deep concern for you.<sup>21</sup> Others are busy with their own concerns, not those of Jesus Christ.<sup>22</sup> But you know his qualifications, that like a son working with his father, he served with me in advancing the gospel.<sup>23</sup> So I hope to send him as soon as I know more about my situation,<sup>24</sup> though I am confident in the Lord that I too will be coming to see you†† soon.

<sup>25</sup> But for now‡ I have considered it necessary to send Epaphroditus to you. For he is my brother,††† coworker and fellow soldier, and your messenger‡‡‡ and minister§ to me in my need.<sup>§126</sup> Indeed, he greatly missed all of you and was distressed because you heard that he had been ill.<sup>27</sup> In fact he became so ill that he nearly died.§†† But God showed mercy to him – and not to him only, but also to me – so that I would not have grief on top of grief.<sup>28</sup> Therefore I am all the more eager to send him,§† so that when you see him again you can rejoice§†† and I can be free from anxiety.<sup>29</sup> So welcome him in the Lord with great joy, and honor people like him,<sup>30</sup> since it was because of the work of Christ that he almost died. He risked his life so that he could make up for your inability to serve me.§†

This accent on Epaphroditus’ character and service is implied in the translation “For he is...” ‡‡‡ tn: Grk “apostle.” § tn: The Greek word translated “minister” here is λειτουργός leitourgo” §† tn: Grk “servant of my need.” §†† tn: Grk “For he became ill to the point of death.” §††† tn: Grk “I have sent him to you with earnestness.” But the epistolary aorist needs to be translated as a present tense with this adverb due to English stylistic considerations. §††† tn: Or “when you see him you can rejoice again.”

§† tn: Grk "those of us who are 'perfect' should think this," or possibly "those of us who are mature should think this." sn: The adjective perfect comes from the same root as the verb perfected in v. 12; Paul may well be employing a wordplay to draw in his opponents. Thus, perfect would then be in quotation marks and Paul would then argue that no one – neither they nor he – is in fact perfect. The thrust of vv. 1-16 is that human credentials can produce nothing that is pleasing to God (vv. 1-8). Instead of relying on such, Paul urges his readers to trust God for their righteousness (v. 9) rather than their own efforts, and at the same time to press on for the prize that awaits them (vv. 12-14). He argues further that perfection is unattainable in this life (v. 15), yet the level of maturity that one has reached should not for this reason be abandoned (v. 16). §‡ tn: Grk "reveal this to you." The referent of the pronoun "this" is the fact that the person is thinking differently than Paul does. ## Paul's Prayer for the Growth of the Church

<sup>9</sup> For this reason we also, from the day we heard about you,† have not ceased praying for you and asking God†† to fill ‡ you with the knowledge of his will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding,<sup>10</sup> so that you may live‡‡ worthily of the Lord and please him in all respects ‡‡ – bearing fruit in every good deed, growing in the knowledge of God,<sup>11</sup> being strengthened with all power according to his glorious might for the display of‡‡† all patience and steadfastness, joyfully<sup>12</sup> giving thanks to the Father who has qualified you to share‡‡‡ in the saints' § inheritance in the light.<sup>13</sup> He delivered us from the power of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of the Son he loves,<sup>§†14</sup> in whom we have redemption,§†† the forgiveness of sins.

† tn: Or "heard about it"; Grk "heard." There is no direct object stated in the Greek (direct objects were frequently omitted in Greek when clear from the context). A direct object is expected by an English reader, however, so most translations supply one. Here, however, it is not entirely clear what the author "heard": a number of translations supply "it" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV; NAB "this"), but this could refer back either to (1) "your love in the Spirit" at the end of v. 8, or (2) "your faith in Christ Jesus and the love that you have for all the saints" (v. 4). In light of this uncertainty, other translations supply "about you" (TEV, NIV, CEV, NLT). This is preferred by the present translation since, while it does not resolve the ambiguity entirely, it does make it less easy for the English reader to limit the reference only to "your love in the Spirit" at the end of v. 8. †† tn: The term "God" does not appear in the Greek text, but the following reference to "the knowledge of his will" makes it clear that "God" is in view as the object of the "praying and asking," and should therefore be included in the English translation for clarity. ‡ tn: The ἵνα jina

§† sn: This passage has been typeset as poetry because many scholars regard this passage as poetic or hymnic. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: "(a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelismus membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context" (P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. §†† tn: The Greek term πρωτότοκος prw-totokos

†† sn: Put off all such things. The commands in vv. 8-9 are based on two reasons given in vv. 9-10 – reasons which are expressed in terms of a metaphor about clothing oneself. Paul says that they have put off the old man and have put on the new man. Two things need to be discussed in reference to Paul's statement. (1) What is the meaning of the clothing imagery (i.e., the "have put off" and "have been clothed")? (2) What is the meaning of the old man and the new man? Though some commentators understand the participles "have put off" (v. 9) and "have been clothed" (v. 10) as imperatives (i.e., "put off!" and "put on!"), this use of participles is extremely rare in the NT and thus unlikely here. It is better to take them as having the semantic force of indicatives, and thus they give an explanation of what had happened to the Colossians at the time of their conversion – they had taken off the old man and put on the new when they trusted in Christ (cf. 1:4). While it is difficult to say for certain what the background to Paul's "clothing" metaphor might be (whether it is primarily Jewish and comes from the OT, or primarily Gentile and comes from some facet of the Greco-Roman religious milieu), it is nonetheless clear, on the basis of Paul's usage of the expression, that the old man refers to man as he is in Adam and dominated by sin (cf. Rom 6:6; Eph 4:22), while the new man refers to the Christian whose new sphere of existence is in Christ. Though the metaphor of clothing oneself primarily reflects outward actions, there is a distinct inward aspect to it, as the rest of v. 10 indicates: being renewed in knowledge according to the image of the one who created it. Paul's point, then, is that Christians should take off their dirty clothing (inappropriate behavior) and put on clean clothing (behavior consistent with knowing Christ) because this has already been accomplished in a positional sense at the time of their conversion (cf. Gal 3:27 with Rom 13:14). ‡ tn: See the note on "fellow slave" in 1:7. †† tn: If the genitive construct σπλάγχνα οἰκτιρμοῦ splanchna oiktirmou

Verses 12-14 appear to indicate that Luke and Demas, who were Gentiles, were also working currently with Paul. This is the view adopted in the translation. See M. J. But we urge you, brothers and sisters, to do so more and more,<sup>11</sup> to aspire to lead a quiet life, to attend to your own business, and to work with your hands, as we commanded you.<sup>12</sup> In this way you will live†† a decent life before outsiders and not be in need.‡

The Lord Returns for Believers

<sup>13</sup> Now we do not want you to be uninformed,‡ brothers and sisters,‡ about those who are asleep,‡‡ so that you will not grieve like the rest who have no hope.<sup>14</sup> For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, so also we believe that‡‡‡ God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep as Christians.<sup>§15</sup> For we tell you this by the word of the Lord,§† that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will surely not go ahead of those who have fallen asleep.<sup>16</sup> For the Lord himself will come down from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel,§†† and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.<sup>17</sup> Then we who are alive, who are left,§‡ will be suddenly caught up§†† together§†

It is possible that "through Jesus" describes "bring," but this gives the unlikely double reference, "through Jesus God will bring them with Jesus." Instead it describes their "falling sleep," since through him their death is only sleep and not the threat it once was. Also Christians are those whose total existence – life and death – is in and through and for Christ ( 1 Cor 8:6). §† sn: The word of the Lord is a technical expression in OT literature, often referring to a divine prophetic utterance (e.g., Gen 15:1, Isa 1:10, Jonah 1:1). We are not of the night nor of the darkness.<sup>6</sup> So then we must not sleep as the rest, but must stay alert and sober.<sup>7</sup> For those who sleep, sleep at night and those who get drunk are drunk at night.<sup>8</sup> But since we are of the day, we must stay sober by putting on the breast-plate<sup>22</sup> of faith and love and as a helmet our hope for salvation.<sup>23</sup> For God did not destine us for wrath<sup>24</sup> but for gaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ.<sup>10</sup> He died<sup>25</sup> for us so that whether we are alert or asleep<sup>26</sup> we will come to life together with him.<sup>11</sup>

Because of the length and complexity of the Greek sentence, a new sentence was started at the beginning of v. 10 in the translation. <sup>26</sup> sn: The phrases alert or asleep may be understood (1) of moral alertness (living in faith, love, and hope as vv. 6, 8 call for, versus being unresponsive to God) or (2) of physical life and death (whether alive or dead). The first fits better with the context of 5:1-9, while the second returns to the point Paul started with in 4:13-18 (no disadvantage for the believing dead).

Therefore encourage one another and build up each other, just as you are in fact doing.

Final Instructions

<sup>12</sup> Now we ask you, brothers and sisters, † to acknowledge those who labor among you and preside over you in the Lord and admonish you, <sup>13</sup> and to esteem them most highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. <sup>14</sup> And we urge you, brothers and sisters, †† admonish the undisciplined, comfort the discouraged, help the weak, be patient toward all. <sup>15</sup> See that no one pays back evil for evil to anyone, but always pursue what is good for one another and for all. <sup>16</sup> Always rejoice, <sup>17</sup> constantly pray, <sup>18</sup> in everything give thanks. ## Salutation

1 From Paul† and Silvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians†† in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Grace and peace to you‡ from God the‡† Father and the Lord Jesus Christ!

Thanksgiving

3 We ought to thank God always for you, brothers and sisters, ‡‡ and rightly so, ‡‡‡ because your faith flourishes more and more and the love of each one of you all for one another is ever greater. 4 As a result we ourselves boast about you in the churches of God for your perseverance and faith in all the persecutions and afflictions you are enduring.

Encouragement in Persecution

In Paul "mystery" often means "revealed truth, something formerly hidden but now made widely known," but that does not make sense with the verb of this clause ("to be at work, to be active"). ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "the one who restrains." This gives a puzzling contrast to the impersonal phrase in v. 6 ("the thing that restrains"). The restraint can be spoken of as a force or as a person. Some have taken this to mean the Roman Empire in particular or human government in general, since these are forces that can also be seen embodied in a person, the emperor or governing head. But apocalyptic texts like Revelation and Daniel portray human government of the end times as under Satanic control, not holding back his influence. Also the power to hold back Satanic forces can only come from God. So others understand this restraint to be some force from God: the preaching of the gospel or the working of the Holy Spirit through God's people. § tc: ‡ Several important witnesses of the Alexandrian and Western traditions, as well as many other witnesses, read Ἰησοῦς Ihsous κύριος kurios κ χ ψ

Conduct of Women

<sup>9</sup> Likewise<sup>22</sup> the women are to dress<sup>23</sup> in suitable apparel, with modesty and self-control. <sup>24</sup> Their adornment must not be<sup>25</sup> with braided hair and gold or pearls or expensive clothing, <sup>10</sup> but with good deeds, as is proper for women who profess reverence for God. <sup>11</sup> A woman must learn<sup>26</sup> quietly with all submissiveness. <sup>12</sup> But I do not allow<sup>27</sup> a woman to teach or exercise authority<sup>28</sup> over a man. timony at the proper time." This may allude to testimony about Christ's atoning work given by Paul and others (as v. 7 mentions). But it seems more likely to identify Christ's death itself as a testimony to God's gracious character (as vv. 3-4 describe). This testimony was planned from all eternity, but now has come to light at the time God intended, in the work of Christ. See 2 Tim 1:9-10; Titus 2:11-14; 3:4-7 for similar ideas. <sup>18</sup> tc: Most mss κ 2 vid ἐν Χριστῷ en Cristw λέγω legw

And Adam was not deceived, but the woman, because she was fully deceived, † fell into transgression. <sup>††15</sup> But she will be delivered through childbearing, ‡ if she‡† continues in faith and love and holiness with self-control.

† tn: This phrase uses a compound form of the same verb as in v. 14a: "deceived" vs. "deceived out, completely deceived." The two verbs could be synonymous, but because of the close contrast in this context, it seems that a stronger meaning is intended for the second verb. †† tn: Grk "has come to be in transgression" (with an emphasis on the continuing consequences of that fall).

‡ tn: Or "But she will be preserved through childbearing," or "But she will be saved in spite of childbearing." This verse is notoriously difficult to interpret, though there is general agreement about one point: Verse 15 is intended to lessen the impact of vv. 13-14. There are several interpretive possibilities here, though the first three can be readily dismissed (cf. D. Moo, "1 Timothy 2:11-15: Meaning and Significance," TJ 1 [1980]: 70-73). (1) Christian women will be saved, but only if they bear children. This view is entirely unlikely for it lays a condition on Christian women that goes beyond grace, is unsupported elsewhere in scripture, and is explicitly against Paul's and Jesus' teaching on both marriage and salvation (cf. Matt 19:12; 1 Cor 7:8-9, 26-27, 34-35; 1 Tim 5:3-10). (2) Despite the curse, Christian women will be kept safe when bearing children. This view also is unlikely, both because it has little to do with the context and because it is not true to life (especially life in the ancient world with its high infant mortality rate). (3) Despite the sin of Eve and the results to her progeny, she would be saved through the childbirth - that is, through the birth of the Messiah, as promised in the protevangelium (Gen 3:15). This view sees the singular "she" as referring first to Eve and then to all women (note the change from singular to plural in this verse). Further, it works well in the context. However, there are several problems with it: [a] The future tense (σωθήσεται swqhshtai

It is naturally taken generically (referring to the class of leaders known as overseers) and, in fact, finds precedent in 2:11-12 ("a woman," "a man"), 2:15 ("she"). Paul almost casually changes between singular and plural in both chapters. § tn: Or "a man married only once," "devoted solely to his wife" (see 1 Tim 3:12; 5:9; Titus 1:6). The meaning of this phrase is disputed. It is frequently understood to refer to the marital status of the church leader, excluding from leadership those who are (1) unmarried, (2) polygamous, (3) divorced, or (4) remarried after being widowed. A different interpretation is reflected in the NEB's translation "faithful to his one wife." §† tn: Grk "having children in submission with all dignity." The last phrase, "keep his children in control without losing his dignity," may refer to the children rather than the parent: "having children who are obedient and respectful." §†† tn: Grk "that he may not become arrogant." §† tn: Grk "the judgment of the devil," which could also mean "the judgment that the devil incurred." But see 1 Tim 1:20 for examples of the danger Paul seems to have in mind. §†† tn: Or "have a good reputation with"; Grk "have a good testimony from." §† tn: Grk "the ones outside." §† tn: Or "be trapped like the devil was"; Grk "fall into the trap of the devil." The parallel in 2 Tim 2:26 supports the rendering given in the text. §§† tn: Or "respectable, honorable, of serious demeanor." §§§ tn: Or "insincere," "deceitful"; Grk "speaking double." §§§ tn: Grk "not devoted to much wine." <sup>18</sup> sn: The mystery of the faith is a reference to the revealed truths of the Christian faith. <sup>19</sup> tn: Or "also deaconesses." 4 Now the Spirit explicitly says that in the later times some will desert the faith and occupy themselves†† with deceiving spirits and demonic teachings,<sup>‡2</sup> influenced by the hypocrisy of liars‡† whose consciences are seared.<sup>‡‡3</sup> They will prohibit marriage and require abstinence from foods that God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth.<sup>4</sup> For every creation of God is good and no food‡‡† is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving.<sup>5</sup> For it is sanctified by God's word and by prayer.

<sup>6</sup> By pointing out such things to the brothers and sisters,‡‡ you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, having nourished yourself on the words of the faith and of the good teaching that you have followed.<sup>§7</sup> But reject those myths§† fit only for the godless and gullible,§†† and train yourself for godliness.<sup>8</sup> For "physical exercise§† has some value, but godliness is valuable in every way. It holds promise for the present life and for the life to come."<sup>9</sup> This saying§†† is trustworthy and deserves full acceptance.<sup>10</sup> In fact this is why§† we work hard and struggle,§† because we have set our hope on the living God, who is the Savior of all people,§§† especially of believers.

<sup>11</sup> Command and teach these things.<sup>12</sup> Let no one look down on you because you are young, but set an example for the believers in your speech, conduct, love, faithfulness,§§† and purity.<sup>13</sup> Until I come, give attention to the public reading of scripture,§§§ to exhortation, to teaching.<sup>14</sup> Do not neglect the spiritual gift you have,<sup>18</sup> given to you and confirmed by prophetic words<sup>19</sup> when the elders laid hands on you.<sup>2015</sup> Take pains with these things; be absorbed in them, so that everyone will see your progress.<sup>2116</sup> Be conscientious about how you live and what you teach.<sup>22</sup> Persevere in this, because by doing so you will save both yourself and those who listen to you.

5 Do not address an older man harshly<sup>23</sup> but appeal to him as a father. Speak to younger men as brothers,<sup>242</sup> older women as mothers, and younger women as sisters – with complete purity.

<sup>3</sup> Honor<sup>25</sup> widows who are truly in need.<sup>264</sup> But if a widow has children or grandchildren, they should first learn to fulfill their duty<sup>27</sup> toward their own household and so repay their parents what is owed them.<sup>28</sup> For this is what pleases God.<sup>295</sup> But the widow who is truly in need, and completely on her own,<sup>30</sup> has set her hope on God and continues in her pleas and prayers night and day.<sup>6</sup> But the one who lives for pleasure is dead even<sup>31</sup> while she lives.<sup>7</sup> Reinforce<sup>32</sup> these com-

9 No widow should be put on the list† unless†† she is at least sixty years old, was the wife of one husband, †††10 and has a reputation for good works: as one who has raised children, †††† practiced hospitality, washed the feet of the saints, helped those in distress – as one who has exhibited all kinds of good works. †††††11 But do not accept younger widows on the list,§ because their passions may lead them away from Christ§† and they will desire to marry, 12 and so incur judgment for breaking their former pledge. †††††13 And besides that, going around§† from house to house they learn to be lazy, ††† and they are not only lazy, but also gossips and busybodies, talking about things they should not. ††††14 So I want younger women to marry, raise children, and manage a household, in order to give the adversary no opportunity to vilify us. ††††15 For some have already wandered away to follow Satan. †††††16 If a believing woman§§† has widows in her family, ††††† let her help them. It was either (1) the list of "true widows" who were given support by the church or (2) a smaller group of older women among the supported widows who were qualified for special service (perhaps to orphans, other widows, the sick, etc.). Most commentators understand it to be the former, since a special group is not indicated clearly. See G. W. Knight, Pastoral Epistles, 222-23 for discussion. †† tn: Grk "let a widow be enrolled if she has reached not less than sixty years." ††† tn: Or "a woman married only once," "was devoted solely to her husband" (see the note on "wife" in 1 Tim 3:2; also 1 Tim 3:12; Titus 1:6). †††† tn: Grk "if she raised children." 17 Elders who provide effective leadership<sup>19</sup> must be counted worthy<sup>20</sup> of double honor, <sup>21</sup> especially those who work hard in speaking<sup>22</sup> and teaching. 18 For the scripture says, "Do not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain,"<sup>23</sup> and, "The worker deserves his pay."<sup>24</sup>19 Do not accept an accusation against an elder unless it can be confirmed by two or three witnesses. <sup>25</sup>20 Those guilty of sin<sup>26</sup> must be rebuked<sup>27</sup> before all, <sup>28</sup> as a warning to the rest. <sup>29</sup>21 Before God and Christ Jesus and the elect angels, I solemnly charge you to carry out these commands without prejudice or favoritism of any kind. <sup>30</sup>22 Do not lay hands on anyone<sup>31</sup> hastily and so identify with the sins of others. <sup>32</sup> Keep yourself pure. <sup>23</sup> (Stop drinking just water, but use a little wine for your digestion<sup>33</sup> and your frequent illnesses.) <sup>34</sup>24 The sins of some people are obvious, going before them into judgment, but for others, they show up later. <sup>35</sup>25 Similarly good works are also obvious, and the ones that are not cannot remain hidden.

6 Those who are under the yoke as slaves<sup>36</sup> must regard their own masters as deserving of full respect. This will prevent<sup>37</sup> the name of God and Christian teaching<sup>38</sup> from being discredited. <sup>39</sup>2 But those who have believing masters must not show them less respect<sup>40</sup> because they are brothers. Summary of Timothy's Duties 'span class="s 1321" title="1321"

Teach them and exhort them about these things. <sup>13</sup> If someone spreads false teachings†† and does not agree with sound words (that is, those of our Lord Jesus Christ ) and with the teaching that accords with godliness, <sup>4</sup> he is conceited and understands nothing, but has an unhealthy interest in controversies and verbal disputes. This gives rise to envy, dissension, slanders, evil suspicions, <sup>5</sup> and constant bickering by people corrupted in their minds and deprived of the truth, who suppose that godliness‡ is a way of making a profit. <sup>6</sup> Now godliness combined with contentment brings great profit. <sup>7</sup> For we have brought nothing into this world and so†† we cannot take a single thing out either. <sup>8</sup> But if we have food and shelter, we will be satisfied with that. ††† Those who long to be rich, however, stumble into temptation and a trap and many senseless and harmful desires that plunge people into ruin and destruction. <sup>10</sup> For the love of money is the root††† of all evils. ††† Some people in reaching for it have strayed from the faith and stabbed themselves with many pains.

nesses. <sup>13</sup> I charge you§† before God who gives life to all things and Christ Jesus who made his good confession§† before Pontius Pilate, <sup>14</sup> to obey§§† this command§§† without fault or failure until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ<sup>15</sup> – whose appearing §§§ the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords, will reveal at the right time. <sup>16</sup> He alone possesses immortality and lives in unapproachable light, whom no human has ever seen or is able to see. To him be honor and eternal power ! Amen.

Conclusion

<sup>20</sup> O Timothy, protect what has been entrusted to you. Avoid<sup>25</sup> the profane chatter and absurdities<sup>26</sup> of so-called "knowledge." <sup>27</sup><sup>21</sup> By professing it, some have strayed from the faith. <sup>28</sup> Grace be with you all. <sup>29</sup>

Timothy's life, he publicly acknowledged Jesus as the resurrected Lord, perhaps either at his baptism or his ordination as a minister of the gospel. With this reminder of the historical moment of his good confession, Timothy is encouraged to remain steadfast in his faith and to finish his life as a minister in the same way it began (see G. W. ## 2 Timothy

Salutation

1 From Paul, † an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, to further the promise†† of life in Christ Jesus, <sup>2</sup> to Timothy, my dear child. Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord!

Thanksgiving and Charge to Timothy

3 I am thankful to God, whom I have served with a clear conscience as my ancestors did,‡ when I remember you in my prayers as I do constantly night and day. ††4 As I remember your tears, I long to see you, ‡‡ so that I may be filled with joy. <sup>5</sup> I recall††† your sincere faith††† that was alive first in your grandmother Lois and in your mother Eunice, and I am sure§ is in you.

6 Because of this I remind you to rekindle God's gift that you possess§† through the laying on of my hands. <sup>7</sup> For God did not give us a Spirit§†† of fear but of power and love and self-control. <sup>8</sup> So do not be ashamed of the testimony about our Lord§† or of me, a prisoner for his sake, but by§†† God's power accept your share of suffering§† for the gospel. <sup>9</sup> He is the one who saved us§† and called us with a holy calling, not based on§§† our works but on his own purpose and grace, granted to us in Christ Jesus before time began,<sup>§§†10</sup> but now made visible through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus. He§§§ has broken the power of death and brought life and immortality to light through the

But the reference to the Holy Spirit at the end of this section ( 1:14) makes it likely that it begins this way also, so that the Holy Spirit is the referent. §† tn: Grk "the testimony of our Lord." §†† tn: Or "according to." §††† tn: Grk "suffer hardship together," implying "join with me in suffering." §†† tn: More literally, "who saved us," as a description of God in v. 8. <sup>15</sup> You know that everyone in the province of Asia<sup>27</sup> deserted me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. <sup>16</sup> May the Lord grant mercy to the family of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me and was not ashamed of my imprisonment. <sup>2817</sup> But when he arrived in Rome, <sup>29</sup> he eagerly searched for me and found me. <sup>18</sup> May the Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord on that day.<sup>30</sup> And you know very well all the ways he served me in Ephesus. <sup>31</sup>

The parallel with v. 14 and use of similar words in the pastorals ( 1 Tim 6:20; 2 Tim 2:2) argue for the latter sense. <sup>23</sup> sn: That day is a reference to the day when Paul would stand before Christ to give account for his service (cf. 2 Tim 1:18; 1 Cor 3:13; 2 Cor 5:9-10).

<sup>8</sup> Remember Jesus Christ, raised from the dead, a descendant of David; §† such is my gospel, <sup>§††9</sup> for which I suffer hardship to the point of imprisonment§‡ as a criminal, but God's message§‡† is not imprisoned! <sup>§††10</sup> So I endure all things for the sake of those chosen by God,§‡ that they too may obtain salvation in Christ Jesus and its eternal glory. <sup>§§††11</sup> This saying§§‡ is trustworthy. §§§

If we died with him, we will also live with him.

<sup>12</sup> If we endure, we will also reign with him.<sup>18</sup>

If we deny<sup>19</sup> him,<sup>20</sup> he will also deny us.

In the ancient world these included requirements for training as well as rules for the competition itself. ‡‡‡ tn: The Greek word here usually means "for," but is used in this verse for a milder continuation of thought. § tn: Grk "in all things." §† tn: Grk "of David's seed" (an idiom for physical descent). §†† tn: Grk "according to my gospel." §‡ tn: Or "chains," "bonds." §‡† tn: Or "word." §†† tn: Or "chained," "bound." §‡‡ tn: Grk "the elect." §§† tn: Grk "with eternal glory." §§‡ sn: This saying (Grk "the saying") refers to the following citation. See 1 Tim 1:15; 3:1; 4:9; Titus 3:8 for other occurrences of this phrase. §§§ sn: The following passage has been typeset as poetry because many scholars regard this passage as poetic or hymnic. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: (a) stylistic: a certain rhythmical lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelismus membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context" (P. T. O'Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "died together...will live together...will reign together," without "him" stated explicitly. But "him" is implied by the parallel ideas in Rom 6:8; 8:17 and by the reference to Christ in vv. 12b-13. <sup>19</sup> tn: Or "renounce," "disown," "repudiate." It is important to note that the object of Christ's denial is "us." The text does not contain an implied object complement ("he will deny us [x]"), which would mean that Christ was withholding something from us (for example, "The owner denied his pets water"), since the verb ἀρνέομαι arneomai

<sup>13</sup> If we are unfaithful, he remains faithful, since he cannot deny himself. <sup>21</sup>

Dealing with False Teachers

<sup>14</sup> Remind people<sup>22</sup> of these things and solemnly charge them<sup>23</sup> before the Lord<sup>24</sup> not to wrangle over words. This is of no benefit; it just brings ruin on those who listen. <sup>25</sup><sup>15</sup> Make every effort to present yourself before God as a proven worker who does not need to be ashamed, teaching the message of truth accurately. <sup>26</sup><sup>16</sup> But avoid profane chatter, <sup>27</sup> because those occupied with it will stray further and further into ungodliness, <sup>28</sup><sup>17</sup> and their message will spread its infection<sup>29</sup> like gangrene. Hymenaeus and Philetus are in this group. <sup>30</sup><sup>18</sup> They have strayed from the truth<sup>31</sup> by saying that the resurrection has already occurred, and they are undermining some people's faith. <sup>19</sup> However, God's solid foundation remains standing, bearing this seal: "The Lord knows those who are his," <sup>32</sup> and "Everyone who confesses the name of the Lord<sup>33</sup> must turn away from evil."

<sup>20</sup> Now in a wealthy home<sup>34</sup> there are not only gold and silver vessels, but also ones made of wood and of clay, and some are for honorable use, but others for <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "if we renounce," but the "him" is implied by the parallel clauses. <sup>21</sup> sn: If we are unfaithful...he cannot deny himself. This could be (1) a word of warning (The Lord will exact punishment; he cannot deny his holiness) or (2) a word of hope (Because of who he is, he remains faithful to us despite our lapses). The latter is more likely, since Paul consistently cites God's faithfulness as a reassurance, not as a warning (cf. especially Rom 3:3; also 1 Cor 1:9; 10:13; 2 Cor 1:18; 1 Thess 5:24; 2 Thess 3:3). <sup>22</sup> tn: Grk "remind of these things," implying "them" or "people" as the object. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "solemnly charging." In regard to the message of truth, it means "correctly handling" or "imparting it without deviation." <sup>27</sup> sn: Profane chatter was apparently a characteristic of the false teachers in Ephesus (cf. 1 Tim 1:3-4; 4:7; 6:20). <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "they [who engage in it] will progress even more in ungodliness." <sup>29</sup> tn: Or "eat away." <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "of whom are Hymenaeus and Philetus." Instead, following their own desires,§† they will accumulate teachers for themselves, because they have an insatiable curiosity to hear new things.<sup>§††4</sup> And they will turn away from hearing the truth, but on the other hand they will turn aside to myths.<sup>§†5</sup> You, however, be self-controlled§†† in all things, endure hardship, do an evangelist's work, fulfill your ministry.<sup>6</sup> For I am already being poured out as an offering, and the time for me to depart§† is at hand.<sup>7</sup> I have competed well;§† I have finished the race; I have kept the faith!<sup>8</sup> Finally the crown of righteousness is reserved for me. The Lord, the righteous Judge, will award it to me in that day – and not to me only, but also to all who have set their affection on§†† his appearing.

Salutation

1 From Paul, † a slave†† of God and apostle of Jesus Christ, to further the faith‡ of God's chosen ones and the knowledge of the truth that is in keeping with godliness, <sup>2</sup> in hope of eternal life, which God, who does not lie, promised before the ages began. <sup>‡‡3</sup> But now in his own time‡‡ he has made his message evident through the preaching I was entrusted with according to the command of God our Savior. <sup>4</sup> To Titus, my genuine son in a common faith. Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior!

Titus' Task on Crete

not a drunkard, not violent, not greedy for gain. <sup>8</sup> Instead he must be hospitable, devoted to what is good, sensible, upright, devout, and self-controlled. <sup>9</sup> He must hold firmly to the faithful message as it has been taught, §‡ so that he will be able to give exhortation in such healthy teaching§†† and correct those who speak against it.

<sup>10</sup> For there are many§† rebellious people, idle talkers, and deceivers, especially those with Jewish connections, <sup>§†‡11</sup> who must be silenced because they mislead whole families by teaching for dishonest gain what ought not to be taught. <sup>12</sup> A certain one of them, in fact, one of their own prophets, said, "Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons." <sup>§†‡13</sup> Such testimony is true. For this reason rebuke them sharply that they may be healthy in the faith<sup>14</sup> and not pay attention to Jewish myths§§† and commands of people who reject the truth. <sup>15</sup> All is pure to those who are pure. But to those who are corrupt and unbelieving, nothing is pure, but both their minds and consciences are corrupted. <sup>16</sup> They profess to know God but with their deeds they deny him, since they are detestable, disobedient, and unfit for any good deed.

2 But as for you, communicate the behavior that goes with§§§ sound teaching. <sup>2</sup> Older men are to be temperate, dignified, self-controlled, <sup>18</sup> sound in faith, in love, and in endurance. <sup>19‡</sup> Older women likewise are to exhibit behavior fitting for those who are

In your teaching show integrity, dignity, <sup>8</sup> and a sound message that cannot be criticized, so that any opponent will be at a loss, <sup>9</sup> because he has nothing evil to say about us. <sup>9</sup> Slaves§† are to be subject to their own masters in everything, §†† to do what is wanted and not talk back, <sup>10</sup> not pilfering, but showing all good faith, §† in order to bring credit to§†† the teaching of God our Savior in everything.

<sup>11</sup> For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all people. <sup>§†††</sup> It trains us§† to reject godless ways§§† and worldly desires and to live self-controlled, upright, and godly lives in the present age, <sup>13</sup> as we wait for the happy fulfillment of our hope in the glorious appearing§§† of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ. <sup>§§§††</sup> He<sup>18</sup> gave himself for us to set us free from

Although Paul's comment here may appear as a stock expression to the casual reader, praising Philemon for his track record of faithfulness to Christ demonstrated in love for the saints is actually integral to the author's argument in this short but pithy letter. Paul will soon ask Philemon to demonstrate this love toward Onesimus, his runaway slave. §† tn: The Greek is somewhat awkward here. ## Introduction: God Has Spoken Fully and Finally in His Son

1 After God spoke long ago† in various portions†† and in various ways‡ to our ancestors‡† through the prophets,<sup>2</sup> in these last days he has spoken to us in a son,‡‡ whom he appointed heir of all things, and through whom he created the world. <sup>‡‡‡3</sup> The Son is‡‡‡ the radiance of his glory and the representation of his essence, and he sustains all things by his powerful word,§ and so when he had accomplished cleansing for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high. <sup>§†4</sup> Thus he became§†† so far better than the angels as§‡ he has inherited a name superior to theirs.

† tn: Or "spoke formerly." †† tn: Or "parts." The idea is that God's previous revelation came in many parts and was therefore fragmentary or partial (L&N 63.19), in comparison with the final and complete revelation contained in God's Son. However, some interpret πολυμερῶς polumerw πολυμερῶς πολυτρόπως polutropw"

‡ tn:

These two phrases are emphasized in Greek by being placed at the beginning of the sentence and by alliteration. ‡† tn: Grk "to the fathers." ‡‡ tn: The Greek puts an emphasis on the quality of God's final revelation. As such, it is more than an indefinite notion ("a son") though less than a definite one ("the son"), for this final revelation is not just through any son of God, nor is the emphasis specifically on the person himself. Rather, the focus here is on the nature of the vehicle of God's revelation: He is no mere spokesman (or prophet) for God, nor is he merely a heavenly messenger (or angel); instead, this final revelation comes through one who is intimately acquainted with the heavenly Father in a way that only a family member could be. There is, however, no exact equivalent in English ("in son" is hardly good English style). sn: The phrase in a son is the fulcrum of Heb 1:1-4. It concludes the contrast of God's old and new revelation and introduces a series of seven descriptions of the Son. These descriptions show why he is the ultimate revelation of God. ‡‡† tn: Grk "the ages." The temporal (ages) came to be used of the spatial (what exists in those time periods). See Heb 11:3 for the same usage. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "who being...and sustaining." Heb 1:1-4 form one skillfully composed sentence in Greek, but it must be broken into shorter segments to correspond to contemporary English usage, which does not allow for sentences of this length and complexity. § tn: Grk "by the word of his power." §† sn: An allusion to Ps 110:1, quoted often in Hebrews. §†† tn: Grk "having become." This is part of the same sentence that extends from v. 1 through v. 4 in the Greek text. §‡ tn: Most modern English translations attempt to make the comparison somewhat smoother by treating "name" as if it were the subject of the second element: "as the name he has inherited is superior to theirs" (cf. NAB, NIV,

The Son Is Superior to Angels

<sup>5</sup> For to which of the angels did God§†† ever say, "You are my son! Today I have fathered you" ‡§† And in another place§‡ he says, §§† "I will be his father and he will be my son." <sup>§§‡6</sup> But when he again brings§§§ his first-born into the world, he says, "Let all the angels of God worship him!" <sup>187</sup> And he says<sup>19</sup> of the angels, "He makes<sup>20</sup> his angels spirits and his ministers a flame of fire," <sup>218</sup> but of<sup>22</sup> the Son he says,<sup>23</sup>

"Your throne, O God, is forever and ever,<sup>24</sup> and a righteous scepter<sup>25</sup> is the scepter of your kingdom.

NRSV, CEV). However, the Son is the subject of both the first and second elements: "he became so far better"; "he has inherited a name." The present translation maintains this parallelism even though it results in a somewhat more awkward rendering. sn: This comparison is somewhat awkward to express in English, but it reflects an important element in the argument of Hebrews: the superiority of Jesus Christ. §†† tn: Grk "he"; the referent (God) has been specified in the translation for clarity. §† tn: Grk "I have begotten you." sn: A quotation from Ps 2:7. §‡ tn: Grk "And again," quoting another OT passage. §§† tn: The words "he says" are not in the Greek text but are supplied to make a complete English sentence. In the Greek text this is a continuation of the previous sentence, but English does not normally employ such long and complex sentences. §§‡ tn: Grk "I will be a father to him and he will be a son to me." sn: A quotation from 2 Sam 7:14 (cf. 1 Chr 17:13). §§§ tn: Or "And again when he brings." The translation adopted in the text looks forward to Christ's second coming to earth. Some take "again" to introduce the quotation (as in 1:5) and understand this as Christ's first coming, but this view does not fit well with Heb 2:7. Others understand it as his exaltation/ascension to heaven, but this takes the phrase "into the world" in an unlikely way. 18 sn: A quotation combining themes from Deut 32:43 and Ps 97:7. 19 sn: The Greek correlative conjunctions μέν δέ men de <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "He who makes." <sup>21</sup> sn: A quotation from Ps 104:4. <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "to." <sup>23</sup> tn: The verb "he says" (λέγει legei λέγει <sup>24</sup> tn: Or possibly, "Your throne is God forever and ever." This translation is quite doubtful, however, since (1) in the context the Son is being contrasted to the angels and is presented as far better than they. The imagery of God being the Son's throne would seem to be of God being his authority. If so, in what sense could this not be said of the angels? In what sense is the Son thus contrasted with the angels? (2) The μέν δέ men de

qeos θεός

<sup>9</sup> You have loved righteousness and hated lawlessness.
So God, your God, has anointed you over your companions† with the oil of rejoicing."††

<sup>10</sup> And,
" You founded the earth in the beginning, Lord,‡ and the heavens are the works of your hands.
<sup>11</sup> They will perish, but you continue.
And they will all grow old like a garment,
<sup>12</sup> and like a robe you will fold them up and like a garment‡‡ they will be changed, but you are the same and your years will never run out." ‡‡

<sup>13</sup> But to which of the angels‡‡‡ has he ever said, " Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"? <sup>‡‡‡14</sup> Are they not all ministering spirits, sent out to serve those§ who will inherit salvation?

2 Therefore we must pay closer attention to what we have heard, so that we do not drift away. <sup>2</sup> For if the message spoken through angels§† proved to be so firm that every violation§†† or disobedience received its just penalty, <sup>3</sup> how will we escape if we neglect such a great salvation? It was first communicated through the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard him, <sup>4</sup> while God confirmed their witness§‡ with signs and wonders and various miracles and gifts of the Holy Spirit distributed§‡† according to his will.

Exposition of Psalm 8: Jesus and the Destiny of Humanity

" What is man that you think of him§§† or the son of man that you care for him?
<sup>7</sup> You made him lower than the angels for a little while.

You crowned him with glory and honor. §§‡
For when he put all things under his control, he left nothing outside of his control. At present we do not yet see all things under his control, <sup>189</sup> but we see Jesus, who was made lower than the angels for a little while, <sup>19</sup> now crowned with glory and honor because he suffered death, <sup>20</sup> so that by God's grace he would experience<sup>21</sup> death on behalf of everyone. <sup>10</sup> For it was fitting for him, for whom and through whom all things exist,<sup>22</sup> in bringing many sons to glory, to make the pioneer<sup>23</sup> of their salvation perfect through sufferings.
<sup>11</sup> For indeed he who makes holy and those being made holy all have the same origin, <sup>24</sup> and so<sup>25</sup> he is not ashamed to call them brothers and sisters, <sup>2612</sup> saying, " I will proclaim your name to my brothers; <sup>27</sup> in the midst of the assembly I will praise you*." <sup>2813</sup> Again

§§§ tn: Grk "you subjected all things under his feet." sn: A quotation from Ps 8:4-6. 18 sn: The expression all things under his control occurs three times in 2:8. The latter two occurrences are not exactly identical to the Greek text of Ps 8:6 quoted at the beginning of the verse, but have been adapted by the writer of Hebrews to fit his argument. 19 tn: Or "who was made a little lower than the angels." 20 tn: Grk "because of the suffering of death." 21 tn: Grk "would taste." Here the Greek verb does not mean "sample a small amount" (as a typical English reader might infer from the word "taste"), but "experience something cognitively or emotionally; come to know something" (cf. BDAG 195 s.v. γεύομαι 22 tn: Grk "for whom are all things and through whom are all things." 23 sn: The Greek word translated pioneer is used of a "prince" or leader, the representative head of a family. It also carries nuances of "trailblazer," one who breaks through to new ground for those who follow him. It is used some thirty-five times in the Greek OT and four times in the NT, always of Christ ( Acts 3:15; 5:31; Heb 2:10; 12:2). 24 tn: Grk "are all from one." 25 tn: Grk "for which reason." 26 tn: Grk "brothers," but the Greek word may be used for "brothers and sisters" as here (cf. he says,† "I will be confident in him," and again, " Here I am,†† with ‡ the children God has given me*." <sup>††14</sup> Therefore, since the children share in flesh and blood, he likewise shared in‡‡ their humanity, ‡‡† so that through death he could destroy‡‡‡ the one who holds the power of death (that is, the devil), <sup>15</sup> and set free those who were held in slavery all their lives by their fear of death. <sup>16</sup> For surely his concern is not for angels, but he is concerned for Abraham's descendants. <sup>17</sup> Therefore he had§ to be made like his brothers and sisters§† in every respect, so that he could become a merciful and faithful high priest in things relating to God, to make atonement§†† for the sins of the people. <sup>18</sup> For since he himself suffered when he was tempted, he is able to help those who are tempted.

3 Therefore, holy brothers and sisters, §† partners in a heavenly calling, take note of Jesus, the apostle and high priest whom we confess, <sup>§††2</sup> who is faithful to the one who appointed him, as Moses was also in God's§† house. <sup>§†3</sup> For he has come to deserve greater glory than Moses, just as the builder of a house deserves greater honor than the house itself! <sup>4</sup> For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God. <sup>5</sup> Now Moses was faithful in all God's§† house§§† as a servant, to testify to the things that would be spoken. <sup>6</sup> But Christ§§§ is faithful as a son over God's<sup>18</sup> house. We are of his house, <sup>19</sup> if in fact we hold firmly<sup>20</sup> to our confidence and the hope we take pride in. <sup>21</sup>

Exposition of Psalm 95: Hearing God's Word in Faith

<sup>7</sup> Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, <sup>22</sup>
 " Oh, that today you would listen as he speaks! <sup>23</sup>
<sup>8</sup> " Do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion , in the day of testing in the wilderness.
<sup>9</sup> " There your fathers tested me and tried me,<sup>24</sup> and they saw my works for forty years.
<sup>10</sup> " Therefore , I became provoked at that generation and said , 'Their hearts are always wandering<sup>25</sup> and they have not known my ways.'
<sup>11</sup> " As I swore in my anger , 'They will never enter my rest!'" <sup>26</sup>
<sup>12</sup> See to it,<sup>27</sup> brothers and sisters, <sup>28</sup> that none of you has<sup>29</sup> an evil, unbelieving heart that forsakes<sup>30</sup> the living God. <sup>3113</sup> But exhort one another each day, as long as it is called "Today," that none of you may become hardened by sin's deception. <sup>14</sup> For we have become partners with Christ, if in fact we hold our initial confidence<sup>32</sup> firm until the end. <sup>15</sup> As it says, <sup>33</sup> " O, that today you would listen as he speaks !<sup>34</sup> Do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion." <sup>3516</sup> For which ones heard and rebelled ? Was it not all who came out of Egypt under Moses' leadership? <sup>3617</sup> And against whom was God<sup>37</sup> provoked for forty years ? Was it not those who sinned, whose dead bodies fell in the wilderness? <sup>3818</sup> And to whom did he swear they would never enter into his rest, except those who were disobedient? <sup>19</sup> So<sup>39</sup> we see that they could not enter because of unbelief.

4 Therefore we must be wary<sup>40</sup> that, while the promise of entering his rest remains open, none of you may seem to have come short of it. <sup>2</sup> For we had good news proclaimed to us just as they did. But the message they heard did them no good, since they did not join in† with those who heard it in faith.<sup>††3</sup> For we who have believed enter that rest, as he has said, "As I swore in my anger, 'They will never enter my rest!'"‡ And yet God's works‡‡ were accomplished from the foundation of the world.<sup>4</sup> For he has spoken somewhere about the seventh day in this way: "And God rested on the seventh day from all his works,"<sup>‡‡5</sup> but to repeat the text cited earlier:‡‡† "They will never enter my rest!"<sup>6</sup> Therefore it remains for some to enter it, yet those to whom it was previously proclaimed did not enter because of disobedience.<sup>7</sup> So God‡‡‡ again ordains a certain day, "Today," speaking through David§ after so long a time, as in the words quoted before,§† "O, that today you would listen as he speaks!§†† Do not harden your hearts."<sup>8</sup> For if Joshua had given them rest, God§‡ would not have spoken afterward about another day.<sup>9</sup> Consequently a Sabbath rest remains for the people of God.<sup>10</sup> For the one who enters God's§‡‡ rest has also rested from his works, just as God did from his own works.<sup>11</sup> Thus we must make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one may fall by following the same pattern of disobedience.<sup>12</sup> For the word of God is living and active and sharper than any double-edged sword, piercing even to the point of dividing soul from spirit, and joints from marrow; it is able to judge the desires and thoughts of the heart.<sup>13</sup> And no creature is hidden from God,§† but everything is naked and exposed to the eyes of him to whom we must render an account.

Jesus Our Compassionate High Priest

<sup>14</sup> Therefore since we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast to our confession.<sup>15</sup> For we do not have a high priest incapable of sympathizing with our weaknesses, but one who has been tempted in every way just as we are, yet without sin.<sup>16</sup> Therefore let us confidently approach the throne of grace to receive mercy and find grace whenever we need help.§‡

5 For every high priest is taken from among the people§§† and appointed§§‡ to represent them before God,§§§ to offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins.<sup>2</sup> He is able to deal compassionately with those who are ignorant and erring, since he also is subject to weakness,<sup>3</sup> and for this reason he is obligated to make sin offerings for himself as well as for the people.<sup>4</sup> And no one assumes this honor<sup>18</sup> on his own initiative,<sup>19</sup> but only when called to it by God,<sup>20</sup> as in fact Aaron was.<sup>5</sup> So also Christ did not glorify himself in becoming high priest, but the one who glorified him was God,<sup>21</sup> who said to him, "You are my Son! Today I have fathered you,"<sup>226</sup> as also in another place God<sup>23</sup> says, "You are a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek."<sup>247</sup> During his earthly life<sup>25</sup> Christ<sup>26</sup> offered<sup>27</sup> both requests and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to the one who was able to save him from death and he was heard because of his devotion.<sup>8</sup> Although he was a son, he learned obedience through the things he suffered.<sup>289</sup> And by being perfected in this way, he became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey him,<sup>10</sup> and he was designated<sup>29</sup> by God as high priest in the order of Melchizedek.<sup>30</sup>

The Need to Move on to Maturity

<sup>11</sup> On this topic we have much to say<sup>31</sup> and it is difficult to explain, since you have become sluggish<sup>32</sup> in hearing.<sup>12</sup> For though you should in fact be teachers

by this time, † you need someone to teach you the beginning elements of God’s utterances. †† You have gone back to needing‡ milk, not‡† solid food. 13 For everyone who lives on milk is inexperienced in the message of righteousness, because he is an infant. 14 But solid food is for the mature, whose perceptions are trained by practice to discern both good and evil.

6 Therefore we must progress beyond‡† the elementary ‡† instructions about Christ‡† and move on‡ to maturity, not laying this foundation again : repentance from dead works and faith in God, 2 teaching about baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. 3 And this is what we intend to do, ‡† if God permits. 4 For it is impossible in the case of those who have once been enlightened, tasted the heavenly gift, become partakers of the Holy Spirit, 5 tasted the good word of God and the miracles of the coming age, 6 and then have committed apostasy, ‡† to renew them again to repentance, since‡† they are crucifying the Son of God for themselves all over again‡† and holding him up to contempt. 7 For the ground that has soaked up the rain that frequently falls on‡† it and yields useful vegetation for those who tend it receives a blessing from God. 8 But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is useless and about to be cursed; ‡† its fate is to be burned. 9 But in your case, dear friends, even though we speak like this, we are convinced of better things relating to salvation. 10 For God is not unjust so as to forget your work and the love you have demonstrated for his name, in having served and continuing to serve the saints. 11 But we passionately want each of you to demonstrate the same eagerness for the fulfillment of your hope until the end, 12 so that you may not be sluggish, ‡† but imitators of those who through faith and perseverance inherit the promises.

people<sup>18</sup> swear by something greater than themselves,<sup>19</sup> and the oath serves as a confirmation to end all dispute.<sup>20</sup> In the same way<sup>21</sup> God wanted to demonstrate more clearly to the heirs of the promise that his purpose was unchangeable,<sup>22</sup> and so he intervened with an oath,<sup>18</sup> so that we who have found refuge in him<sup>23</sup> may find strong encouragement to hold fast to the hope set before us through two unchangeable things, since it is impossible for God to lie.<sup>19</sup> We have this hope as an anchor for the soul, sure and steadfast, which reaches inside behind the curtain,<sup>24</sup> where Jesus our forerunner entered on our behalf, since he became a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek forever in the order of Melchizedek.<sup>25</sup> firmed to be alive.<sup>9</sup> And it could be said that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid a tithe through Abraham.<sup>10</sup> For he was still in his ancestor Abraham's loins† when Melchizedek met him.

Jesus and the Priesthood of Melchizedek

<sup>11</sup> So if perfection had in fact been possible through the Levitical priesthood – for on that basis†† the people received the law – what further need would there have been for another priest to arise, said to be in the order of Melchizedek and not in Aaron's order? <sup>12</sup> For when the priesthood changes, a change in the law must come‡ as well. <sup>13</sup> Yet the one these things are spoken about belongs to†† a different tribe, and no one from that tribe‡‡ has ever officiated at the altar. <sup>14</sup> For it is clear that our Lord is descended from Judah, yet Moses said nothing about priests in connection with that tribe. <sup>15</sup> And this is even clearer if another priest arises in the likeness of Melchizedek, <sup>16</sup> who has become a priest not by a legal regulation about physical descent‡‡‡ but by the power of an indestructible life. <sup>17</sup> For here is the testimony about him:‡‡‡ "You are a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek."<sup>§18</sup> On the one hand a former command is set aside§† because it is weak and useless,<sup>§††19</sup> for the law made nothing perfect. On the other hand a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God. <sup>20</sup> And since§† this was not done without a sworn affirmation – for the others have become priests without a sworn affirmation, <sup>21</sup> but Jesus§†† did so §† with a sworn affirmation by the one who said to him, "The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind, 'You are a priest forever'" §† – <sup>22</sup> accordingly Jesus has become the guarantee§§† of a better covenant. <sup>23</sup> And the others§§† who became priests were numerous, because death prevented them§§§ from continuing in office,<sup>1824</sup> but he holds his priesthood permanently since he lives forever. <sup>25</sup> So he is able to save completely those who come to God through him, because he always lives to intercede for them. <sup>26</sup> For it is indeed fitting for us to have such a high priest: holy, innocent, undefiled, separate from sinners, and exalted above the heavens. <sup>27</sup> He has no need to do every day what those priests do, to offer sacrifices first for their own sins and then for the sins of the people, since he did this in offering himself once for all. <sup>28</sup> For the law appoints as high priests men subject to weakness, <sup>19</sup> but the word of solemn affirmation that came after the law appoints a son made perfect forever.

8 Now the main point of what we are saying is this:<sup>20</sup> We have such a high priest, one who sat down at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven,<sup>212</sup> a minister in the sanctuary and the true tabernacle that the Lord, not man, set up. <sup>3</sup> For every high priest is appointed to offer both gifts and sacrifices. So this one too had to have something to offer. <sup>4</sup> Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest, since there are already priests who offer<sup>22</sup> the gifts prescribed by the law. <sup>5</sup> The place where they serve is<sup>23</sup> a sketch <sup>24</sup> and shadow of the heavenly sanctuary, just as Moses was warned by God as he was about to complete the tabernacle. For he says, "See that you make everything according to the design<sup>25</sup> shown to you on the mountain."<sup>266</sup> But<sup>27</sup> now Jesus<sup>28</sup> has obtained a superior ministry, since<sup>29</sup> the covenant that he mediates is also better and is enacted<sup>30</sup> on better promises. <sup>31</sup>

In this ark<sup>19</sup> were the golden urn containing the manna, Aaron’s rod that budded, and the stone tablets of the covenant. 5 And above the ark<sup>20</sup> were the cherubim<sup>21</sup> of glory overshadowing the mercy seat. Now is not the time to speak of these things in detail. 6 So with these things prepared like this, the priests enter continually into the outer tent<sup>22</sup> as they perform their duties. 7 But only the high priest enters once a year into the inner tent,<sup>23</sup> and not without blood that he offers for himself and for the sins of the people committed in ignorance. <sup>248</sup> The Holy Spirit is making clear that the way into the holy place had not yet appeared as long as the old tabernacle<sup>25</sup> was standing. 9 This was a symbol for the time then present, when gifts and sacrifices were offered that could not perfect the conscience of the worshiper. 10 They served only for matters of food and drink<sup>26</sup> and various washings; they are external regulations<sup>27</sup> imposed until the new order came. <sup>28</sup>

<sup>15</sup> And so he is the mediator†† of a new covenant, so that those who are called may receive the eternal inheritance he has promised,‡ since he died††† to set them free from the violations committed under the first covenant.<sup>16</sup> For where there is a will, the death of the one who made it must be proven.<sup>†††17</sup> For a will takes effect only at death, since it carries no force while the one who made it is alive.<sup>18</sup> So even the first covenant was inaugurated with blood.<sup>§19</sup> For when Moses had spoken every command to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and goats with water and scarlet wool and hyssop and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people,<sup>20</sup> and said, "This is the blood of the covenant that God has commanded you to keep."<sup>§†21</sup> And both the tabernacle and all the utensils of worship he likewise sprinkled with blood.<sup>22</sup> Indeed according to the law almost everything was purified with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.<sup>23</sup> So it was necessary for the sketches§†† of the things in heaven to be purified with these sacrifices,§‡ but the heavenly things themselves required§†† better sacrifices than these.<sup>24</sup> For Christ did not enter a sanctuary made with hands – the representation§† of the true sanctuary§‡ – but into heaven itself, and he appears now in God's presence for us.<sup>25</sup> And he did not enter to offer§§† himself again and again, the way the high priest enters the sanctuary year after year with blood that is not his own,<sup>26</sup> for then he would have had to suffer again and again since the foundation of the world. But now he has appeared once for all at the consummation of the ages to put away sin by his sacrifice.<sup>27</sup> And just as people§§‡ are appointed to die once, and then to face judgment,<sup>§§§28</sup> so also, after Christ was offered once to bear the sins of many,<sup>18</sup> to those who eagerly await him he will appear a second time, not to bear sin<sup>19</sup> but to bring salvation.<sup>20</sup>

10 For the law possesses a shadow of the good things to come but not the reality itself, and is therefore completely unable, by the same sacrifices offered continually, year after year, to perfect those who come to worship.<sup>212</sup> For otherwise would they not have ceased to be offered, since the worshipers would have been purified once for all and so have<sup>22</sup> no further consciousness of sin?<sup>3</sup> But in those sacrifices<sup>23</sup> there is a reminder of sins year after year.<sup>4</sup> For the blood of bulls and goats cannot take away sins.<sup>245</sup> So when he came into the world, he said, "Sacrifice and offering you did not desire, but a body you prepared for me.<sup>6</sup> " Whole burnt offerings and sin-offerings you took no delight in.

This may be construed with the verb "await" (those who wait for him to bring them salvation), but the connection with "appear" (as in the translation) is more likely. 21 tn: Grk "those who approach." 22 tn: Grk "the worshipers, having been purified once for all, would have." 23 tn: Grk "in them"; the referent (those sacrifices) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 24 tn: Grk "for it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins."

8 When he says above, " Sacrifices and offerings and whole burnt offerings and sin-offerings you did not desire nor did you take delight in them¶ (which are offered according to the law),<sup>9</sup> then he says, " Here I am: I have come to do your will .¶† He does away with‡‡ the first to establish the second.<sup>10</sup> By his will‡‡‡ we have been made holy through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.<sup>11</sup> And every priest stands day after day‡‡‡ serving and offering the same sacrifices again and again – sacrifices that can never take away sins.<sup>12</sup> But when this priest¶ had offered one sacrifice for sins for all time, he sat down at the right hand§† of God,<sup>13</sup> where he is now waiting§†† until his enemies are made a footstool for his feet. <sup>§†14</sup> For by one offering he has perfected for all time those who are made holy.<sup>15</sup> And the Holy Spirit also witnesses to us, for after saying, <sup>§††16</sup> " This is the covenant that I will establish with them after those days , says the Lord . I will put§† my laws on their hearts and I will inscribe them on their minds,"<sup>§†17</sup> then he says,§†† " Their sins and their lawless deeds I will remember no longer."<sup>§†18</sup> Now where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer any offering for sin.

of God,<sup>22</sup> let us draw near with a sincere heart in the assurance that faith brings,<sup>21</sup> because we have had our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience<sup>22</sup> and our bodies washed in pure water.<sup>23</sup> And let us hold unwaveringly to the hope that we confess, for the one who made the promise is trustworthy.<sup>24</sup> And let us take thought of how to spur one another on to love and good works,<sup>2325</sup> not abandoning our own meetings, as some are in the habit of doing, but encouraging each other, and even more so because you see the day<sup>24</sup> drawing near.<sup>25</sup>

26 For if we deliberately keep on sinning after receiving the knowledge of the truth, no further sacrifice for sins is left for us,<sup>2627</sup> but only a certain fearful expectation of judgment and a fury<sup>27</sup> of fire that will consume God's enemies.<sup>2828</sup> Someone who rejected the law of Moses was put to death<sup>29</sup> without mercy on the testimony of two or three witnesses.<sup>3029</sup> How much greater punishment do you think that person deserves who has contempt for<sup>31</sup> the Son of God, and profanes<sup>32</sup> the blood of the covenant that made him holy,<sup>33</sup> and insults the Spirit of grace?<sup>30</sup> For we know the one who said, " Vengeance is mine , I will repay ,"<sup>34</sup> and again, " The Lord will judge his people."<sup>3531</sup> It is a terrifying thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

It begins with several subordinate phrases (since we have confidence and a great priest), has three parallel exhortations as its main verbs (let us draw near, hold, and take thought), and concludes with several subordinate phrases related to the final exhortation (not abandoning but encouraging). 26 tn: Grk "is left," with "for us" implied by the first half of the verse. 27 tn: Grk "zeal," recalling God's jealous protection of his holiness and honor (cf. 11 Now faith is being sure of what we hope for, being convinced of what we do not see. <sup>2</sup> For by it the people of old§† received God's commendation. <sup>§††3</sup> By faith we understand that the worlds§† were set in order at God's command, §†† so that the visible has its origin in the invisible. <sup>§†4</sup> By faith Abel offered God a greater sacrifice than Cain, and through his faith§† he was commended as righteous, because God commended him for his offerings. And through his faith§†† he still speaks, though he is dead. <sup>5</sup> By faith Enoch was taken up so that he did not see death, and he was not to be found because God took him up. For before his removal he had been commended as having pleased God. <sup>6</sup> Now without faith it is impossible to please him, for the one who approaches God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. <sup>7</sup> By faith Noah, when he was warned about things not yet seen, with reverent regard§§† constructed an ark for the deliverance of his family. Through faith he condemned the world and became an heir of the righteousness that comes by faith.

<sup>8</sup> By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place he would later receive as an inheritance, and he went out without understanding where he was going. <sup>9</sup> By faith he lived as a foreigner§§§ in the promised land as though it were a foreign country, living in tents with Isaac and Jacob, who were fellow heirs<sup>18</sup> of the same promise. <sup>10</sup> For he was looking forward to the city with firm foundations, <sup>19</sup> whose architect and builder is God. <sup>11</sup> By faith, even though Sarah herself was barren and he was too old, <sup>20</sup> he received the ability to procreate, <sup>21</sup> because he regarded the one who had given the promise to be trustworthy. <sup>12</sup> So in fact children<sup>22</sup> were fathered by one man – and this one as good as dead – like the number of stars in the sky and like the innumerable grains of sand<sup>23</sup> on the seashore. <sup>24,13</sup> These all died in faith without receiving the things promised, <sup>25</sup> but they saw them in the distance and welcomed them and acknowledged that they were strangers and foreigners<sup>26</sup> on the earth. <sup>14</sup> For those who speak in such a way make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. <sup>15</sup> In fact, if they had been thinking of the land that they had left, they would have had opportunity to return. <sup>16</sup> But as it is,<sup>27</sup> they aspire to a better land, that is, a heavenly one. Therefore, God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared a city for them. <sup>17</sup> By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac. He had received the promises, <sup>28</sup> yet he was ready to offer up<sup>29</sup> his only son. <sup>18</sup> God had told him, "Through Isaac descendants will carry on your name," <sup>30,19</sup> and he reasoned<sup>31</sup> that God could even raise him from the dead, and in a sense<sup>32</sup> he received him back from there. <sup>20</sup> By faith also Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning the future. <sup>21</sup> By faith Jacob, as he was dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph and worshiped as he leaned on his staff as he leaned on his staff. <sup>33,22</sup> By faith Joseph, at the end of his life, <sup>34</sup> mentioned the exodus of the sons of Israel<sup>35</sup> and gave instructions about his burial. <sup>36</sup>

<sup>23</sup> By faith, when Moses was born, his parents hid him† for three months, because they saw the child was beautiful and they were not afraid of the king's edict. <sup>24</sup> By faith, when he grew up, Moses refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, <sup>25</sup> choosing rather to be ill-treated with the people of God than to enjoy sin's fleeting pleasure. <sup>26</sup> He regarded abuse suffered for Christ†† to be greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for his eyes were fixed on‡ the reward. <sup>27</sup> By faith he left Egypt without fearing the king's anger, for he persevered as though he could see the one who is invisible. <sup>28</sup> By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of the blood,†† so that the one who destroyed the firstborn would not touch them. <sup>29</sup> By faith they crossed the Red Sea as if on dry ground, but when the Egyptians tried it, they were swallowed up. <sup>30</sup> By faith the walls of Jericho‡‡ fell after the people marched around them‡‡‡ for seven days. <sup>31</sup> By faith Rahab the prostitute escaped the destruction of‡‡‡ the disobedient, because she welcomed the spies in peace.

<sup>32</sup> And what more shall I say? For time will fail me if I tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets. <sup>33</sup> Through faith they conquered kingdoms, administered justice, § gained what was promised, §† shut the mouths of lions, §‡ quenched raging fire, §†† escaped the edge of the sword, gained strength in weakness, §‡ became mighty in battle, put foreign armies to flight, §‡ and women received back their dead raised to life. §†† But others were tortured, not accepting release, to obtain resurrection to a better life. §†‡‡ And others experienced mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment. <sup>37</sup> They were stoned, sawed apart, §‡ murdered with the sword; they went about in sheepskins and goatskins; they were destitute, afflicted, ill-treated§§ (the world was not worthy of them); they wandered in deserts and mountains and caves and openings in the earth. <sup>39</sup> And these all were commended§§† for their faith, yet they did not receive what was promised. §§†‡‡ For God had provided something better for us, so that they would be made perfect together with us. §§§

12 Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, <sup>18</sup> we must get rid of every weight and the sin that clings so closely, and run with endurance the race set out for us, <sup>2</sup> keeping our eyes fixed on Jesus, the pioneer and perfecter of our faith. For the joy set out for him he endured the cross, disregarding its shame, and has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of God. <sup>19</sup> Think of him who endured such opposition against himself by sinners, so that you may not grow weary in your souls and give up. <sup>4</sup> You have not yet resisted to the point of bloodshed<sup>20</sup> in your struggle against sin. <sup>5</sup> And have you forgotten the exhortation addressed to you as sons?

" My son , do not scorn<sup>21</sup> the Lord's discipline or give up when he corrects<sup>22</sup> you *.

6" For the Lord disciplines the one he loves and chastises every son he accepts." <sup>23</sup>

<sup>7</sup> Endure your suffering<sup>24</sup> as discipline; <sup>25</sup> God is treating you as sons. For what son is there that a father does not discipline? <sup>8</sup> But if you do not experience discipline, <sup>26</sup> something all sons<sup>27</sup> have shared in, then you are illegitimate and are not sons. <sup>9</sup> Besides, we have experienced discipline from<sup>28</sup> our earthly fathers<sup>29</sup> and we respected them; shall we not submit ourselves all the more to the Father of spirits and receive life? <sup>30</sup><sup>10</sup> For they disciplined us for a little while as seemed good to them, but he does so for our benefit, that we may share his holiness. <sup>11</sup> Now all discipline seems painful at the time, not joyful. <sup>31</sup> But later

§§† sn: The expression these all were commended forms an inclusio with Heb 11:2: The chapter begins and ends with references to commendation for faith. §§‡ tn: Grk "the promise," referring to the thing God promised, not to the pledge itself. §§§ tn: The Greek phrasing emphasizes this point by negating the opposite: "so that they would not be made perfect without us." <sup>18</sup> tn: Grk "having such a great cloud of witnesses surrounding us." <sup>19</sup> sn: An allusion to Ps 110:1. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "until blood." <sup>21</sup> tn: Or "disregard," "think little of." <sup>22</sup> tn: Or "reproves," "rebukes." The Greek verb ἐλέγχεω (elencw) it produces the fruit of peace and righteousness† for those trained by it. <sup>12</sup> Therefore, strengthen †† your listless hands and your weak knees, <sup>‡13</sup> and make straight paths for your feet straight paths for your feet, ‡† so that what is lame may not be put out of joint but be healed.

<sup>23</sup> sn: A quotation from Prov 3:11-12. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "endure," with the object ("your suffering") understood from the context. <sup>25</sup> tn: Or "in order to become disciplined." <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk "you are without discipline." <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk "all"; "sons" is implied by the context. <sup>28</sup> tn: Grk "we had our earthly fathers as discipliners." <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk "the fathers of our flesh." In Hebrews, "flesh" is a characteristic way of speaking about outward, physical, earthly life (cf. Heb 5:7; 9:10, 13), as opposed to the inward or spiritual dimensions of life. <sup>30</sup> tn: Grk "and live." sn: Submit ourselves...to the Father of spirits and receive life. This idea is drawn from Proverbs, where the Lord's discipline brings life, while resistance to it leads to death (cf. Prov 4:13; 6:23; 10:17; 16:17). <sup>31</sup> tn:

Do Not Reject God's Warning

<sup>14</sup> Pursue peace with everyone, and holiness, ‡ for without it no one will see the Lord. <sup>15</sup> See to it that no one comes short of the grace of God, that no one be like a bitter root springing up ‡†† and causing trouble, and through him many become defiled. <sup>16</sup> And see to it that no one becomes ‡†† an immoral or godless person like Esau, who sold his own birthright for a single meal. <sup>§17</sup> For you know that §† later when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected, for he found no opportunity for repentance, although he sought the blessing §†† with tears. <sup>18</sup> For you have not come to something that can be touched, §† to a burning fire and darkness and gloom and a whirlwind<sup>19</sup> and the blast of a trumpet and a voice uttering words §†† such that those who heard begged to hear no more. <sup>§†20</sup> For they could not bear what was commanded: "If even an animal touches the mountain, it must be stoned." <sup>§†21</sup> In fact, the scene §§† was so terrifying that Moses said, "I shudder with fear." <sup>§§†22</sup> But you have come to Mount Zion, the city §§§ of the living God, the heavenly

Grk "all discipline at the time does not seem to be of joy, but of sorrow." † tn: Grk "the peaceful fruit of righteousness." †† tn: Or "straighten." ‡ sn: A quotation from Isa 35:3. Strengthen your listless hands and your weak knees refers to the readers' need for renewed resolve and fresh strength in their struggles (cf. Heb 10:36-39; 12:1-3). ‡† sn: A quotation from Prov 4:26. The phrase make straight paths for your feet is figurative for "stay on God's paths." ‡†† sn: The references to peace and holiness show the close connection between this paragraph and the previous one. The pathway toward "holiness" and the need for it is cited in Heb 12:10 and 14. More importantly Prov 4:26-27 sets up the transition from one paragraph to the next: It urges people to stay on godly paths (Prov 4:26, quoted here in v. 13) and promises that God will lead them in peace if they do so (Prov 4:27 [LXX], quoted in v. 14). ‡†† tn: Grk "that there not be any root of bitterness," but referring figuratively to a person who causes trouble (as in Deut 29:17 [LXX] from which this is quoted). sn: An allusion to Deut 29:18. ‡†† tn: Grk "that there not be any," continuing from v. 15. § sn: An allusion to Gen 27:34-41. §† tn: Or a command: "for understand that." §†† tn: Grk "it," referring either to the repentance or the blessing. But the account in Gen 27:34-41 (which the author appeals to here) makes it clear that the blessing is what Esau sought. Thus in the translation the referent (the blessing) is specified for clarity. §‡ tn: This describes the nation of Israel approaching God on Mt. Sinai (Exod 19). There is a clear contrast with the reference to Mount Zion in v. 22, so this could be translated "a mountain that can be touched." But the word "mountain" does not occur here and the more vague description seems to be deliberate. §†† tn: Grk "a voice of words." §† tn: Grk "a voice...from which those who heard begged that a word not be added to them." §‡ sn: A quotation from Exod 19:12-13. §§† tn: Grk "that which appeared." §§‡ tn: Grk "I am terrified and trembling." sn: A quotation from Deut 9:19. §§§ tn: Grk "and the city"; the conjunction is omitted in translation since it seems to be functioning epexegetically - that is, explaining further what is meant by "Mount Zion."

Jerusalem, and to myriads of angels, to the assembly <sup>23</sup> and congregation of the firstborn, who are enrolled in heaven, and to God, the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous, who have been made perfect, <sup>24</sup> and to Jesus, the mediator<sup>18</sup> of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks of something better than Abel's does. <sup>19</sup>

<sup>25</sup> Take care not to refuse the one who is speaking! For if they did not escape when they refused the one who warned them on earth, how much less shall we, if we reject the one who warns from heaven? <sup>26</sup> Then his voice shook the earth, but now he has promised, "I will once more shake not only the earth but heaven too." <sup>2027</sup> Now this phrase "once more" indicates the removal of what is shaken, that is, of created things, so that what is unshaken may remain. <sup>28</sup> So since we are receiving an unshakable kingdom, let us give thanks, and through this let us offer worship pleasing to God in devotion and awe. <sup>29</sup> For our God is indeed a devouring fire. <sup>21</sup>

13 Brotherly love must continue. <sup>2</sup> Do not neglect hospitality, because through it some have entertained angels without knowing it. <sup>223</sup> Remember those in prison as though you were in prison with them, <sup>23</sup> and those ill-treated as though you too felt their torment. <sup>244</sup> Marriage must be honored among all and the marriage bed kept undefiled, for God will judge sexually immoral people and adulterers. <sup>5</sup> Your conduct must be free from the love of money and you must be content with what you have, for he has said, "I will never leave you and I will never abandon you." <sup>256</sup> So we can say with confidence, "The Lord is my helper, and <sup>26</sup> I will not be afraid. What can man do to me?" <sup>277</sup> Remember your leaders, who spoke God's message to you; reflect on the outcome of their lives and imitate their faith. <sup>8</sup> Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever! <sup>9</sup> Do not be carried away by all sorts of strange teachings. <sup>28</sup> For it is good for the heart to be strengthened by grace, not ritual meals, <sup>29</sup> which have never benefited those who partic-

<sup>17</sup> Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they keep watch over your souls and will give an account for their work.‡† Let them do this‡† with joy and not with complaints, for this would be no advantage for you. <sup>18</sup> Pray for us, for we are sure that we have a clear conscience and desire to conduct ourselves rightly in every respect. <sup>19</sup> I especially ask you to pray‡†† that I may be restored to you very soon.

Salutation

1 From James, † a slave†† of God and the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes dispersed abroad. ‡ Greetings!

Joy in Trials

<sup>2</sup> My brothers and sisters, ‡† consider it nothing but joy‡† when you fall into all sorts of trials, <sup>3</sup> because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance. <sup>4</sup> And let endurance have its perfect effect, so that you will be perfect and complete, not deficient in anything. <sup>5</sup> But if anyone is deficient in wisdom, he should ask God, who gives to all generously and without reprimand, and it will be given to him. <sup>6</sup> But he must ask in faith without doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave of the sea, blown and tossed around by the wind. <sup>7</sup> For that person must not suppose that he will receive anything from the Lord, <sup>8</sup>

since he is a double-minded individual, ‡‡† unstable in all his ways.

<sup>9</sup> Now the believer‡‡† of humble means§ should take pride§† in his high position. <sup>§††10</sup> But the rich person's pride should be in his humiliation, because he will pass away like a wildflower in the meadow. <sup>§†11</sup> For the sun rises with its heat and dries up the meadow; the petal of the flower falls off and its beauty is lost forever.§†† So also the rich person in the midst of his pursuits will wither away. <sup>12</sup> Happy is the one§† who endures testing, because when he has proven to be genuine, he will receive the crown of life that God§† promised to those who love him. <sup>13</sup> Let no one say when he is tempted, "I am tempted by God," for God cannot be tempted by evil, §†† and he himself tempts no one. <sup>14</sup> But each one is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desires. <sup>15</sup> Then when desire conceives, it gives birth to sin, and when sin is full grown, it gives birth to death. <sup>16</sup> Do not be led astray, my dear brothers and sisters. <sup>§§†17</sup> All generous giving and every perfect gift§§§ is from above, coming down<sup>18</sup> from the Father of lights, with whom there is no varia-

Living Out the Message

<sup>19</sup> Understand this, my dear brothers and sisters ‡ Let every person be quick to listen, slow to speak, slow to anger. <sup>20</sup> For human†† anger does not accomplish God's righteousness. <sup>‡‡21</sup> So put away all filth and evil excess and humbly‡‡‡ welcome the message implanted within you, which is able to save your souls. <sup>22</sup> But be sure you live out the message and do not merely listen to it and so deceive yourselves. <sup>23</sup> For if someone merely listens to the message and does not live it out, he is like someone‡‡‡ who gazes at his own face§ in a mirror. <sup>24</sup> For he gazes at himself and then goes out and immediately forgets§† what sort of person he was. <sup>25</sup> But the one who peers into the perfect law of liberty and fixes his attention there,§†† and does not become a forgetful listener but one who lives it out – he§† will be blessed in what he does. <sup>§††26</sup> If someone thinks he is religious yet does not bridle his tongue, and so deceives his heart, his religion is futile. <sup>27</sup> Pure and undefiled religion before§† God the Father§† is this : to care for orphans and widows in their misfortune and to keep oneself unstained by the world.

In the Greek text, vv. 2-4 form one long sentence. 22 tn: Or "sit here, please." 23 tn: Grk "sit under my footstool." The words "on the floor" have been supplied in the translation to clarify for the modern reader the undesirability of this seating arrangement (so also TEV, NIV, CEV, NLT). Another option followed by a number of translations is to replace "under my footstool" with "at my feet" (NAB, NIV, NRSV). 24 tn: Grk "have you not made distinctions" (as the conclusion to the series of "if" clauses in vv. 2-3). 25 tn: Grk "judges of evil reasonings." 26 tn: Grk "brothers." To have the Lord's name "named over them" is OT imagery for the Lord's ownership of his people (cf. 2 Chr 7:14; Amos 9:12; Isa 63:19; Jer 14:9; 15:16; Dan 9:19; Acts 15:17). 29 tn: Grk "according to the scripture." 30 sn: A quotation from Lev 19:18 (also quoted in Matt 19:19; 22:39; Mark 12:31; Luke 10:27; Rom 13:9; Gal 5:14). 31 tn: Or "transgressors." 32 tn: Or "stumbles." 33 tn: Grk "guilty of all." 34 sn: A quotation from Exod 20:14 and Deut 5:18. 35 sn: A quotation from Exod 20:13 and Deut 5:17. 36 tn: Grk "a law of freedom." 37 tn: Grk "boasts against, exults over," in victory. 38 tn: Grk "brothers." one of you says to them, "Go in peace, keep warm and eat well," but you do not give them what the body needs, † what good is it? 17 So also faith, if it does not have works, is dead being by itself. 18 But someone will say, "You have faith and I have works." †† Show me your faith without works and I will show you faith by my works. 19 You believe that God is one; well and good. †† Even the demons believe that – and tremble with fear. ††

20 But would you like evidence, ††† you empty fellow, ††† that faith without works is useless? §21 Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he offered Isaac his son on the altar? 22 You see that his faith was working together with his works and his faith was perfected by works. 23 And the scripture was fulfilled that says, "Now Abraham believed God and it was counted to him for righteousness," §† and he was called God's friend. §††24 You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. 25 And similarly, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out by another way? 26 For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so also faith without works is dead.

3 Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers and sisters, §† because you know that we will be judged more strictly. §††2 For we all stumble §† in many ways. The tongue represents21 the world of wrongdoing among the parts of our bodies. It22 pollutes the entire body and sets fire to the course of human existence – and is set on fire by hell. 23

7 For every kind of animal, bird, reptile, and sea creature24 is subdued and has been subdued by humankind. 258 But no human being can subdue the tongue; it is a restless26 evil, full of deadly poison. 9 With it we bless the Lord27 and Father, and with it we curse people28 made in God's image. 10 From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. ### True Wisdom

<sup>13</sup> Who is wise and understanding among you? By his good conduct he should show his works done in the gentleness that wisdom brings. <sup>14</sup> But if you have bitter jealousy and selfishness in your hearts, do not boast and tell lies against the truth. <sup>15</sup> Such†† wisdom does not come‡ from above but is earthly, natural, ‡† demonic. <sup>16</sup> For where there is jealousy and selfishness, there is disorder and every evil practice. <sup>17</sup> But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, accommodating, ‡† full of mercy and good fruit, ‡†† impartial, and not hypocritical. <sup>‡††18</sup> And the fruit that consists of righteousness§ is planted§† in peace among§†† those who make peace.

4 Where do the conflicts and where§† do the quarrels among you come from? Is it not from this, §†† from your passions that battle inside you? <sup>§12</sup> You desire and you do not have; you murder and envy and you cannot obtain; you quarrel and fight. You do not have because you do not ask; <sup>3</sup> you ask and do not receive because you ask wrongly, so you can spend it on your passions.

<sup>4</sup> Adulterers, do you not know that friendship with the world means hostility toward God? ‡† So whoever decides to be the world's friend makes himself God's enemy. <sup>5</sup> Or do you think the scripture means nothing when it says, §§† "The spirit that God§§† caused §§§ to live within us has an envious yearning"? <sup>186</sup> But he gives

<sup>18</sup> tn: Interpreters debate the referent of the word "spirit" in this verse: (1) The translation takes "spirit" to be the lustful capacity within people that produces a divided mind ( 1:8, 14) and inward conflicts regarding God ( 4:1-4). God has allowed it to greater grace. Therefore it says, " God opposes the proud , but he gives grace to the humble." <sup>197</sup> So submit to God. But resist the devil and he will flee from you. <sup>8</sup> Draw near to God and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and make your hearts pure, you double-minded. <sup>209</sup> Grieve, mourn, <sup>21</sup> and weep. Turn your laughter<sup>22</sup> into mourning and your joy into despair. <sup>10</sup> Humble yourselves before the Lord and he will exalt you.

<sup>11</sup> Do not speak against one another, brothers and sisters. <sup>23</sup> He who speaks against a fellow believer<sup>24</sup> or judges a fellow believer speaks against the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but its judge. <sup>2512</sup> But there is only one who is lawgiver and judge – the one who is able to save and destroy. On the other hand, who are you to judge your neighbor? <sup>26</sup>

<sup>13</sup> Come now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go into this or that town<sup>27</sup> and spend a year there and do business and make a profit." <sup>14</sup> You<sup>28</sup> do not know about tomorrow. What is your life like?<sup>29</sup> For you are a puff of smoke<sup>30</sup> that appears for a short time and then vanishes. <sup>15</sup> You ought to say instead,<sup>31</sup> "If the Lord is willing, then we will live and do this or that." <sup>16</sup> But as it is, <sup>32</sup> you boast in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil. <sup>17</sup> So whoever knows what is good to do<sup>33</sup> and does not do it is guilty of sin. <sup>34</sup>

5 Come now, you rich ! Weep and cry aloud<sup>35</sup> over the miseries that are coming on you. <sup>2</sup> Your riches have rotted and your clothing has become moth-eaten. <sup>3</sup> Your gold and silver have rusted and their rust will be a witness against you. It will consume your flesh like fire. It is in the last days that you have hoarded treasure! <sup>364</sup> Look, the pay you have held back from

be in man since the fall, and he provides his grace (v. 6) and the new birth through the gospel message ( 1:18-25) to counteract its evil effects. (2) On the other hand the word "spirit" may be taken positively as the Holy Spirit and the sense would be, "God yearns jealously for the Spirit he caused to live within us." But the word for "envious" or "jealous" is generally negative in biblical usage and the context before and after seems to favor the negative interpretation. sn: No OT verse is worded exactly this way. ### Patience in Suffering

<sup>13</sup> Is anyone among you suffering? He should pray. Is anyone in good spirits? He should sing praises. <sup>14</sup> Is anyone among you ill? He should summon the elders of the church, and they should pray for him and anoint§† him with oil in the name of the Lord. <sup>15</sup> And the prayer of faith will save the one who is sick and the Lord will raise him up – and if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven. <sup>§†16</sup> So confess your sins to one another and pray for one another so that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous person has great effectiveness. <sup>§§†17</sup> Elijah was a human being§§† like us, and he prayed earnestly§§§ that it would not rain and there was no rain on the land for three years and six months! <sup>18</sup> Then<sup>18</sup> he prayed again, and the sky gave rain and the land sprouted with a harvest.

A Living Stone, a Chosen People

<sup>4</sup> So as you come to him, † a living stone rejected by men but †† chosen and priceless‡ in God's sight, <sup>5</sup> you yourselves, as living stones, are built up as a spiritual house to be a holy priesthood and to offer ‡‡ spiritual sacrifices that are acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. <sup>6</sup> For it says‡‡ in scripture, "Look, I lay in Zion a stone, a chosen and priceless cornerstone, ‡‡ and whoever believes‡‡ in him§ will never§† be put to shame*." <sup>§††7</sup> So you who believe see§† his value, §†† but for those who do not believe, the stone that the builders rejected has become the§† cornerstone, <sup>§†8</sup> and a stumbling-stone§§† and a rock to trip over*. §§† They stumble§§§ because they disobey the word, as they were destined to do. <sup>189</sup> But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people of his own, so that you may proclaim the virtues<sup>19</sup> of the one who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. <sup>10</sup> You<sup>20</sup> once were not a people, but now you are God's people. You were shown no mercy, <sup>21</sup> but now you have received mercy.

<sup>11</sup> Dear friends, I urge you as foreigners and exiles to keep away from fleshly desires that do battle against the soul, <sup>12</sup> and maintain good conduct<sup>22</sup> among the non-Christians, <sup>23</sup> so that though<sup>24</sup> they now malign you as wrongdoers, they may see your good deeds and glorify God when he appears. <sup>25</sup>

This phrase may be a quotation from Isa 10:3, in which case judgment is in view here. But if you do good and suffer and so endure, this finds favor with God.<sup>†21</sup> For to this you were called, since Christ also suffered for you, leaving an example for you to follow in his steps.<sup>22</sup> He†† committed no sin nor was deceit found in his mouth.<sup>‡23</sup> When he was maligned, he†† did not answer back; when he suffered, he threatened‡‡ no retaliation,‡‡† but committed himself to God‡‡ who judges justly.<sup>24</sup> He§ himself bore our sins§† in his body on the tree, that we may cease from sinning§†† and live for righteousness. These terms are used broadly to refer to the genre of writing, not to the content. There are two broad criteria for determining if a passage is poetic or hymnic: (a) stylistic: a certain rhythmic lilt when the passages are read aloud, the presence of parallelism membrorum (i.e., an arrangement into couplets), the semblance of some metre, and the presence of rhetorical devices such as alliteration, chiasmus, and antithesis; and (b) linguistic: an unusual vocabulary, particularly the presence of theological terms, which is different from the surrounding context” (P. T. O’Brien, Philippians [NIGTC], 188-89). Classifying a passage as hymnic or poetic is important because understanding this genre can provide keys to interpretation. However, not all scholars agree that the above criteria are present in this passage, so the decision to typeset it as poetry should be viewed as a tentative decision about its genre. ‡†† tc: The variants here are legion (B. §‡ sn: And preached to the spirits in prison. The meaning of this preaching and the spirits to whom he preached are much debated. It is commonly understood to be: (1) Christ’s announcement of his victory over evil to the fallen angels who await judgment for their role in leading the Noahic generation into sin; this proclamation occurred sometime between Christ’s death and ascension; or (2) Christ’s preaching of repentance through Noah to the unrighteous humans, now dead and confined in hell, who lived in the days of Noah. The latter is preferred because of the temporal indications in v. 20a and the wider argument of the book. These verses encourage Christians to stand for righteousness and try to influence their contemporaries for the gospel in spite of the suffering that may come to them. All who identify with them and their Savior will be saved from the coming judgment, just as in Noah’s day. §†† tn: This reflects a Greek participle, literally “having been disobedient formerly,” that refers to the “spirits” in v. 19. Many translations take this as adjectival describing the spirits (“who had once been disobedient”; cf. The last sentence in v. 1 may refer to Christ as the one who suffered in the flesh (cf. 2:21, 23; 3:18; 4:1a) and the latter part would then mean, "he has finished dealing with sin." It clearly does not assume a second chance for conversion offered to unbelievers who had died; why would Peter urge people to suffer in this life for the sake of the gospel if he believed that mercy would be extended to all the dead in the hereafter (cf. 2:7-8; 4:1-5, 12-19)? §§‡ tn: Grk

God should be glorified (as in 4:11), rather than a wish or prayer ("may power be to him"). † sn: The phrase Through Silvanus means either that Silvanus was the secretary (amanuensis) who assisted Peter in writing or composing the letter (cf. Rom 16:22) or that he carried the letter to the churches. The latter sense is more likely since this is the meaning of the Greek wording when it is used elsewhere (cf. Acts 15:23; Ignatius, Letter to the Romans 10:1; Letter to the Philadelphians 11:2; Letter to the Smyrnaeans 12:1; Polycarp, Letter to the Philippians 14), though it is perhaps possible that both ideas could be incorporated by this expression. For a detailed argument regarding this issue, see E. R. Richards, "Silvanus Was Not Peter's Secretary: Theological Bias in Interpreting διὰ Σιλουανοῦ ἔγραψα †† tn: Grk "the faithful brother, as I think." ‡ tn: These are participles ("encouraging and testifying") showing purpose. one") is feminine. But it is much more likely to be a veiled reference to a church (the Greek word "church" is also feminine in gender). ‡‡† sn: Most scholars understand Babylon here to be a figurative reference to Rome. Although in the OT the city of Babylon in Mesopotamia was the seat of tremendous power ( 2 Kgs 24-25; Isa 39; Jer 25), by the time of the NT what was left was an insignificant town, and there is no tradition in Christian history that Peter ever visited there. On the other hand, Christian tradition connects Peter with the church in Rome, and many interpreters think other references to Babylon in the NT refer to Rome as well ( Rev 14:8; 16:19; 17:5; 18:2, 10, 21). Thus it is likely Peter was referring to Rome here. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "chosen together," implying the connection "with you" in context. § tn: Grk "a kiss of love." §† tc: Most MSS κ c ἀμήν amen

The implication is that through inheriting and acting on these promises the believers will increasingly become partakers of the divine nature. ‡† sn: Although the author has borrowed the expression partakers of the divine nature from paganism, his meaning is clearly Christian. He does not mean apotheosis (man becoming a god) in the pagan sense, but rather that believers have an organic connection with God. Because of such a connection, God can truly be called our Father. Conceptually, this bears the same meaning as Paul's "in Christ" formula. The author's statement, though startling at first, is hardly different from Paul's prayer for the Ephesians that they "may be filled up to all the fullness of God" (3:19). ‡†† tn: The aorist participle ἀποφυγόντες apofugonte

Although it fits the normal contours of attendant circumstance participles, the semantics are different. Normally, attendant circumstance is used of an action that is a necessary prelude to the action of the main verb. But "making every effort" is what energizes the main verb here. Hence it is best taken as means. However, for the sake of smoothness the translation has rendered it as a command with the main verb translated as an infinitive. This is in accord with English idiom. §†† tn: Or "moral excellence," "virtue"; this is the same word used in v. 3 ("the one who has called us by his own glory and excellence"). §† tn: Perhaps "steadfast-

The list of virtues found in vv. 5-7 stands in tension to the promises given in vv. 2-4. What appears to be a synergism of effort or even a contradiction (God supplies the basis, the promises, the grace, the power, etc., while believers must also provide the faith, excellence, etc.) in reality encapsulates the mystery of sanctification. Each believer is responsible before God for his conduct and spiritual growth, yet that growth could not take place without God's prior work and constant enabling. We must not neglect our responsibility, yet the enabling and the credit is God's. Paul says the same thing: "Continue working out your salvation with humility and dependence, for the one bringing forth in you both the desire and the effort...is God" ( Phil 2:12-13). §† tn: The participles are evidently conditional, as most translations render them. §§† tn: The participle ὑπάρχοντα Juparconta εἰμί eimi

Contemporary English convention requires a full stop in translation, however. <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk "for." The connection, though causal, is also adversative. <sup>21</sup> tn: Grk "to the one for whom these things are not present." <sup>22</sup> tn: The words "that is to say, he is" are not in Greek. The word order is unusual. One might expect the author to have said "he is nearsighted and blind" (as the NIV has so construed it), but this is not the word order in Greek. Perhaps the author begins with a strong statement followed by a clarification, i.e., that being nearsighted in regard to these virtues is as good as being blind. <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk "brothers," but the Greek word may be used for "brothers and sisters" or "fellow Christians" as here (cf. <sup>12</sup> Therefore, I intend to remind you constantly†† of these things even though you know them and are well established in the truth that you now have. <sup>13</sup> Indeed, as long as I am in this tabernacle, ‡ I consider it right to stir you up by way of a reminder, <sup>14</sup> since I know that my tabernacle will soon be removed, ‡‡ because‡‡ our Lord Jesus Christ revealed this to me. <sup>‡‡‡15</sup> Indeed, I will also make every effort that, after my departure, you have a testimony of these things. ‡‡‡

†† tn: Grk "always." ‡ tn: Or "tent." The author uses this as a metaphor for his physical body. sn: The use of the term tabernacle for the human body is reminiscent both of John's statements about Jesus ("he tabernacled among us" in John 1:14; "the temple of his body" in John 2:21) and Paul's statements about believers (e.g., "you are God's building" in 1 Cor 3:9; "you are God's temple" in 1 Cor 3:16; "your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit" in 1 Cor 6:19; "holy temple" in Eph 2:21). It is precisely because the Shekinah glory has been transferred from the OT temple to the person of Jesus Christ and, because he inhabits believers, to them, that the author can speak this way. His life on earth, his physical existence, is a walking tabernacle, a manifestation of the glory of God. ‡† tn: Grk "since I know that the removal of my tabernacle is [coming] soon." ‡‡ tn: Grk "just as." ‡‡† sn: When the author says our Lord Jesus Christ revealed this to me, he is no doubt referring to the prophecy that is partially recorded in John 21:18-19. ‡‡‡ sn: There are various interpretations of v. 15. sn: The reference to the morning star constitutes a double entendre. First, the term was normally used to refer to Venus. But the author of course has a metaphorical meaning in mind, as is obvious from the place where the morning star is to rise – "in your hearts." Most commentators see an allusion to Num 24:17 ("a star shall rise out of Jacob") in Peter's words. Early Christian exegesis saw in that passage a prophecy about Christ's coming. Hence, in this verse Peter tells his audience to heed the OT scriptures which predict the return of Christ, then alludes to one of the passages that does this very thing, all the while running the theme of light on a parallel track. In addition, it may be significant that Peter's choice of terms here is not the same as is found in the LXX. He has used a Hellenistic word that was sometimes used of emperors and deities, perhaps as a further polemic against the paganism of his day. ‡ sn: The phrase in your hearts is sometimes considered an inappropriate image for the parousia, since the coming of Christ will be visible to all. But Peter's point has to do with full comprehension of the revelation of Christ, something only believers will experience. Further, his use of light imagery is doing double-duty, suggesting two things at once (i.e., internal guidance to truth or illumination, and OT prophecy about Christ's return) and hence can not be expected to be consistent with every point he wishes to make. ‡† tn: Grk "knowing this [to be] foremost." The main verb is ( they) entice. The three participles are adverbial and seem to indicate an instrumental relation (by uttering), a concessive relation (although promising), and a temporal relation (while being [enslaved]). For the sake of English usage, in the translation of the text this is broken down into two sentences. §†† tn: Grk "for by what someone is overcome, to this he is enslaved." §† tn: Grk "defilements"; "contaminations"; "pollutions." §‡ sn: Through the rich knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. 8 Now, dear friends, do not let this one thing escape your notice, ‡ that a single day is like a thousand years with the Lord and a thousand years are like a single day. 9 The Lord is not slow concerning his promise, †† as some regard slowness, but is being patient toward you, because he does not wish‡‡ for any‡‡† to perish but

It could refer to the heavens, the heavens and earth, or the water and the word. If the reference is to the heavens, the author is reflecting on the Genesis account about "the floodgates of the heavens" being opened ( Gen 7:11). If the reference is to the heavens and earth, he is also thinking about the cosmic upheaval that helped to produce the flood ( Gen 6:11). If the reference is to the water and the word, he is indicating both the means (water) and the cause (word of God). This last interpretation is the most likely since the final nouns of v. 5 are "water" and "word of God," making them the nearest antecedents. †† tn: Grk "the ungodly people." ‡ tn: The same verb, λανθάνω lanqanw

‡† tn: Or perhaps, "the Lord is not delaying [the fulfillment of] his promise," or perhaps "the Lord of the promise is not delaying." The verb can mean "to delay," "to be slow," or "to be hesitant." ‡‡ tn: Grk "not wishing." The participle most likely has a causal force, explaining why the Lord is patient. ‡‡† sn: He does not wish for any to perish. This verse has been a battleground between Arminians and Calvinists. The former argue that God wants all people to be saved, but either through inability or restriction of his own sovereignty does not interfere with peoples' wills. Some of the latter argue that the "any" here means "any of you" and that all the elect will repent before the return of Christ, because this is God's will. Both of these positions have problems. The "any" in this context means "any of you." (This can be seen by the dependent participle which gives the reason why the Lord is patient "toward you.") There are hints throughout this letter that the readership may be mixed, including both true believers and others who are "sitting on the fence" as it were. But to make the equation of this readership with the elect is unlikely. This would seem to require, in its historical context, that all of these readers would be saved. But not all who attend church know the Lord or will know the Lord. Simon the Magician, whom Peter had confronted in Acts 8, is a case in point. This is evident in contemporary churches when a pastor addresses the congregation as "brothers, sisters, saints, etc.," yet concludes the message with an evangelistic appeal. When an apostle or pastor addresses a group as "Christian" he does not necessarily think that every individual in the congregation is truly a Christian. Thus, the literary context seems to be against the Arminian view, while the historical context seems to be against (one representation of) the Calvinist view. The answer to this conundrum is found in the term "wish" (a participle in Greek from the verb boulomai generally assume that 2 Peter is not authentic, partially because in vv. 15-16 Paul is said to have written scripture. It is assumed that a recognition of Paul's writings as scripture could not have happened until early in the 2nd century. However, in the same breath that Paul is canonized, Peter also calls him "brother." This is unparalleled in the 2nd century apocryphal works, as well as early patristic writings, in which the apostles are universally elevated above the author and readers; here, Peter simply says "he's one of us." §§‡ sn: Paul wrote to you. That Paul had written to these people indicates that they are most likely Gentiles. Further, that Peter is now writing to them suggests that Paul had already died, for Peter was the apostle to the circumcised. Peter apparently decided to write his two letters to Paul's churches shortly after Paul's death, both to connect with them personally and theologically (Paul's gospel is Peter's gospel) and to warn them of the wolves in sheep's clothing that would come in to destroy the flock. Thus, part of Peter's purpose seems to be to anchor his readership on the written documents of the Christian community (both the Old Testament and Paul's letters) as a safeguard against heretics. §§§ tn: Grk "as also in all his letters speaking in them of these things." 18 tn: Grk "in which are some things hard to understand." 19 tn: Grk "which." The antecedent is the "things hard to understand," not the entirety of Paul's letters. A significant principle is seen here: The primary proof texts used for faith and practice ought to be the clear passages that are undisputed in their meaning. Heresy today is still largely built on obscure texts. 20 tn: Or "distort," "wrench," "torture" (all are apt descriptions of what heretics do to scripture). 21 sn: This one incidental line, the rest of the scriptures, links Paul's writings with scripture. †† tn: Grk "That which was from the beginning, that which we have heard..."‡ tn: Or "proclaim."‡† tn: In the Greek text the prologue to 1 John (vv. 1-4) makes up a single sentence. This is awkward in Greek, and a literal translation produces almost impossible English. For this reason the present translation places a period at the end of v. 2 and another at the end of v. 3. The material in parentheses in v. 1 begins the first of three parenthetical interruptions in the grammatical sequence of the prologue (the second is the entirety of v. 2 and the third is the latter part of v. 3). This is because of the awkwardness of connecting the prepositional phrase with what precedes, an awkwardness not immediately obvious in most English translations: "what we beheld and our hands handled concerning the word of life..." As J. Bonsirven (Épîtres de Saint Jean [CNT], 67) noted, while one may hear about the word of life, it is more difficult to see about the word of life, and impossible to feel with one's hands about the word of life. Rather than being the object of any of the verbs in v. 1, the prepositional phrase at the end of v. 1 ("concerning the word of life...") is more likely a parenthetical clarification intended to specify the subject of the eyewitness testimony which the verbs in v. 1 describe. A parallel for such parenthetical explanation may be found in John 1:12 ( τοῖς πιστεύουσιν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ τοῖς πιστεύουσιν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ ‡‡ tn: Or "proclaim."‡‡† tn: The ἵνα Jina ‡‡‡ tn: Or "communion"; or "association" (a reality shared in common, so in this case, "genuine association"). §‡ tn: Grk "be fulfilled." sn: This is what we proclaim to you...so that our joy may be complete. The prologue to 1 John ( 1:1-4) has many similarities to the prologue to the Gospel of John (1:1-18). Like the prologue to the Fourth Gospel, the prologue to 1 John introduces the reader to important themes which will be more fully developed later in the body of the work. In the case of 1 John, three of these are: (1) the importance of eyewitness testimony to who Jesus is (cf. 4:14, 5:6-12), (2) the importance of the earthly ministry of Jesus as a part of God's revelation of himself in Jesus Christ (cf. 4:2, 5:6), and (3) the eternal life available to believers in Jesus Christ ( 5:11-12, 5:20). Like the rest of the letter, the prologue to 1 John does not contain any of the usual features associated with a letter in NT times, such as an opening formula, the name of the author or sender, the name(s) of the addressee(s), a formal greeting, or a health wish or expression of remembrance. The author of 1 John begins the prologue with an emphasis on the eyewitness nature of his testimony. He then transitions to a focus on the readers of the letter by emphasizing the proclamation of this eyewitness (apostolic) testimony to them. The purpose of this proclamation is so that the readers might share in fellowship with the author, a true fellowship which is with the Father and the Son as well. To guarantee this maintenance of fellowship the author is writing the letter itself (line 4a). Thus, in spite of the convoluted structure of the prologue in which the author's thought turns back on itself several times, there is a discernible progression in his thought which ultimately expresses itself in the reason for the writing of the letter (later expressed again in slightly different form in the purpose statement of 5:13). §‡† tn: The καί kai

§§† tn: The referent of the pronoun "him" is not entirely clear in the Greek text; it could be either (1) God the Father, or (2) Jesus Christ, both of whom are mentioned at the end of v. 3. A reference to Jesus Christ is more likely because this is the nearest possible antecedent, and because God (the Father) is specifically mentioned in the following clause in v. 5. † tn: The key to understanding the first major section of 1 John, 1:5-3:10, is found in the statement in v. 5: "God is light and in him there is no darkness at all." The idea of "proclamation" – the apostolic proclamation of eyewitness testimony which the prologue introduces ( 1:2, 3) – is picked up in 1:5 by the use of the noun ἀγγελία angelia ἀναγγέλλομεν anangellomen

The direct address by the author to his readers at the beginning of 2:1 marks a break in the pattern of the opponents' claims (indicated by the phrase if we say followed by a negative statement in the apodosis, the "then" clause) and the author's counterclaims (represented by if with a positive statement in the apodosis) made so far in 1:6-10. The seriousness of this last claim (in 1:10) causes the author to interrupt himself to address the readers as his faithful children and to explain to them that while he wants them not to sin, they may be assured that if they do, they can look to Jesus Christ, as their advocate with the Father, to intercede for them. After this, the last of the author's three counter-claims in 1:5-2:2 is found in the if clause in 2:1b. §‡ tn: There is some dispute over the significance of the aorist tense of ἁμαρτήτε Jamarthte

Because the author sees the victory of light over darkness as something already begun, he is writing Jesus' commandment to love one another to the readers as a reminder to (1) hold fast to what they have already heard (see 1 John 2:7) and (2) not be influenced by the teaching of the opponents.

nents. Each claim is followed by the author's evaluation and its implications. § sn: I am writing to you. The author appears to have been concerned that some of his readers, at least, would accept the claims of the opponents as voiced in 1:6, 8, and 10. The counterclaims the author has made in 1:7, 9, and 2:1 seem intended to strengthen the readers and reassure them (among other things) that their sins are forgiven. Further assurances of their position here is in keeping with such a theme, and indeed, the topic of reassurance runs throughout the entire letter (see the purpose statement in 5:13). Finally, in such a context the warning which follows in 2:15-17 is not out of place because the author is dealing with a community that is discouraged by the controversy which has arisen within it and that is in need of exhortation. §† tn: The ὅτι Joti γράφω ἔγραψα grafw egraya

‡ sn: Antichrists are John's description for the opponents and their false teaching, which is at variance with the apostolic eyewitness testimony about who Jesus is (cf. 1:1-4). The identity of these opponents has been variously debated by scholars, with some contending (1) that these false teachers originally belonged to the group of apostolic leaders, but departed from it ("went out from us," v. 19). It is much more likely (2) that they arose from within the Christian communities to which John is writing, however, and with which he identifies himself. This identification can be seen in the interchange of the pronouns "we" and "you" between 1:10 and 2:1, for example, where "we" does not refer only to John and the other apostles, but is inclusive, referring to both himself and the Christians he is writing to (2:1, "you"). ‡† tn: See note on the translation of the Greek verb μένω menw

Up to this point the thrust of the author has been reassurance rather than exhortation, and an indicative here ("...you reside in him") balances the indicative in the first part of 2:27 ("the anointing which you received from him resides in you..."). With the following verse the author switches from reassurance (the readers at the time he is writing still 'remain'; they have not yet adopted the teaching of the opponents) to exhortation (he is writing so that they will 'remain' and not succumb to the deception of the opponents). §† tn: Again, as at the end of 2:27, the

However, it is significant that the author of 1 John never speaks of the opponents as "fathered by the devil" in the same sense as Christians are "fathered by God" (3:9). A concept of evildoers as "fathered" by the devil in the same sense as Christians are fathered by God would imply a much more fully developed Gnosticism with its dualistic approach to humanity. The author of 1 John carefully avoids saying that the opponents are "fathered by the devil," because in Johannine theology not to be fathered by God is to be fathered only by the flesh (John 1:13). This is a significant piece of evidence that 1 John predates the more fully developed Gnosticism of the 2nd century. What the author does say is that the opponents ("the one who practices sin") are from the devil, in the sense that they belong to him and have given him their allegiance. § tn: The present tense verb has been translated as an extending-from-past present (a present of past action still in progress). This echoes Jesus’ words in John 13:35, where he states, “by this all men will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one another.” As in 1 John 2:3 and 5, obedience becomes the basis for assurance. But the relationship between loving one’s fellow Christian ( Grk “brother”) and possessing eternal life goes beyond a proof or external test. Our love for our fellow Christians is in fact a form of God’s love for us because as far as the author of 1 John is concerned, all love comes from God (cf. 4:7-11). Therefore he can add the next line of 3:14, “the one who does not love remains in death.” Why? Because such a person does not have God’s love residing in them at all. Rather, this person can be described as a “murderer” – as the following verse goes on to do. Note also that the author’s description here of the person who does not love as remaining in death is another way of describing a person who remains in darkness, which is a description of unbelievers in John 12:46. This provides further confirmation of the spiritual state of the author’s opponents in 2:9-11. ‡‡ sn: The one who does not love remains in death. Again, the author has the secessionist opponents in view. Their refusal to show love for the brothers demonstrates that they have not made the transition from (spiritual) death to (spiritual) life, but instead have remained in a state of (spiritual) death. ‡‡† tn: See note on the phrase “fellow Christian” in 2:9. ‡‡‡ sn: Everyone who hates his fellow Christian is a murderer. On one level it is easy to see how the author could say this; the person who hates his brother is one and the same with the person who murders his brother. Behind the usage here, however, is John 8:44, the only other occurrence of the Greek word translated murderer ( ἀνθρωποκτόνος anqrwpoktonos

The subject matter is so clearly different from the surrounding context that these clearly constitute separate units of thought. Since the Holy Spirit is not the only spirit active in the world, the author needs to qualify for the recipients how to tell if a spirit comes from God. The "test" is the confession in 4:2. ‡‡ tn: According to BDAG 255 s.v. δοκιμάζω ‡†† sn: Test the spirits.

Since in the second half of the present verse the author mentions "false prophets" who have "gone out into the world," it appears highly probable that his concept of testing the spirits is drawn from the OT concept of testing a prophet to see whether he is a false prophet or a true one. The procedure for testing a prophet is found in Deut 13:2-6 and 18:15-22. An OT prophet was to be tested on the basis of (a) whether or not his predictive prophecies came true ( Deut 18:22) and (b) whether or not he advocated idolatry ( Deut 13:1-3). In the latter case the people of Israel are warned that even if the prophet should perform an authenticating sign or wonder, his truth or falsity is still to be judged on the basis of his claims, that is, whether or not he advocates idolatry. Here in 1 John the idea of "testing the spirits" comes closer to the second OT example of "testing the prophets" mentioned above. According to 1 John 4:2-3, the

This comes close to the idea expressed by Paul in 1 Cor 12:3 where the person speaking charismatic utterances is also to be judged on the basis of his christological confession: "So I want you to understand that no one speaking by the Spirit of God says, 'Jesus is cursed,' and no one can say 'Jesus is Lord,' except by the Holy Spirit." ‡† tn: The phrase "to determine" is not in the Greek text, but is supplied for clarity. ‡‡ tn: "False prophets" refers to the secessionist opponents (compare 2:19). ‡‡† tn: There is no subordinating conjunction following the ἐν τούτῳ en toutw

Many interpreters have speculated that the author of 1 John is here correcting or adapting a slogan of the secessionist opponents, but there is no concrete evidence for this in the text. Such a possibility is mere conjecture (see R. E. Brown, Epistles of John [AB], 492). This leads to the important observation that the author is not particularly interested in emphasizing (1) the ongoing interior witness of the Holy Spirit (which is what the passage is often understood to mean) but is emphasizing (2) the fact that God has given the Spirit to believers, and it is this fact that gives believers assurance of their relationship to God. <sup>20</sup> sn: Also loves the child fathered by him. Is the meaning of 5:1b a general observation or a specific statement about God and Christians? There are three ways in which the second half of 5:1 has been understood: (1) as a general statement, proverbial in nature, applying to any parent: "everyone who loves the father also loves the child fathered by him." (2) This has also been understood as a statement that is particularly true of one's own parent: "everyone who loves his own father also loves the (other) children fathered by him (i.e., one's own brothers and sisters)." (3) This could be understood as a statement which refers particularly to God, in light of the context ( 5:1a): "everyone who loves God who fathered Christians also loves the Christians who are fathered by God." Without doubt options (2) and (3) are implications of the statement in its present context, but it seems most probable that the meaning of the statement is more general and proverbial in nature (option 1). This is likely because of the way in which it is introduced by the author with πᾶς ὁ pas Jo

2 John

Introduction and Thanksgiving

1 From† the elder, †† to an elect lady‡ and her children, whom I love in truth‡‡ (and not I alone, but also all those‡‡ who know the truth), <sup>2</sup> because of the truth‡‡‡ that resides in us and will be with us forever. <sup>3</sup> Grace, mercy, and‡‡‡ peace will be with us from God

† tn: The word "From" is not in the Greek text, but has been supplied to indicate the sender of the letter. †† tn: Or "presbyter." sn: The author's self-designation, the elder, is in keeping with the reticence of the author of the Gospel of John to identify himself. This is the same self-designation used by the author of 3 John. ‡ tn: This phrase may refer to an individual or to a church (or the church at large). Some have suggested that the addressee is a Christian lady named "Electa," but the same word in v. 13 is clearly an adjective, not a proper name. Others see the letter addressed to a Christian lady named "Kyria" (first proposed by Athanasius) or to an unnamed Christian lady. The internal evidence of 2 John clearly supports a collective reference, however. In v. 6 the addressee is mentioned using second person plural, and this is repeated in vv. 8, 10, and 12. Only in v. 13 does the singular reappear. The uses in vv. 1 and 13 are most likely collective. Some have seen a reference to the church at large, but v. 13, referring to "the children of your elect sister" is hard to understand if the universal church is in view. Thus the most probable explanation is that the "elect lady" is a particular local church at some distance from where the author is located. sn: 2 John is being written to warn a "sister" church some distance away, referred to as an elect lady, of the missionary efforts of the secessionist false teachers (discussed in 1 John) and the dangers of welcoming them whenever they arrive. ‡† tn: The prepositional phrase ἐν ἀληθείᾳ en alhqeia

‡‡ sn: All those who know the truth refers to true Christians who are holding fast to the apostolic Christology in the face of the secessionist opponents described in 1 John. ‡‡† tc: The prepositional phrase that begins v. 2, διὰ τὴν ἀλήθειαν dia thn alhqeian

Introduction and Thanksgiving

1 From† the elder, †† to Gaius‡ my dear brother, whom I love in truth. ‡‡ Dear friend, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, just as it is well with your soul. ‡‡‡ For I rejoiced greatly when the brothers came and testified to your truth, just as you are living according to the truth. ‡‡‡

† tn: The word "From" is not in the Greek text, but has been supplied to indicate the sender of the letter. †† tn: Or "presbyter." sn: The author's self-designation, the elder, is in keeping with the reticence of the author of the Gospel of John to identify himself. This is the same self-designation used by the author of 2 John. ‡ sn: Little reliable information is available concerning the identity of the person to whom 3 John is addressed. Because the name Gaius was very common in the Roman Empire, it is highly unlikely that the person named here is to be identified with any of the others of the same name associated with Paul ( 1 Cor 1:14, Rom 16:23 [these two references are probably to the same person]; Acts 19:29, Acts 20:4). ## The Charge to Gaius

5 Dear friend, §† you demonstrate faithfulness§†† by whatever you do for the brothers (even though they are strangers). <sup>6</sup> They§‡ have testified to your love before the church. §†† You will do well to send them on their way in a manner worthy of God. §†‡ For they have gone forth§‡ on behalf of "The Name," §§† accepting

§†† tn: BDAG 821 s.v. πιστός

§‡ tn: Grk "who" (a relative pronoun that continues the sentence begun in 3 John 5). §†† sn: Which church does the author refer to here? The church where Gaius is, the church where the author is, a different local church where the "brothers" are, or the 'universal' church, the church at large? Since the suggestion in 3 John 3 is that the "brothers" have come and testified in the author's church about what Gaius has done for them, it seems most likely that the "church" mentioned here is also the author's church, where he is currently located. Other possibilities cannot be ruled out, but seem unnecessarily complicated. §† sn: Now the author, after commending Gaius for his faithful service to the traveling missionaries in the past (see 3 John 5), now requests additional assistance at the present time (send them on their way in a manner worthy of God). Apparently the missionaries are on their way to visit the area where Gaius' church is located a second time. They had been there once already and had returned with a good report of how Gaius had assisted them. It is entirely possible that they themselves carry with them the present letter as a letter of introduction. Along these lines it has been suggested that Demetrius (see 3 John 12) is one of these traveling missionaries, perhaps the leader of the delegation, and the author is formally intro-

nothing from the pagans. <sup>†8</sup> Therefore we†† ought to support such people, so that we become coworkers in cooperation with the truth. ‡

Diotrephes the Troublemaker

<sup>9</sup> I wrote something to the church, ‡ but Diotrephes, ‡‡ who loves to be first among them, does not acknowluding him to Gaius, since when he was there the last time he was a stranger (v. 5) but Gaius assisted him anyway. §‡ sn: The verb gone forth (ἐξέρχουμαι exercomai

§§† sn: Three possibilities for the identification of 'The Name' have been suggested: (1) the name of God, suggested by the unqualified noun with the Greek article. In Rabbinic literature "the Name" is a frequent substitute for the Tetragrammaton YHWH, the name of God, which was too sacred to be pronounced. This would make good logical sense in 3 John, because in the previous verse the author has instructed Gaius to send the missionaries on their way "in a manner worthy of God." (2) Some have understood "the Name" as the self-designation of the Johannine community, or as a reference to the Christian cause at large, or as a way of designating Christians before the title "Christian" came into common usage. (3) The interpretation favored by most commentators is that this is a reference to Jesus' name. Paul uses a similar phrase in Rom 1:5, and in 1 John 2:12 the author wrote, "your sins are forgiven on account of His (Christ's) name." John's Gospel also makes reference to believing "in the name of Jesus" (John 1:12, 3:18). † tn: The word ἔθνικός eqniko" ἔθνος eqno"

†† sn: Clearly the author does not refer to himself alone by the use of the first person plural pronoun we here, since the issue is support for the traveling missionaries. It stands in contrast to the pagans mentioned in the previous verse, and is thus to be understood as inclusive of all true Christians: the author, Gaius, and all true Christians. All true Christians ought to support the endeavors of these traveling missionaries in their efforts to counteract the heretical teaching of the opponents. ‡ tn: The ἴνα jina

τῆ ἀληθείᾳ th alhqeia

σύν sun-

‡† sn:

The church mentioned here, which the author says he may visit (3 John 10) is not the same as the one mentioned in 3 John 6, to which the author apparently belongs (or of which he is in charge). But what is the relationship of this church in v. 9 to Gaius, to whom the letter is addressed? It is sometimes suggested that Gaius belongs to this church, but that seems unlikely, because the author uses a third-person pronoun to refer to the other members of the church (among them). If Gaius were one of these it would have been much edge us. <sup>‡‡10</sup> Therefore, if I come, ‡‡‡ I will call attention to the deeds he is doing§ – the bringing of unjustified charges against us with evil words! And not being content with that, he not only refuses to welcome the brothers himself, but hinders the people who want to do so and throws them out of the church! <sup>†11</sup> Dear friend, do not imitate what is bad but what is good. §† The one who does good is of God; the one who does what is bad has not seen God. §†† more natural to use a second-person pronoun: "Diotrephes, who loves to be first among you." Thus it seems probable that Gaius belongs to (or is in charge of) one local church while Diotrephes is in another, a church known to Gaius but to which he does not belong. ‡‡ sn: Diotrephes appears to be an influential person (perhaps the leader) in a local church known to Gaius, but to which Gaius himself does not belong. The description of Diotrephes as one who loves to be first suggests he is arrogant, and his behavior displays this: He refuses to acknowledge the written communication mentioned by the author at the beginning of v. 9 (and thus did not recognize the author's apostolic authority), and furthermore (v. 10) refuses to show any hospitality to the traveling missionaries (welcome the brothers) already mentioned by the author. It has been suggested that the description "loves to be first" only indicates that Diotrephes sought prominence or position in this church, and had not yet attained any real authority. But his actions here suggest otherwise: He is able to refuse or ignore the author's previous written instructions (v. 9), and he is able to have other people put out of the church for showing hospitality to the traveling missionaries (v. 10). ‡‡† tn: Since the verb ἐπιδέχομαι epidecomai

ἐπιδέχομαι

§ sn:

Because Diotrephes did not recognize the authority of the author, the author will expose his behavior for what it is (call attention to the deeds he is doing) if he comes for a visit. These are the charges the author will make against Diotrephes before the church: (1) Diotrephes is engaged in spreading unjustified charges against the author with evil words; (2) Diotrephes refuses to welcome the brothers (the traveling missionaries) himself; (3) Diotrephes hinders the others in the church who wish to help the missionaries; and (4) Diotrephes expels from the church (throws them out) people who aid the missionaries. (Diotrephes himself may not have had supreme authority in the local church to expel these people, but may have been responsible for instigating collective action against them.) §† sn: The exhortation do not imitate what is bad but what is good is clearly a reference to Diotrephes' evil behavior. The author exhorts Gaius (whom he wishes to continue assisting the missionaries) not to follow the negative example of Diotrephes, but to do what is right. Implicitly there may be a contrast between the bad behavior of Diotrephes and the good reputation of Demetrius (mentioned in the following verse); but it seems more likely that Demetrius is himself one of the traveling missionaries (perhaps their leader), rather than the leader of a local congregation who, unlike Diotrephes, has supported the missionaries himself. §†† sn: The statement The one who does what is bad has not seen God is asyndetic; its abrupt introduction adds emphasis. The statement reiterates the common Johannine theme of behavior as an indication of genuine faith, found in 1 John in 3:6, 10; 4:7, 20; and in the Gospel of John in 3:17-21. By implication, the genuineness of Diotrephes' faith is called into question, because he has obviously done what is bad (v. 11b; cf. vv. 9-10). In John's terminology it is clear that the phrase has not seen God is equivalent to "is not a genuine Christian" (see John 3:17-21 and 1 John 3:6, 10; 4:7, 20). † sn: Demetrius is apparently someone Gaius would have heard about, but whose character was not known to him. Thus the author is writing to Gaius to attest to Demetrius' good character. It appears that Demetrius is coming to Gaius' church and needs hospitality and assistance, so the author is writing to commend him to Gaius and vouch for him. It is difficult to know more about Demetrius with any certainty, but the author is willing to give him a powerful personal endorsement ( We testify to him too). Demetrius may well have been the leader of a delegation of traveling missionaries, and may even have been the bearer of this letter to Gaius. The writing of letters of introduction to be carried along by representatives or missionaries in NT times is also attested in Paul's writings ( 1 Cor 16:3). †† tn: The words "to him" are not in the Greek text, but are implied. ‡ tn: Grk "by means of." ††† tn: Grk "ink and pen." figurative phrase with pen and ink is parallel to 2 John 12, suggesting that both letters may well have been written at approximately the same time and in similar situations. The author tells Gaius that he has more to say, but does not wish to do so in writing; he would rather talk in person ( 3 John 14). It appears that the author anticipates a personal visit to Gaius' church in the very near future. This may be the same visit mentioned in connection with Diotrephes in v. 10. Gaius' church and Diotrephes' church may have been in the same city, or in neighboring towns, so that the author anticipates visiting both on the same journey. ‡‡ tn: Grk "speak mouth to mouth," an idiom for which the contemporary English equivalent is "speak face to face." †††† tn: Grk "peace to you." ‡‡‡ tn: The word "here" is not in the Greek text but is implied. § sn: It is possible that the designation friends ( φίλοι filoi

Worthy Demetrius

A plausible scenario (assuming authenticity of 2 Peter or at least that there are authentic Petrine snippets in it) is that after Peter's death, Jude intended to write to the same Gentile readers that Peter had written to (essentially, Paul's churches). Jude starts by affirming that the gospel the Gentiles had received from Paul was the same as the one the Jewish Christians had received from the other apostles (our common salvation). But in the midst of writing this letter, Jude felt that the present crisis deserved another, shorter piece. The crisis, as the letter reveals, is that the false teachers whom Peter prophesied have now infiltrated the church. The letter of Jude is thus an ad hoc letter, intended to confirm the truth of Peter's letter and encourage the saints to ground their faith in the written documents of the nascent church, rather than listen to the twisted gospel of the false teachers. In large measure, the letter of Jude illustrates the necessity of clinging to the authority of scripture as opposed to those who claim to be prophets. §‡ tn: Grk "people." However, if Jude is indeed arguing that Peter's prophecy about false teachers has come true, these are most likely men in the original historical and cultural setting. See

One of the implications that the gospel in the apostolic period was truly a gospel of grace was the fact that the enemies of the gospel could pervert it into license. If it were a gospel of works, no such abuse could be imagined. Along these lines, note Rom 6:1 – “Are we to remain in sin so that grace may increase?” This question could not have even been asked had the gospel been one of works. Because the angels did not keep their proper place, Jesus has kept them chained up in another place. The same verb keep is used in v. 1 to describe believers’ status before God and Christ. §§† sn: In 2 Pet 2:4 a less common word for chains is used. §§§ tn: The word ζόφος zofos ones refers to angelic beings rather than mere human beings, just as in 2 Pet 2:10 (on which this passage apparently depends). Whether the angelic beings are good or evil, however, is difficult to tell (hence, the translation is left ambiguous). However, both in 2 Pet 2:11 and here, in Jude 9, the wicked angels seem to be in view (for not even Michael insults them). §†† tn: The word "even" is not in Greek; it is implied by the height of the contrast. §† sn: According to Jewish intertestamental literature (such as 1 En. 20), Michael was one of seven archangels. §†† tn: The sentence structure is a bit different in Greek. §† tn: Or "they should naturally comprehend." The present tense in this context may have a conative force. sn: They instinctively comprehend. Like irrational animals, these false teachers do grasp one thing - the instinctive behavior of animals in heat. R. Bauckham (Jude, 2 Peter [WBC], 63) notes that "Though they claim to be guided by special spiritual insight gained in heavenly revelations, they are in fact following the sexual instincts which they share with the animals." Jude's focus is somewhat different from Peter's: Peter argued that, like irrational animals who are born to be caught and killed, these men will be destroyed when destroying others (2 Pet 2:12). Jude, however, does not mention the destruction of animals, just that these false teachers will be destroyed for mimicking them. §† tn: Or "they have gone the way of Cain." §§† tn: Grk "for wages." §§† tn: The verb ἐκχέω ekcew

Although the first and second could be considered constative or ingressive, the last is almost surely proleptic (referring to the certainty of their future judgment). Although it may seem odd that a proleptic aorist is so casually connected to other aorists with a different syntactical force, it is not unparalleled (cf. Rom 8:30). 20 tn: Grk "these are the men who are." 21 tn: Though σπιλάδες spilades along by the winds; autumn trees without fruit† – twice dead, †† uprooted; <sup>13</sup> wild sea waves, ‡ spewing out the foam of†† their shame; ‡‡ wayward stars‡‡† for whom the utter depths of eternal darkness‡‡‡ have been reserved.

the Lord's Supper without regarding the sanctity of the meal. Cf. 1 Cor 11:17-22. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk “shepherding themselves.” The verb ποιμαίνω poimainw

<sup>25</sup> tn: “They are” is not in Greek, but resumes the thought begun at the front of v. 12. There is no period before “They are.” English usage requires breaking this into more than one sentence. <sup>26</sup> tn: Cf. 2 Pet 2:17. Jude's emphasis is slightly different (instead of waterless springs, they are waterless clouds). † sn: The imagery portraying the false teachers as autumn trees without fruit has to do with their lack of productivity. Recall the statement to the same effect by Jesus in Matt 7:16-20, in which false prophets will be known by their fruits. Like waterless clouds full of false hope, these trees do not yield any harvest even though it is expected. †† tn: Grk “having died twice.” sn: Twice dead probably has no relevance to the tree metaphor, but has great applicability to these false teachers. As in Rev 20:6, those who die twice are those who die physically and spiritually. The aphorism is true: “born once, die twice; born twice, die once” (cf. Rev 20:5; John 3, 11). ‡ tn: Grk “wild waves of the sea.” ‡† tn: Grk “foaming, causing to foam.” The verb form is intensive and causative. BDAG 360 s.v. ἐπαφρίζω

‡‡ tn: Grk “shames, shameful things.” It is uncertain whether shameful deeds or shameful words are in view. Either way, the picture has taken a decided turn: Though waterless clouds and fruitless trees may promise good things, but deliver nothing, wild sea-waves are portents of filth spewed forth from the belly of the sea. ‡‡† sn: The imagery of a star seems to fit the nautical theme that Jude is developing. Stars were of course the guides to sailors at night, just as teachers are responsible to lead the flock through a benighted world. But false teachers, as wayward stars, are not fixed and hence offer unreliable, even disastrous guidance. They are thus both the dangerous reefs on which the ships could be destroyed and the false guides, leading them into these rocks. There is a special irony that these lights will be snuffed out, reserved for the darkest depths of eternal darkness. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk “utter darkness of darkness for eternity.” See note on the word “utter” in v. 6. § tn: Grk “the seventh from Adam.” sn: The genealogical count is inclusive, counting Adam as the first, for Enoch is really the sixth in descent from Adam (Adam, Seth, Enosh, Cainan, Mahalalel, Jared, Enoch). In this way, the picture of perfection/completion was retained (for the number seven is often used for perfection or completion in the Bible) starting with Adam and concluding with Enoch. §† tn: Grk “against them.” The dative τούτοις toutois §†† tn: Grk “has come,” a proleptic aorist. §‡ tn: Grk “ten thousands.” The word μυριάς muria

§§‡ sn: An apparent quotation from 1 En. 1:9. There is some doubt as to whether Jude is actually quoting from the text of 1 Enoch; the text here in Jude differs in some respects from the extant text of this pseudepigraphic book. It is sometimes suggested that Jude may instead have been quoting from oral tradition which had roots older than the written text. §§§ tn: “And” is not in Greek, but is supplied for the sake of English style. <sup>18</sup> tn: Or “going.” Though the participle is anarthrous, so also is the subject. Thus, the participle could be either adverbial or adjectival. <sup>19</sup> tn: Grk “(who go/going) according to their own lusts.” <sup>20</sup> tn: Grk “and their mouth speaks bombastic things.” sn: They give bombastic speeches. The idiom of opening one's mouth in the NT often implied a public oration from a teacher or one in authority. Cf. Matt 5:2; Luke 4:22; Acts 1:16; 3:18; 10:34; Eph 6:19; Rev 13:5-6. <sup>21</sup> sn: Enchanting folks ( Grk “awing faces”) refers to the fact that the speeches of these false teachers are powerful and seductive. <sup>22</sup> tn: Or “to their own advantage.” <sup>23</sup> tn: Grk “words.” In conjunction with προεϊπόν proeipon

<sup>24</sup> sn: This verse parallels 2 Pet 3:2 both conceptually and in much of the verbiage. There is one important difference, however: In 2 Pet 3:2 the prophets and apostles speak; here, just the apostles speak. This makes good sense if Jude is using 2 Peter as his main source and is urging his readers to go back to the authoritative writings, both OT and now especially NT. <sup>25</sup> tn: Grk “be.” <sup>26</sup> tn: Grk “going according to their own desires of ungodliness.” sn: Jude cites 2 Pet 3:3, changing a few of the words among other things, cleaning up the syntax, conforming it to Hellenistic style. <sup>27</sup> tn: Grk “these are the ones who cause divisions.” <sup>28</sup> tn: Or “natural,” that is, living on the level of instincts, not on a spiritual level (the same word occurs in 1 Cor 2:14 as a description of nonbelievers). <sup>29</sup> tn: Grk “not having [the] Spirit.” sn: The phrase devoid of the Spirit may well indicate Jude's and Peter's assessment of the spiritual status of the false teachers. Those who do not have the Spirit are clearly not saved. <sup>30</sup> tn: The participles in v. 20 have been variously interpreted. Some treat them imperatively or as attendant circumstance to the imperative in v. 21 (“maintain”): “build yourselves up...pray.” But they do not follow the normal contours of either the imperativ or attendant circumstance participles, rendering this unlikely. A better option is to treat them as the means by which the readers are to maintain themselves in the love of God. This both makes eminently good sense and fits the structural patterns of instrumental participles elsewhere. 31 tn: Or "keep." † tn: Or "waiting for." †† tn: Grk "unto eternal life." ‡ tn: Grk "and save." ‡† tn: Grk "and have mercy." ‡‡ tn: Grk "with fear." ‡‡† sn: The imagery here suggests that the things close to the sinners are contaminated by them, presumably during the process of sinning. ‡‡‡ tn: Grk "hating even the tunic spotted by the flesh." The "flesh" in this instance could refer to the body or to the sin nature. It makes little difference in one sense: Jude is thinking primarily of sexual sins, which are borne of the sin nature and manifest themselves in inappropriate deeds done with the body. At the same time, he is not saying that the body is intrinsically bad, a view held by the opponents of Christianity. Hence, it is best to see "flesh" as referring to the sin nature here and the language as metaphorical. § tn: The construction in Greek is a double accusative object-complement. "You" is the object and "free from falling" is the adjectival complement. §† tn: Grk "with rejoicing." The prepositional clause is placed after "his glorious presence" in Greek, but most likely goes with "cause you to stand." §†† tn: The construction in Greek is a double accusative object-complement. To the east was Colossae which had cold, pure waters. In contrast to these towns, Laodicea had no permanent supply of good water. Efforts to pipe water to the city from nearby springs were successful, but it would arrive lukewarm. The metaphor in the text is not meant to relate spiritual fervor to temperature. This would mean that Laodicea would be commended for being spiritually cold, but it is unlikely that Jesus would commend this. Instead, the metaphor condemns Laodicea for not providing spiritual healing (being hot) or spiritual refreshment (being cold) to those around them. <sup>24</sup> tn: Grk "the one sitting on it." <sup>sn</sup>: The one who rode it. The identity of the first rider on the white horse has been discussed at great length by interpreters. Several answers are given: (1) A number understand the rider on the white horse to be Christ himself, identifying this horse and rider with the one mentioned in 19:11, where the identification is clear (cf. 19:13, 16). It must be noted, though, that there is little in common between the two riders beyond the white horse. The word for "crown" is different, the armament is different, and the context here is different (conquest vs. retribution), with three other horsemen bringing catastrophe following. (2) Others see the rider on the white horse representing a spirit of military conquest that dominates human history and leads to the catastrophes that follow. (3) Another possibility is that the white horse rider represents the Antichrist, who appears later in Rev 11:7; 13:17, and whose similarity to Christ explains the similarity with the rider in 19:11. This interpretation has been discussed at length by M. Rissi, "The Rider on the White Horse: A Study of Revelation 6:1-8," Int 18 (1964): 407-18. This interpretation is the most probable one. <sup>25</sup> <sup>sn</sup>: See the note on the word crown in Rev 3:11. <sup>26</sup> tn: The participle νικῶν nikwn

God, while anticipating† the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that brings eternal life. <sup>††22</sup> And have mercy on those who waver; <sup>23</sup> save‡ others by snatching them out of the fire; have mercy †† on others, coupled with a fear of God,‡‡ hating even the clothes stained‡‡‡ by the flesh. ‡‡

 God, and Psalm 86:9-10 stands behind the ideas of glorifying God, his uniqueness, and the nations coming to worship him. Many other OT passages also speak about the nations "coming to his temple" to worship ( Isa 2:2-3, 49:22-23, 66:23-24; Micah 4:2; Zech 8:20-22). See guage here: (1) Omitting the second person, singular verb "you are" lays stress on the attribute of God's holiness. (2) The juxtaposition of alone with holy stresses the unique nature of God's holiness and complete "otherness" in relationship to his creation. It is not just moral purity which is involved in the use of the term holy, though it certainly includes that. It is also the pervasive OT idea that although God is deeply involved in the governing of his creation, he is to be regarded as separate and distinct from it. (3) John's use of the term holy is also intriguing since it is the term ὁσιος Josios

Although this is a continuation of the previous sentence in Greek, a new sentence was started here in the translation because of the introduction of the Lamb's followers. §§† tn: See the note on the word "servants" in 1:1.

§§‡ tn: Or "will serve." §§§ tn: Here καί kai

18 tn: Grk "he"; the referent (the angel mentioned in 21:9, 15; 22:1) has been specified in the translation for clarity. 19 tn: Grk "faithful." 20 tn: See the note on the word "servants" in 1:1.

21 sn: These lines are parenthetical, forming an aside to the narrative. The speaker here is the Lord Jesus Christ himself rather than the narrator. 22 tn: Or "I am John, the one who heard and saw these things." 23 tn: The pronoun "them" is not in the Greek text, but is implied. Direct objects were frequently omitted in Greek when clear from the context. 24 tn: Grk "I fell down and worshiped at was showing them to me. <sup>9</sup> But<sup>25</sup> he said to me, "Do not do this!<sup>26</sup> I am a fellow servant<sup>27</sup> with you and with your brothers the prophets, and with those who obey<sup>28</sup> the words of this book. Worship God!" <sup>10</sup> Then<sup>29</sup> he said to me, "Do not seal up the words of the prophecy contained in this book, because the time is near. <sup>11</sup> The evildoer must continue to do evil, <sup>30</sup> and the one who is morally filthy<sup>31</sup> must continue to be filthy. The<sup>32</sup> one who is righteous must continue to act righteously, and the one who is holy must continue to be holy."

<sup>12</sup> (Look ! I am coming soon, and my reward is with me to pay<sup>33</sup> each one according to what he has done!

<sup>13</sup> I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end!) <sup>34</sup>

<sup>14</sup> Blessed are those who wash their robes so they can have access<sup>35</sup> to the tree of life and can enter into the city by the gates. <sup>15</sup> Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers<sup>36</sup> and the sexually immoral, and the murderers, and the idolaters and everyone who loves and practices falsehood! <sup>37</sup>

<sup>16</sup> " I, Jesus, have sent my angel to testify to you about these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star!" <sup>38</sup><sup>17</sup> And the Spirit and the bride say, "Come !" And let the one who hears say : "Come !" And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wants it take the water of life free of charge.

<sup>18</sup> I testify to the one who hears the words of the prophecy contained in this book : If anyone adds to them, God will add to him the plagues described<sup>39</sup> in this book. <sup>19</sup> And if anyone takes away from the words the feet." BDAG 815 s.v. πίπτω α ς

27 tn: Grk "fellow slave." Though σύνδουλος sundoulos

28 tn: Grk "keep" (an idiom for obedience). 29 tn: Here καί kai

30 tn: Grk "must do evil still." 31 tn: For this translation see L&N 88.258; the term refers to living in moral filth. 32 tn: Grk "filthy, and the." This is a continuation of the previous sentence in Greek, but because of the length and complexity of the construction a new sentence was started in the translation. 33 tn: The Greek term may be translated either "pay" or "pay back" and has something of a double meaning here. However, because of the mention of "wages" ("reward," another wordplay with two meanings) in the previous clause, the translation "pay" for ἀποδοῦναι apodounai

34 sn: These lines are parenthetical, forming an aside to the narrative. The speaker here is the Lord Jesus Christ himself rather than the narrator. 35 tn: Grk "so that there will be to them authority over the tree of life." 36 tn: On the term φάρμακοι farmakoi

37 tn: Or "lying," "deceit."
